PREFACE

The records calendared in the following pages are now safely deposited in the strong room of the new Guild Hall at Gloucester. The greater portion of this calendar consists of abstracts of the early deeds, which form a very important section of the Corporation Records. The city records must have suffered great loss at some time, for, apart from these deeds, few of the early records are preserved, and of these the royal charters constitute a considerable part. The rolls of the borough court have entirely perished, their existence being recorded solely by the endorsements of some of the deeds witnessing their enrolment in the court rolls of Gloucester.[1] A minute of the Common Council of 1619 informs us that the rolls had disappeared before that date.[2]

[2] Council held August 31, 1619: 'This daie Mr Major acquainted the howse with a lettre directed from the Lo: Chauncellour concerning Edmond Cornick that he might searche the Courte Rolls and other Recordes concerning the said Cornockes title, which he pretendeth to certen landes in and neere this Citty. Att which tyme he receaved an answeare that wee had noe Court Rolls nor Custome Rolls, and that wee would write an answeare unto the Lo: Chauncellor;' No. 1451, fo. 461 d.

In compiling this calendar, I have endeavoured to include in the abstracts of the deeds everything of importance, so that reference to the originals need seldom be made.[1] The only omissions of any moment are the measurements of the properties conveyed and the enumeration of the rents and services due therefrom. The inclusion of these particulars would have materially increased the cost of compiling and printing the calendar, as they occupy space out of all proportion to their interest to us. The measurements, which are recorded in most of the deeds relating to Gloucester, generally give the width of the property in front and at the back and in the middle, and the length from back to front. These measurements are expressed in a somewhat curious way, in accordance with a custom that obtained in Gloucester until the end of the seventeenth century and perhaps even later. The following example will best explain the system: Ab. A.D. 1200 'the aforesaid land was measured by the view of lawful men, and it contains in front 12 yards less one quarter, with an inch interposed; in length 22 yards less half a quarter, with an inch interposed, at the back 11 yards with an inch interposed; in the middle 12 yards.'[2] From other examples it is clear that the meaning is that an inch is inserted between every yard, i.e. 37 inches is given for a yard. A deed of 1690 mentions 'six yards with one inch between each yard' (No. 1294, page 454). Many examples of this system of measuring will be found in the deeds in the chartulary of Gloucester Abbey.[1]

[1] I have given full translations of the earlier Royal charters, as their importance requires.

The deeds are almost exclusively written upon parchment, and most of them are drawn up in Latin according to well-known formulae, which become more and more inelastic as the loose legal phraseology of the earlier periods hardens into a technical language. There are a few in Anglo-French. English begins to appear in the deeds in the fifteenth century, gradually gaining the upper hand of Latin in the next century, and almost driving it from the field in the seventeenth century.

Until the reign of Edward I. the deeds are, with few exceptions, undated, the dates occurring before that period mainly in demises for terms of years, where the record of the commencement of the terms was an unavoidable necessity. This custom of not dating deeds must have been an extremely inconvenient one even in the twelfth or thirteenth centuries, when questions concerning their dates could be settled by inquisitions taken by jurors of the neighbourhood. To modern antiquaries the custom has been productive of enormous labour and inconvenience. The present collection, being rich in thirteenth century deeds, necessarily contains a great number of undated deeds. Naturally many of these deeds relate to the same property. As it would be inconvenient to have a conveyance from B to C appearing in the calendar before one from A to B, I have endeavoured to arrange the abstracts so as to avoid this occurring. This has entailed very great labour in arranging and re-arranging the abstracts, and has considerably retarded the publication of the work. My first arrangement of the deeds, represented by the numbers stamped upon them, rested almost exclusively upon the evidence of age afforded by the handwriting. It is obvious that evidence of this sort affords a very uncertain standard of dating deeds, because a generation is the narrowest limits within which a particular hand could be restricted, and these limits would be overstepped on both sides owing to old scribes adhering to the hands of their youth and young scribes using the very latest hand of the day. Occasionally evidence of the scribe's age may be detected in the shaky nature of the handwriting. In such cases a deed may safely be dated a generation later than the character of the hand would otherwise suggest. The difficulty of dating thirteenth century deeds is considerably enhanced by the variety of hands in use at the same time and by the occasional use of a book-hand. When the court hand, in which the deeds are principally written, becomes the established hand for legal documents, the difficulty of dating deeds by the evidence of the handwriting is considerably reduced. It is noticeable that several of the earlier thirteenth century deeds record the names of the clerks who wrote them.[1]

In order to ascertain the dates of the early deeds more accurately than could be done by a consideration of the handwriting alone, I have given a number of genealogical and other notes bearing upon the question of date. This has involved a re-arrangement of the undated deeds, which has caused the number of the abstract in the calendar to differ from that stamped upon the corresponding deed. This dislocation is somewhat to be regretted, but the advantages of the re-arrangement will be found to outweigh the disadvantages. In order to minimise the latter, I have subjoined a table giving the number of the deed in the first column and the number of the abstract in the second, so that both series of numbers can be used readily for their respective purposes. Genealogical notes do not afford an absolutely satisfactory means of dating deeds of this description. It was common for father and son and even grandson to bear the same name, and it is therefore frequently difficult to determine which generation one is dealing with. The evidence of handwriting in such cases somewhat narrows the selection. In a large collection of local deeds the same sets of names belonging to different generations occur time after time. It is too much to expect that I have in every case chosen the right date in these cases. For example—as a Henry Petitclerk abjured the realm for felony in or before A.D. 1221,[1] I altered to about 1220 the dates of several deeds witnessed by him that I had assigned, on the evidence of handwriting, to about A.D. 1240.[2] Yet we have a 'Henry called Petitclerk' in a dated deed of A.D. 1270 (No. 623, page 252) who was probably the grandson of the first-named Henry, so that the above deeds may relate to another Henry Petitclerk, and should be dated about A.D. 1240 or 1250. Several other instances of two or three generations of witnesses bearing the same names may be found in the deeds relating to Newnham, Coaley, Elmbridge, etc. In Gloucester the population was, it is clear, frequently recruited by the settlement of strangers, so that there is nothing like the permanence of certain family names that we have in the villages. But it is probable that in Gloucester in the old civic families of Burgess, Dunning, Sevar, and Uvenad we have more than one person indexed under the same Christian name.

[1] See Nos. 101, 111, 125, 128, 129, 133, 138, 142, 148, 272. In most cases where the last witness is a clerk, it may be assumed that he is the writer of the deed.

It will thus be seen that the dates assigned to the undated deeds cannot be implicitly relied upon. Now that the work is printed and indexed, it will be possible for students of local history to elucidate the relationship of different deeds and the dates of their witnesses much more fully than it was possible for me to do whilst passing so many abstracts through the press. I have arranged the deeds to which I have assigned dates in groups at intervals of ten years, but the dates so assigned may be 10 or 20 years too early or too late. This system I have thought preferable to that of saying that a deed is of the reign of Henry III., a long reign of over 56 years, to which most of the undated deeds belong. Even with this system of dating by reigns, there is great uncertainty in regard to deeds on the border line of two reigns, so that one might easily assign one deed of (say) A.D. 1216 to 'temp. John' (A.D. 1199—1216) and another deed of the same year to 'temp. Henry III.' (A.D. 1216—1272). In such a case the possible variation between the dates indicated for the two deeds is 73 years. To avoid such great uncertainty as this, I have thought it desirable to attempt to assign much narrower limits of date to the undated deeds, and I have accordingly done so, in spite of the great labour my system has entailed upon me and the constant liability to err, to which it has exposed me. In the cases where one of two deeds relating to the same property obviously precedes the other in date, as in the case of A making a grant to B, which B conveys to C, I have put the earlier deed 10 years before the other, so as to ensure its appearing in the calendar before the second one. In such cases it is not to be understood that there is an interval of ten years between the two deeds, for the interval may have been only a few months or a few weeks.

It will be noticed that a large proportion of these deeds relate to the property of the Hospitals of St. Bartholomew and of St. Margaret and St. Sepulchre. This arises from their possessions having come to the Corporation after the dissolution of chantries. The records of St. Bartholomew's were ordered to be removed thence to the Tolsey in 1650.[1] Amongst these deeds are several forged ones.[2] These are clumsily executed in late fourteenth or early fifteenth century hands. Sometimes an earlier hand is awkwardly imitated. These forgeries seem generally to be innocent in character, which is more than can be said for most medieval forgeries. They evidently represent genuine grants to the Hospitals, although they sometimes make great alterations in the wording of the originals.[3] This was, probably,

[1] At a Council meeting held on February 8, 1649-50, it was agreed 'that the records that doe remaine within the Bartholomews shall be removed by the officers of the Hospitall to the Tolsey for the better preservacion of them, there to be placed in a convenient place under locks and keys;' No. 1452, page 536.

[2] Nos. 136, 152, 241, 256, 257, 268, 286, 561, 581, 667, 669, 670, 750. The St. Bartholomew forgeries may have been made about A.D. 1407, for No. 50, page 56, states that the records of the Hospital had been burnt and lost through carelessness—an assertion that is disproved by the number of their deeds represented in this collection.

[3] This may be seen from No. 268, page 138, as in this case the original deed (No. 267) is still preserved. The mistakes in the others prove that the forgers were dealing with genuine originals. See also No. 669, page 267.

the cause of their being fabricated. The loose phraseology of the early deeds did not agree with the elaborated technicalities of the fifteenth century law courts, and the brethren and sisters of the Hospitals therefore found it necessary to modernise the language of several of their early title-deeds. Sometimes they go so far as to interpolate a clause conveying the property to them in frankalmoin, whereby the lands so conveyed would be exempted from the burden of military and other services. The seals attached to these forged deeds usually contain blurred devices and illegible inscriptions, or are impressions of a seal specially cut with collocations of meaningless strokes intended to pass for bad impressions of inscriptions. In the instance of No. 241, page 130, the seal of the original deed has been skilfully attached to the forgery.

These deeds throw considerable light upon the origin of our surnames. Amongst the earlier deeds there are several instances where a man bears only one name without any addition or description.[1] This is the earliest system of names, which prevailed before the Norman Conquest and was only superseded by the gradual introduction of surnames in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. These single names are derived from the name-system common to the Germanic races, derived in its turn from the Indo-Germanic name-system, which is so well preserved in Greek and Sanskrit. Just as a Greek would be known simply by one name, such as Lukó-stratos ('wolf' + 'army'), so would an Englishman be called by one name, such as Wolf-here (to take an example of names of the same meaning). The great richness of Old English in these names, increased as it was by the introduction of numerous Old Norse names, did not render necessary until a late period the use of descriptive additions or surnames. The Norman Conquest brought with it a fresh infusion of Germanic names, derived by the conquerors principally from their Frankish neighbours, but partly from their Scandinavian progenitors. The Normans, however, made great favourites of certain of these names, such as William, Robert, Roger, Henry, Ralph, etc., and introduced Scriptural names, which in Old English days were only used by men of religion, and even by them very sparingly. With the increase of population and the restriction of the names in use, it became necessary to use means of distinguishing one bearer of a name from another. In the case of great folk this was done by adding the name of one of their estates, and these gradually became fixed surnames, although at first a family was frequently called after more than one of its estates. In the towns and villages men were distinguished by adding the names of the villages or places whence they had come, a custom that accounts for so many of our modern surnames being names of villages. They were sometimes distinguished by adding the name of the street or other place where they lived, as Alfred and Jordan 'beyond the Bridge' (No. 85, page 72). Sometimes adjectives indicative of the origin of their bearers were used, such as Welsh, French, Devenish (=from Devon), Cornwallis (=Cornishman), etc. Trade-names were also extensively used as an effective means of distinction. Adjectives representing physical or mental peculiarities yielded another method of distinction. And there remained the oldest system of all—the use of patronymics[1] or even metronymics. There are traces in Old English of the use of most of these means of identification, but for a couple of centuries or so after the Norman Conquest these appellations were not fixed surnames, for we find instances where a man appears with and without the quasi-surname and even with a different description. Gloucester affords an early instance in the Dunning family of the use of a patronymic as a surname. A 'Dunning' (O.E. Dūnn-ing) is recorded in the Domesday Survey as a prominent burgess of

[1] Cf. Plautus, Trinummus, IV. 2, 74:

Díces, non possum ístos mostrare hómines, quos tu quaéritas."'

Gloucester. We have an 'Arnold son of Dunning' in Nos. 83, 85, 86, whose father would be, no doubt, a descendant of the earlier Dunning. Arnald's son Arnald witnesses No. 83, and 'David, son of Arnald' is another witness. This is, in all probability, the 'David Dunning' who figures so largely in Gloucester in the early part of the thirteenth century. These deeds give several interesting instances of the use of a father's name with and without the addition of 'son of,'[1] thus illustrating, as local records alone can do, the origin of the use of personal names as surnames, of which there are innumerable instances amongst our modern surnames. In order to illustrate this custom, I have added the Old English or Old Norse personal names in the index, when the origin is free from doubt, for it is sometimes impossible, owing to agreement in form, to say whether a name is of Old English or Frankish origin.

With this uncertainty as to the use of these quasi-surnames, it frequently happens that a man is called by several surnames. He may have a name derived from his father's or mother's name, a trade name, a name of the village whence he came, or a name descriptive of some physical or mental peculiarity. Thus Richard the Burgess is seemingly called 'Richard the Burgess,' 'Richard, son of William the Burgess,' 'Richard, son of William,' and another Richard the Burgess is called also 'Richard Sene' (Old French sené, 'wise, discreet'). Several other instances of like polyonymy will be found in the work.[1] In the index I have endeavoured to connect the variant names under which a man appears, but there must be many other instances where the evidence is not clear.

[1] Thus 'Sampson [son of] Gerard' (No. 507, p. 214) is called from his trade 'Sampson the Gardener' (No. 509, p. 215); 'Philip the Spicer' is also 'Philip of Gloucester, spicer' (No. 511, p. 216); 'Roger of Gloucester, baker' (No. 403, p. 180) is called 'Roger of Elbrug, baker' (No. 311, p. 152); 'John, son of Walter of the Vineyard' (No. 454, p. 196) is also called 'John the Farrier' (No. 453, p. 196); 'Reginald of Peccleswort, fleshmonger' (Nos. 813, 814, p. 310) is called 'Reginald the Fleshmonger' (No. 806, p. 308, No. 872, p.326); 'Roger the Dyer' (No. 727, p. 285) is called 'Roger of Highnam' (No. 796, p. 305); 'Richard the Blackster clerk,' is also called 'Richard the Clerk.'

In order to identify different names of the same man, I have departed from the usual custom of antiquaries in dealing with names derived from trades or from nicknames. The scribes sometimes leave the name or nickname untranslated, or they Latinize it or give it in French, and they do not always translate by the same word. Thus Philip the Spicer is called l'Especer, Espicer in French and Speciarius and Apothecarius in Latin. A farrier named William is given in French as William le Ferur, le Marschal, and in Latin as Ferrator, Marescallus, and Ferro, Ferarius. In one deed (No. 373, page 171) he is called both le Ferrur and Marescallus. The Wise family is called indifferently in Latin Sapiens, in French Le Sage, and partly in French and partly in English Levise. A builder of bridges named Gilbert is called in French le Punter and in English Bridgewright. John from the South is in English Sotheron and in French le Sureys, Sures.[1] These few instances will, I think, justify the course I have taken in translating these names into English, for without such translation one man may appear to be two or three different persons. But translation has its dangers, because the Latin or French word may have had several distinct equivalents in English. For instance, the descendants of William the Farrier might bear the modern names of Marshall, Farrer or Shoesmith. One naturally translates Albus by 'white,' but the index shews that the Gloucester family was known by the synonymous Blund. Then, again, a trade-name may have fallen into disuse, as in the case of 'Belȝutare,' Latinized as Campanarius, which we are obliged to translate by 'bell-founder,' the modern name of the trade. Hathulf called in English the Shipsmith is called in French Mariner, which one would not translate by Shipsmith. Then there are the difficulties presented by such Latin words as Dives, which may mean either 'the Rich' or 'Richman.' John Dives and Robert Dives appear both as le Riche and Rycheman, so that in this case it is quite impossible to say what the modern surname would be.[1]

[1] John the Welshman is Latinized as Walensis and Gallicized as le Waleys in the same deed (No. 530, p. 222); William the Hunter is similarly rendered by Venator and le Venur in No. 489, p. 208. Stephen the Needlemaker is called in French le Aguler (No. 453, p. 227) and in English Neldare (No. 621, p. 252) and (?) Brocher No. 490, p. 209, No. 542, p. 227); Nicholas the Mute is called in French Muet (No. 86, p. 73, No. 241, p. 131) Muwet (No. 115, p. 85) and in Latin Mutus (No. 246, p. 132); William Peacock is called in English Pecok, Pokoc, and Paucok (dialectal forms of Peacock) and in Latin Pauo.

The appearance of this volume has been considerably delayed by the great amount of time

[1] So also Liber may be Freeman. Of the tradenames Fullo = 'fuller' is more probably represented by Walker, Telator = 'weaver' by Webb (O. E. webba), and Venator = 'hunter, huntsman' by Hunt (O. E. hunta). The descendants of Richard the Frenchman, who is Latinized as Franciscus and Gallicized as Franceis, might be named Francis, French, or Frankish, and those of John the Welshman, Walensis, le Waleys, might be called Welsh, Walsh, Wallis, or Wallace. Rotarius I have rendered Wheelwright, but 'wheeler' was a more common form.

consumed in getting the undated deeds into their final order, by the heavy index, by ill-health on my part, and by other causes beyond my control.

As in the case of the Gloucester Rental of 1455, I have to express my heavy debt of gratitude to Mr Bellows for the very great care bestowed upon the work, for great assistance in arranging typographical details, and for many other services. The numerous re-arrangements of the earlier deeds have failed to exhaust Mr Bellows' patience and courtesy. With this expression of my obligations I must also associate Mr Bellows' able staff. To Sir John Macleane, who has throughout taken a warm personal interest in the work, I am also indebted in many respects. Lastly, I must tender my thanks to the Town Clerk (G. Sheffield Blakeway, Esq.) for the great amount of trouble that the work has inflicted upon him, for his great interest in it, and for his forbearance in connexion with the numerous delays it has undergone in passing through the press.

CALENDAR OF THE RECORDS

OF THE

CORPORATION OF GLOUCESTER

1.—Royal Charters of Liberties.

1.—[1155.] [1]—Charter of King Henry II. 'H[enry,] King of England and Duke of Normandy and Aquitaine and Earl of Anjou, to all his archbishops, bishops, abbots, earls, barons, justices, and sheriffs, and all his faithful (subjects) of all England, French and English, greeting. Know ye that I have granted to my burgesses of Gloucester (Gloecestr') the same customs and liberties throughout all my land of toll and of all other things as the better citizens of London [2] and those of Winchester had at any time in the time of King Henry my grandfather. Wherefore I will and firmly enjoin that my aforesaid burgesses shall have fully all those liberties and free customs and acquittances, so that no one shall do them therein any wrong or shame or damage. Witnesses:

[1] A full translation of this charter is here given. It is undated, like the other charters of this king. Mr Eyton, Court, Household, and Itinerary of Henry II., p. 8, assigns it to about March, 1155. He quotes from a copy among the Cartae Antiquae, DD, in the Public Record Office. The date given by Eyton is probably correct, for the boroughs usually obtained confirmations of their liberties from each king immediately upon his accession.

[2] See the charter of Henry the Second to London in Stubbs, Select Charters, ed. 3, p. 108.

Reginald, Earl of Cornwall ;[1] Man[asser] Biset, Steward (Dapifer);[2] Warin, son of Gerald, Chamberlain ; Hugh of Longchamp. At Westminster.'[3] 1a.

2.—[1163—1174.]—[4] Henry II. to the sheriffs of Gloucestershire, Worcestershire, and Shropshire. 'We command that the men of Gloucester and all those who wish to go by the River Severn shall have their way and passage by the Severn with wood and coals and timber and all their merchandises freely and quietly, and we forbid anyone from vexing or disturbing them in aught hereupon. Witnesses: Geoffrey, Archdeacon of Canterbury; William of Lanvalei; Ralph, son of Stephen. At Woodstock.'

3.—1194, May 6.—Richard I.[5] 'Richard, by the grace of God, King of England, Duke of Normandy, Aquitaine, Earl of Anjou, to his archbishops, bishops,

[1] Reginald died in 1175.

[2] Mr Eyton was unable to find any record of Manasser Biset as Dapifer after 1166 or of Warin, son of Gerald, as Chamberlain after 1158.

[3] The King was in London about March 27, 1155 ; Eyton, p. 8. He held a Council at Westminster on December 25 of the same year, and it is possible, as Eyton, p. 14, says, that this charter may have been then granted.

[4] This charter is lost, but it was in existence in 1328, when it was recited and confirmed by Edward III. in his charter. The above abstract is taken from his recital. The date of this charter is limited between 1163 and 1174 by the mention of Geoffrey (Riddel) as Archdeacon of Canterbury, as he was consecrated Bishop of Ely on October 6, 1174. Of the years between these dates, the time between March, 1166, and March, 1170, from June, 1170, to August, 1171, from October, 1171, to April, 1172, and from May, 1172, to July, 1174, may be eliminated from the possible dates for this charter, since King Henry was not in England between these dates. Several of his visits to Woodstock are recorded in the remaining years. See Eyton, passim.

[5] A full translation of this charter is given. The Corporation possess four contemporary copies of this charter, three of them having considerable fragments of Richard's great seal still hanging to them, the seal fillet of the fourth copy having been cut through and the seal abstracted. All four copies are written in the same hand. The different readings presented by them are of slight moment, with the exception that C has 'quinto' (the fifth) instead of 'sexto' (the sixth) of May as the date of the charter. Richard was at Portsmouth from April 29 to May 12 in the above year ; Chronicle of Roger of Howden, iii. 251.

abbots, earls, barons, justices, sheriffs, and all his faithful (subjects) of all England, French and English, greeting. Know ye that we have granted, and by this our present charter have confirmed, to our burgesses of Gloucester all the borough of Gloucester with appurtenances: to hold of us, and of our heirs, for ever at ferm, rendering yearly fifty and five pounds sterling, as they were wont to render, and ten pounds of increment of the ferm at the account at our Exchequer in the term of Easter and in the term of Saint Michael. We have also granted them the same customs and liberties throughout all our land of toll and of all other things as the citizens of London and those of Winchester had at any time in the reign of King Henry, grandfather of our father. Wherefore we will and firmly enjoin, that our aforesaid burgesses shall have fully all those liberties and free customs and acquittances as the charter of the Lord King Henry, our father, witnesses; and we forbid anyone to do them wrong or damage or annoyance, on pain of forfeiture to us of ten pounds. Witnesses: William of St. Mere l'Eglise; Geoffrey, son of Peter; Robert, son of Roger; Robert of Tresgoz. Given by the hand of William of Longchamp, Bishop of Ely, our Chancellor, on the sixth day of May, at Portsmouth, in the fifth year of our reign.' 1 b, c, d, e.

4.—[1194,] May 6.—[1] Richard I. to the Sheriffs of Gloucestershire, Shropshire, and Worcestershire. 'We command that the men of Gloucester and all those who wish to go by the River Severn shall have their way and passage free and quiet by the Severn with wood and coal and timber and all merchandise; and we forbid anyone to vex or disturb them in aught hereupon, as is contained in the charter of our father King Henry, on pain of forfeiture to us of ten pounds. Witnesses: William, Bishop of Ely, our Chancellor; William of St. Mere l'Eglise. The sixth of May, at Portsmouth.' 1 f.

[1] This is a mere recital of the writ of Henry II. to the same effect (No. 2.)

5.—1200, April 21.—Charter of King John I.[1] 'Know ye that we have granted, and by this our present charter have confirmed, to our burgesses of Gloucester all the borough of Gloucester with the appurtenances, to have of us and our heirs for ever at ferm, rendering yearly fifty-five pounds, as they were wont to render them, and ten pounds by tale (de numero)[2] of increment of the ferm, at our Exchequer in the term of Easter and in the term of S. Michael. We have also granted to our burgesses of Gloucester of the Merchants' Gild that none of them shall plead without the walls of the borough of Gloucester in any plea except pleas relating to outside tenures,[3] excepting our moneyers[4] and officers. We have also granted to them that none of them

[1] A full translation of this charter is here given. It is enrolled on the charter Rolls, 1 John, mem. 2 (printed text, p. 56 b). The citizens (sic) of Gloucester gave to the King 200 marks (= £133 6s. 8d.) in 1199 that they might have the same liberties as the citizens of Winchester; Rotuli de Oblatis, temp. Ioh., p. 17. The charter is practically a copy, mutatis mutandis, of Richard the First's charter to Winchester, A.D. 1190, printed in Rymer's Foedera, i. p. 50, and Stubbs, Select Charters, 3rd ed., p. 265. The paragraph relating to the fee-ferm of the borough (derived from the charter of Richard I.) and the clauses about the reeves and the burgesses who were to keep the pleas of the Crown are additions to the Winchester charter. Many boroughs obtained from John charters founded upon those of other boroughs. It is characteristic of the lawless reign of this king that, although the burgesses of Gloucester paid an enormous sum to obtain this charter in 1199, they were nevertheless compelled to give the king fifty marks (=£33 13s. 4d.) and a palfrey in 1206 in order that they might have the town at ferm, 'as they were wont to have it according to their charter, which they have from the King;' Rotuli de Finibus, temp. Ioh., p. 360.

[2] It was anciently the custom to assay money paid into the Exchequer, the payer being charged with the deficiency between the nominal and the real value of the money paid by him. Sometimes payments were allowed to be, as in the above case, by tale, that is, the money was not liable to assay but was received at its nominal, not its intrinsic, value. The difference between the nominal and the real value of the coinage arose from the lack of efficient control over the moneyers in the different towns. See the Dialogus de Scaccario, i. 3, 7, in Stubbs' Select Charters, ed. 3, p. 174.

[3] That is, lands, etc., held by them outside the borough.

[4] The moneyers were royal servants, and the jurisdiction over them was always reserved to the crown.

shall make duel ;[1] and that they may deraign[2] themselves of pleas pertaining to our crown according to the ancient custom of the borough. This we have also granted them, that all the burgesses of Gloucester of the Merchants' Gild shall be quit of toll and lastage and pontage and stallage within and without fairs, and throughout the sea ports, of all our lands on this and on the other side of the sea, saving the city of London in all liberties ; and that none shall be adjudged in an amercement of money except according to the ancient law of the borough that they had in the time of our ancestors ; and that they shall have their lands and tenures and pledges and debts justly, whosoever owes them to them. And of their lands and tenures that are within the borough, right shall be done to them according to the custom of the borough. And of all their debts that are contracted at Gloucester and of pledges there made, pleas shall be holden at Gloucester. And if any one in all our land take toll or custom from the men of Gloucester of the Merchants' Gild, the Sheriff of Gloucester or the Reeve (praepositus) of Gloucester shall, after he[3] have failed to do right, take distress therefor at Gloucester, saving in all things the liberties of the city of London. Moreover also, to improve the borough, we have granted them that they shall be all quit of gyeres-gyve[4] and of scot-ale,[5] if our Sheriff

[4] Literally 'year's gift,' from Old English gēares, gen. sing. of gēar 'year,' and giefu 'gift.' It was, apparently, an annual sum exacted by the royal officers under the pretence of protecting and treating favourably the burgesses.

[5] From Old English sceat 'scot, tax,' and ealu 'ale, feast' (the al of brid-al). There is some doubt as to the meaning of scot-ale, but the most probable explanation is that it was a drinking party or feast to which the royal officers forced the inhabitants of their district to contribute either in the shape of provisions or in the expenditure of a certain sum at the 'ale,' or perhaps in both ways, the whole proceeds going into the pockets of the officers who organised the 'ale.' This explanation is countenanced by the somewhat similar 'church-ales,' the proceeds of which went to the maintenance of the parish church.

or other our bailiff make a scot-ale. These aforesaid customs we have granted to them and all other liberties and free customs that they had in the times of our ancestors when they had them better or more freely. And if any customs were unjustly raised in the war-time (in guerra), they shall be quashed. And whosoever shall seek the borough of Gloucester with their chaffer (cum mercato suo) from whatsoever place they be, be they strangers or others, they shall come, stay, and return in our safe peace, paying the right customs, and no one shall disturb them upon this our charter. And we forbid any one to do them wrong therein or damage or annoyance, upon pain of forfeiture to us of ten pounds. Wherefore we will and firmly enjoin that the aforesaid burgesses and their heirs shall have and hold all these aforesaid things in inheritance of us and our heirs, well and in peace, freely and quietly and honourably, as is above written. We also will and grant, that the same our burgesses of Gloucester shall choose by common counsel[1] of the borough two of the more lawful and discreet burgesses of Gloucester and present them to our Chief Justice at Westminster, which two, or either of them, shall well and faithfully keep the reeve-ship (praepositura) of the borough; and they shall not be amoved, so long as they carry themselves well in their bailliwick, except by common counsel of the borough. We also will, that in the same borough of Gloucester there shall be chosen, by common counsel of the burgesses, four of the more lawful and discreet men of the borough to keep the pleas of the crown and other things that pertain to us and our crown in the same borough, and to see that the Reeves, or Reeve, of that town treat justly and lawfully both poor and rich. These being witnesses: Hugh, Archbishop of Canterbury, our Chancellor; William, Bishop of London; and ~~Henry~~ Herbert, Bishop of Salisbury; William Marshall, Earl of Pembroke; William, Earl of Salisbury; Earl David; William

6.—1227, April 6.—Henry III.[1] 'Know ye that we have granted and by this our charter have confirmed to our burgesses of Gloucester all the borough of Gloucester, [as in charter of John]. We have also granted to the same burgesses of Gloucester that no Sheriff of ours shall in any wise intermeddle with them in any plea or action (querela) or occasion, or in any other matter pertaining to the aforesaid borough, saving to us and our heirs for ever the pleas of our Crown that ought to be attached by the same burgesses until the coming of our Justices, as is aforesaid. We have also granted to the same, that if any villein (nativus) of any one's shall dwell in the aforesaid borough, and shall hold (land) in it, and be in the Merchant Gild and hanse[2] and lot and scot with the same our burgesses, for one whole year and one day without challenge, he may not thereafter be claimed (repeti) by his lord, but shall remain free in the same borough.[3] Witnesses: the Lord Walter, Archbishop of York ; Walter, Bishop of Carlisle ; Hubert of Burgh, Earl of Kent, our Justiciar; W., Earl of Warrenne; Osbert Gifford ; Ralph, son of Nicholas, and Richard of Argenton, our Stewards ; Henry of the Chapel ; John of Bassingburn ; and others. Given by the hands of the venerable father Ralph, Bishop of Chichester, our Chancellor, at Westminster, the sixth day of April, in the eleventh year of our reign.' 2.

have for ever the return of all our writs[1] touching the aforesaid town of Gloucester and the liberty of the same town ; and that the Bailiffs of the same town may answer by their own hand at our Exchequer for all their debts and for summons of the same Exchequer touching the aforesaid town of Gloucester, so that no sheriff or other our bailiff or minister shall henceforth enter the aforesaid town of Gloucester to make summons or distresses or any other thing, except by default of the said burgesses or their heirs ; and that the same burgesses shall not be impleaded of anything touching the liberty of their community of the aforesaid town of Gloucester except before us or our justices ; and that no writs of ours shall run within the liberty of the same town of Gloucester except those that ought, and have heretofore been accustomed, to run there. And if it happen that the same burgesses be amerced for any crime before us or any our justices or ministers whatsoever, they shall not be amerced except according to the form of our great charter of liberties granted to our realm of England ;[2] and that the same burgesses shall have and hold throughout our whole land and power all their liberties and free customs approved and hitherto obtained and used, as quiety and fully as our citizens of London have and hold their liberties better and more freely within our power. And if the same burgesses have not fully used any articles contained in our charter of liberties previously granted to them, they may henceforth, notwithstanding that, use them freely and without impediment, as the same articles are reasonably contained in the same charter. Wherefore we will and firmly enjoin, for us and our heirs, that the aforesaid burgesses and their heirs, burgesses of Gloucester, shall have for ever all the before-written liberties, and shall use them hereafter for ever freely and without

8.—1302, October 24.—Edward I. Grants that the burgesses of Gloucester may have a fair at the aforesaid town to last for seven days in each year, to wit, on the eve and day of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist [June 24] and following five days, unless that fair be to the damage of neighbouring fairs. 4.

9.—1312, September 6.—Edward II.[1] We grant that in pleas of lands, tenements, and tenures within the liberty of Gloucester, and in trespasses and complaints arising within the same liberty, the burgesses shall not be convicted by any strangers but only by their comburgesses,[2] unless the community of the borough be guilty of any of the premises, or unless the matter touches the community or the King or his ministers in any wise.

10.—1328, December 20.—Edward III. We grant, in honour of the body of our father, which lies buried at Gloucester, that, although the burgesses of Gloucester may not have heretofore used any of the liberties or acquittances contained in their charters, they may fully enjoy and use them without hindrance or impediment, excepting the clause as to taking distresses, which we will they shall use as they have hitherto done. We specially confirm the clause that no burgess, our moneyers and officers excepted, shall plead outside the walls of the borough in any plea, except in pleas relating to outside tenures. We grant that the burgesses shall be quit of murage, quayage, pavage, passage, gildage, and Merchants' Gild,[1] and of all other such customs throughout our whole kingdom. 5.

11.—1333-4, January 10.—Edward III.[2] We grant, for the improvement of the town of Gloucester, and for the quiet of the burgesses, and for a fine that they have made to us, that the said burgesses shall have the said borough, with all its profits and appurtenances, quit of 55s., which they were wont to render for the dealbation[3] of £55 of the ferm of the said town, and of 52s. for purprestures, and of 2s. for the buying and selling of goods in their Gild Hall; rendering therefor to us at our Exchequer yearly £65 only and no more; and that the 100s. that King Henry our great-grandfather formerly granted to Elias of Rochester to be received from the said burgesses[4] (to wit, 50s. for the said purpresture and 50s. of the ferm of the said borough) shall be allowed to the said burgesses in the said ferm of £65 at our Exchequer annually.

said Burgesses are charged together with the citizens of Worcester with the making of a balinger.' [1] 6.

13.—1397-8, March 21.—Richard II. We grant that the burgesses may fully use all liberties, franchises, etc., contained in their charters, although they may not hitherto have fully used any of them.

We grant that the burgesses shall have the chattels of outlaws, the chattels of felons and fugitives, deodands, [2] and all manner issues, fines, ransoms, and amercements forfeited by burgesses of Gloucester, although the said burgesses may be our ministers or officers, and the like forfeitures from all residents within the town, its precincts and suburbs, forfeited in whatsoever royal courts; to be levied by the Bailiffs of Gloucester for the use of the burgesses.

The burgesses may also have all goods and chattels called 'maynoeure' [3] taken with any person within the town aforesaid and its suburbs and precincts and disavowed by the same persons before any of the king's justices. They shall also have cognizance of all pleas relating to lands or tenements within the town, as well as of Assizes of Novel Disseisin, Mort d'Ancestor, of certificates arramed, [4] as well as of debts, trespasses, and of

[1] That is, the consideration for the passing of the charter is that the Burgesses of Gloucester shall, jointly with the citizens of Worcester, defray the cost of building a 'balinger' or small war-vessel. Similarly, a charter of confirmation was granted to the Burgesses of Nottingham on April 8 of this year 'because they are charged together with the men of Derby with the making of a balinger;' Records of the Borough of Nottingham, i. 196.

[2] Deodand (= Deo dandum 'to be given to God') was the name given to any personal chattel, animate or inanimate, that had caused the death of a man in any way, which object was forfeited to the Crown, the money thence arising being spent in alms for the good of the deceased's soul. See Staunford, Les Plees del Coron, fo. 20 A. Deodands were abolished by 9 and 10 Vict., c. 62.

[3] Maynoeure, or mainour, a doublet of manoevre, literally handy work, means technically the stolen goods found upon a thief. In the Latin records it is sometimes Latinized as manuopus. It is translated by manuale opus in the Year Book, 30-31 Ed. 1, p. 545.

other pleas, real or personal, arising within the said town, such cognizance to be holden before the Bailiffs of the town in the 'Gildehalle.' And they are to have full correction, punishment, authority, and power to inquire, hear, and determine by the Bailiffs all matters, suits, etc., pertaining to the office of a Justice of the Peace, of Labourers and Artificers within the said town, as fully as the Justices in the County have, the said County Justices being restrained from interfering in such matters in the town; provided that the Bailiffs do not proceed to the determination of any felony without a special mandate from the king.

The Bailiffs are to have full power to receive recognizances between merchant and merchant, and to do execution thereupon, according to the Statute of Merchants and the Statute of Acton Burnell.

The Bailiffs shall have power to attach at the suit of a party by their bodies men minus sufficientes in pleas of debt, account, trespasses, detinue of chattels, seizure and detinue of cattle (averia,) and the seizure and detinue of chattels, within the town, saving to the Abbot of St. Peter that his servants and tenants shall not be attached by colour of this article. 7.

14.—1399, December 4.—Henry IV. Recital and confirmation of previous charters, and grant that, although the burgesses have not for any reason fully used the privileges, immunities, etc., contained in the said charters, they may fully use them without let or hindrance. 8.

17.—1447, July 10.—Henry VI. Whereas the burgesses of Gloucester hold the town aforesaid at fee-ferm, by virtue of the grants of our progenitors; and whereas now it is complained to us by the Bailiffs, Burgesses and Community in what manner the town sufficiently consisted of inhabitants at the time of the said grants and of what inhabitants, and of other things and revenues; by reason whereof the said fee-ferm cannot be raised without great detriment, in so much that at this time, on account of divers pestilences in the town and the ruin of hospices and houses in the said town, the said fee-ferm is so wasted that £40 of the £60 of the profits, issues, and revenues annually issuing from the same town can hardly be raised; notwithstanding which the Bailiffs of the town aforesaid have paid the said £60, and are bound to pay it, to the grievous charge and damage of the said community, and the said Bailiffs will be bound to find £20 yearly of their own goods to make up the said £60, so that in time the town will be without Bailiffs and will not retain any fee-ferm, unless the Bailiffs and Burgesses are relieved by us: We therefore, moved by their prayers, grant that they may construct anew and build two water-mills[1] under one or two arches nearest the town of a stone bridge of four arches over the Severn on the western side within the liberty of the town aforesaid, and that they may have the said mills without impeachment and without paying anything therefor to the crown. 12.

19.—1473, April 6.—Edward IV. We have inspected a petition presented to us in our present Parliament, as follows: The Bailiffs and Stewards of the town of Gloucester show that the said town is 'febly paved and full perilous and iepardous' for passengers, in so much that many persons, both of high degree and low, have been seriously injured thereby, and the Bailiffs and Stewards have no lands, tenements or rents, etc., in common wherewith to maintain the same; they pray that it may be ordained in Parliament that every person having any burgage, messuage or tenement within any of the four principal streets shall, upon due warning given to them by the Bailiffs and Stewards, make sufficient pavement before their property at their own costs and charges, extending from their tenements to the middle of the street; and in case any person do not so make the pavement within one quarter of the year after such warning, it shall be lawful for the Bailiffs and Stewards to do the paving, and levy distress upon the goods and chattels found in the defaulter's tenements, whether the goods or chattels belong to him or to his tenant, such distresses to be appraised and sold, and the surplus, if any, to be handed over to the owner. All persons having rents issuing from any tenements in the said four streets to contribute towards the costs of the paving in proportion to their rents. In case the goods of any person who is not liable for the costs of paving be distrained, he is empowered to retain his rent until he is satisfied for the value of the goods distrained, or he may have, at his option, an action of debt against the person for whose contribution his goods have been distrained. The defendants in such action not to be admitted to wage law.[1] This petition being assented to by the Commons and by the King with the advice of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, we have caused the petition to be exemplified at the request of the Bailiffs and Stewards. [The petition is in English.] 14.

20.—1483, September 2.—Richard III. After reciting and confirming previous charters, we grant that none of the privileges of the burgesses shall be forfeited by non-user, and we remit £45 out of the fee-ferm of £65. The burgesses to elect a Mayor from amongst themselves on Monday next after feast of St. Michael, the said Mayor to make oath before the Bailiffs and four of the more lawful and discreet burgesses. The burgesses are incorporated in the name of the Mayor and Burgesses of the town of Gloucester, and are to have usual powers of an incorporated body. The Mayor for the time being to have a sword carried before him in the said town and liberties in the same manner as is used in other cities and boroughs. The burgesses may elect from themselves twelve Aldermen, who shall execute within the town the same offices as the Aldermen of London do in that city, and they are to take the same oath before the Mayor as the Aldermen of London take. When an Alderman dies, the other Aldermen may elect a successor.

The town of Gloucester and all the villages and hamlets in the Hundreds of Dudston and King's Barton, which are now in the County of Gloucester, are to be wholly separated from the said County from the Monday after the feast of St. Michael the Archangel next to come, and to be incorporated and known as the 'County of the town of Gloucester;' saving to the Justices of Assize, Justices of Gaol Delivery, and Justices of the Peace of the County of Gloucester power to enter the said town to hold their Sessions there, and saving to the Sheriff of Gloucestershire like power to hold his County Courts therein, just as they have been wont to do, such permission being restricted to County business.

The Bailiffs of the town shall be elected in the same manner and place and time as they were in the time of King Edward IV.; and in case a Bailiff die within a year after his election, the burgesses may proceed to elect a successor without obtaining a licence from us. The Bailiffs who shall be elected on Monday after the feast of St. Michael next, and their successors for ever, shall be Sheriffs of the County of the town of Gloucester, and shall exercise the powers of Sheriffs and Bailiffs within the same County of the town of Gloucester. The Sheriffs to take oath of office before the Mayor in the Guildhall, and before no one else. The Mayor to transmit the names of the said Sheriffs into the Chancery under his seal of office. The Sheriffs are to hold County Courts from month to month within the said County of the town of Gloucester, and they are vested with the full powers of Sheriffs in the said County. All royal writs of any kind relating to the County of the town of Gloucester shall be directed to the Sheriffs of the County of the town of Gloucester to be executed by them. After the said Monday after the feast of St. Michael, no Sheriff, Bailiff, or other officer but the Sheriffs of the County of the town of Gloucester shall enter the said County of the town of Gloucester to execute any writs, etc., and shall not in any wise interfere within the said liberties. The Sheriffs of the County of the town of Gloucester to answer in the Exchequer for all issues, etc., relating to their office, for which purpose they may appoint attorneys in the Exchequer under their seal: which being done, the Sheriffs shall not be compelled to come out of their liberties to answer for anything relating to their office.

The Mayor and Burgesses may elect a Coroner from amongst themselves, who shall take oath before the Mayor, Sheriffs and Bailiffs of the said town, and shall execute all the offices of a Coroner within the said County of the town of Gloucester, and no other Coroner shall enter the said County.

After the burgesses have elected a Mayor on the said Monday after the feast of St. Michael next to come, a Mayor shall be yearly elected on the same day by the twelve Aldermen and twelve of the more lawful and discreet burgesses of the said town, and the Mayor shall then take oath of office before the Coroner and six of the Aldermen.

There shall hereafter be within the said town four Sergeants at Mace, two of whom shall be appointed to serve the Mayor for the time being, and the other two to serve the Sheriffs.

The Mayor shall exercise within the said County of the town of Gloucester the office of Clerk of the Market of our Household; all fines and amercements arising from such office to be taken by the Mayor and Burgesses without accounting to us for them. The Mayor shall also have the office and exercise the power of Steward and Marshall of our Household within the same liberties.

The Mayor and Aldermen aforesaid to have, within the said limits, the powers of Justices of the Peace, of Labourers, and Artificers, and of Justices hitherto assigned in Gloucestershire to hear and determine felonies, trespasses, and misdeeds.

The Mayor to be Escheator within the said limits; he may render his accounts by a sufficient attorney in the Exchequer.

The freedom of the Burgesses of Tewkesbury from paying toll and other dues is specially reserved. 15.

23.—1541, September 3.—Henry VIII. Foundation of Bishopric of Gloucester.[1] Whereas the late monastery of St. Peter of Gloucester and all its possessions were, for certain spiritual and urgent needs, given and granted to us[2] by Gabriel Moreton, Prior of the said monastery, and the Convent of the same, as appears by the charter sealed with the seal of the said Convent in our Chancery, by reason whereof we are now seized in demesne as of fee of and in the said monastery and its possessions: we, being inspired by divine clemency and desiring nothing else than that true religion should not only be not abolished therein, but should rather be restored in its integrity and reformed to its primitive form, and having corrected the excesses into which the monastic life has for a long time fallen, have given thought that, as far as human weakness can foresee, the teaching of the Holy Word should be there hereafter purely administered, the discipline of good manners be there observed, youth liberally instructed in letters, and old age fitly cherished with necessary food, so that the giving of alms to the poor of Christ, the repair of ways and bridges, and other works of charity should there abound, to the glory of God and the common advantage of our subjects :

Wherefore we, considering that the site of the late monastery, wherein are many monuments of our progenitors Kings of England, is a place befitting and convenient for erecting and establishing a Bishop's See and a cathedral church of one Bishop, one Dean, and six prebendaries, have decided to erect the said site of the late monastery and the church thereof into a Bishop's See and a cathedral church, and we have created by these presents the same cathedral church of one Bishop, one Dean, and six prebendaries.

We will, therefore, that the cathedral church aforesaid shall be henceforth for ever a cathedral church and a bishop's See, and that all our town of Gloucester shall henceforth for ever be a city and be called the 'City of Gloucester.'

And whereas the said late town of Gloucester, together with all and singular the towns and hamlets of Dudston and King's Barton near Gloucester, have been for a long time a whole County incorporated by itself in name and deed ; and whereas one Thomas Payne, now Mayor of that town, and the burgesses of the same have and enjoy certain liberties, franchises, and privileges within the said late town of Gloucester and within the County of the same : we will and grant that the aforesaid present City of Gloucester, together with all and singular the villages and hamlets of Dudston and King's Barton, shall be for ever the County of our City of Gloucester by the same limits and boundaries as the said late town of Gloucester and all and singular the villages and hamlets of Dudston and King's Barton are bounded and known ; and such County of the City of Gloucester and the aforesaid villages of Dudston and King's Barton shall be an entire County by itself in name and deed, and distinct and wholly separated for ever from our County of Gloucester. And we will that the said Thomas Payne, now Mayor of our aforesaid City, and the Burgesses of the aforesaid City, and their successors for ever, shall have within the City aforesaid and within the County of the City such liberties, Court Leets, views of Frankpledge, and everything pertaining to a view of Frankpledge, return of writs, rights, jurisdictions, franchises, and privileges as the said Mayor and burgesses or any of their predecessors had within the said late town of Gloucester and within the aforesaid late County of the town of Gloucester.

And we divide and exempt the said City and County of the City of Gloucester from the jurisdiction, authority, and diocese both of the Bishop of Worcester and of the Bishop of York and the Bishop of Hereford ; and we adjoin and unite to the See of Gloucester all episcopal jurisdiction and all profits, emoluments, and hereditaments whatsoever pertaining to the right or jurisdiction of a Bishop arising within the said City of Gloucester and the County of the said City and in the whole County of Gloucester ; and we constitute the Diocese of Gloucester of the said City and Counties ; and we will that the said Bishop and See of Gloucester shall be in the province of Canterbury like the Bishop and See of Worcester.

And whereas our town of Bristol in our County of Gloucester is a county in itself and is situated partly within the Diocese of Bath and Wells and partly within the Diocese of Worcester, we do will, in order to avoid all doubt in the future, that all that part of our town and County of Bristol which was formerly in the Diocese of Worcester shall be henceforth in the Diocese of Gloucester.

We, confiding in the learning, manners, probity, and virtue of our well-beloved chaplain John Wakeman, do elect and nominate the said John Wakeman to be Bishop of Gloucester.

And we will that the said Bishop shall be a body corporate in himself, and shall have perpetual succession; and that he and his successors may plead and be impleaded in all our Courts, and may acquire lands, etc., and, in general, may have the same powers as other bishops in England.

And whereas we wish to honourably endow the said Bishop of Gloucester and his successors, we give him all that hall covered with lead commonly called the 'Leaden Hall' (plumba[1] aula); a bread-room (panarium); a store-room (promptuarium) with a kitchen; two buildings for storing food; a small square with a pool or stew into which the fresh water at the eastern end of the same hall flows; and also a great bedchamber, in which the servants of the late Abbot used to feed, situate at the eastern end of the said Hall; and also a bread-room, a store-room, and an underground workshop (officina) and the way leading to it on the southern side of the said great bedchamber; and also a square or vacant place, containing by estimation in length two perches and in breadth one perch and three feet, adjoining the said great bedchamber; and also another bed-chamber, commonly called 'the square bedchamber,' on the northern side of the said great bed-chamber, with three other bed-chambers built over the said square bed-chamber; and another great bed-chamber, wherein the late Abbot used to take his meals, with a bread-room, a store-room, and an underground workshop at the southern end of the said bed-chamber; and also a house for walking (domus deambulatoria) at the said southern end and on the eastern side of the same bed-chamber; and a bed-chamber situate on the southern side of the same house for walking, with three chambers constructed together and situate on the northern side of the said house for walking; and also those three interior bed-chambers with a space in the middle (cum uno meditullio), a chapel, and another house for walking adjoining the said three chambers and private to the late Abbot, situate at the northern end of the said great bed-chamber, in which the late Abbot used to take his meals, and on the eastern side of the said bed-chamber. Also another hall; a bread-room, a store-room, a kitchen, and two bed-chambers at the eastern end of the said house for walking; and also all the bed-chambers, houses, buildings, underground workshops, and other workshops whatsoever situate or built above or beneath the said halls, bed-chambers, houses for walking, and all and singular the premises, or under or above any part thereof. Also a garden, containing in length by estimation six perches and ten feet and in breadth seven perches and thirteen and a half feet, which garden extends the length of the said three interior bed-chambers and other buildings peculiar to the late Abbot; and also all and singular the messuages, habitations, houses, edifices, structures, with the soil thereof, and gardens, orchards, vacant places, walls, and all and singular the hereditaments whatsoever known by the name or names of 'the Abbott*es* Lodgyng' or situate within the precinct and circuit known as 'the Abbott*es* Lodgynge:' which circuit contains on the southern side nine perches and ten feet, and on the northern side nine perches and six feet, and at the western end eight perches, nine feet, and eight inches, and at the eastern end eight perches and sixteen feet, each perch containing eighteen and a half feet and three inches.

We also give the said Bishop all that stable usually called 'the Abbottes Stable,' containing in length four perches eight and a half feet, and in breadth one perch and four feet. Also a garden at the eastern end of a cemetery containing in length six perches and seventeen and a half feet, and in breadth six perches and sixteen feet. Also a house commonly called 'the Woode Barton,' containing in length a hundred and eight feet, and in breadth thirty four feet; and also two other stables, two slaughter-houses, and a cottage for dogs, containing in length eighty-four feet and in breadth thirty feet: which stables, slaughter-houses, and the other premises lie in the parish of St. Mary de Lode, in the said city of Gloucester, and outside the precincts of the said late monastery.

And we will that all these messuages, habitations, halls, etc., shall be hereafter called and known as 'the Palace of the Bishop of Gloucester;' and we create the said church the Cathedral Church of the Bishop of Gloucester and invest it with the dignities and honours of a Bishop's See.

We will that the Bishop of Gloucester may, from time to time, appoint a Vicar-General or Vicars-General, a Commissary or Comissaries, Registrar or Registrars in and throughout the said Diocese of Gloucester, in the same manner as the Bishop of Worcester was wont to do; and that such officers so appointed may receive all profits and emoluments pertaining to their offices in and throughout the City and Diocese of Gloucester, in the same way as the officers appointed by the Bishop of Worcester have been wont to do.

The Bishop of Gloucester shall have and exercise the same powers and jurisdiction within his diocese as the Bishop of Worcester has within his diocese. The Bishop of Gloucester to have an authorized seal for his affairs in the same manner as the Bishop of Worcester has.

In order that the Cathedral Church of Gloucester may be filled and adorned with fit and proper persons in every place and degree, we make and ordain our well-beloved chaplain William Jenyns, clerk, B.D., Dean of the said Cathedral, the Dean to have the first dignity in the said church next to the Bishop ; and we make and ordain our well-beloved chaplain Nicholas Wootton Archdeacon of Gloucester, the Archdeacon to have the second place next to the Bishop in the Cathedral ; and we make and ordain our well-beloved chaplain Richard Browne, clerk, Bachelor utriusque iuris, the first prebendary, and Henry Wyllys, clerk, B.D., the second prebendary, and John Rodley, clerk, B.D., third prebendary, and James Vaughan, clerk, M.A., fourth prebendary, and Edward Bannet, clerk, fifth prebendary, and John Huntley, clerk, late Prior of Tandriche, co. Surrey, sixth prebendary.

We will that the said Dean and six prebendaries shall be in themselves a body corporate, and that they shall be called 'the Dean and Chapter of the Cathedral Church of the Holy and Undivided Trinity of Gloucester ;' and that they shall be the Chapter of the Bishopric of Gloucester, and that the Chapter shall be annexed and incorporated with the Bishop of Gloucester, and that the said Dean and Chapter may have a common seal.

And, in order that the said Cathedral Church may be properly endowed, we give to the said Dean and Chapter of the Cathedral Church of the Holy and Undivided Trinity of Gloucester all the aforesaid site, enclosure, and precincts of the aforesaid late monastery of St. Peter of Gloucester with all its old privileges, together with all the chapels, lead, bells, cloisters, cemeteries, messuages etc., within the said enclosure, except the halls, etc., previously granted to the Bishop, and all the vases, jewels, ornaments, goods, chattels, and implements of the said late monastery.

We ordain that the Dean may appoint all inferior officers of the said Cathedral Church, and may punish or remove them at his pleasure, saving to us the right of presenting Dean, prebendaries, and poor people there living of our bounty whensoever vacancies shall occur.

We will that the Archdeacon of Gloucester shall be separated and exempt from the authority of the Bishop of Worcester, and we invest the Bishop of Gloucester with the same power in the Archdeaconry of Gloucester as the Bishop of Worcester has been wont to have. 18.

24.—1542, September 11.—Henry VIII. Whereas we, by an indenture under the great seal of our Court of Augmentations made between us and John ap Rice,[1] of London, gent., bearing date at Westminster the 12th day of [ ], in our 31st year, demised at ferm for 21 years to the said John the site of the manor of Abbot's Barton, co. Gloucester, lately pertaining to the Abbey of St. Peter of Gloucester, now dissolved, and also all those arable lands, containing 249 acres, lying divided in the fields of Tredworthe, Mylkyngfurlong, Great Rycrofte, Little Ryecrofte, Dysfurlonge, Brereley, Wynmylfurlong, and Pedmersfelde; and all that pasture, containing 21 acres, in the fields called 'the Hill' and 'Overhyde;' and also a pasture called 'the Oxeleas,' containing 20 acres, which pasture is several from the feast of the Purification until Michaelmas annually; and also the first crop of the meadow called 'Walham' and 'Sudmede' and of the pasture called 'Byrtley:' all of which were and are parcels of the said manor of Abbot's Barton and were, at the dissolution, in the hands, cultivation, and occupation of the late Abbot of the said Monastery. The great trees and woods growing on the same were reserved to us by the said indentures.

And whereas we, by another indenture under the great seal of the said Court of Augmentations between us and William Morgan, of Hempstede, in the County of the City of Gloucester, gent., dated at Westminster March 16, in our 33rd year, demised at ferm for 21 years to the said William Morgan all the pasture called 'Hackettysfeld,' containing 18 acres, in the parish of Hempsted aforesaid, together with all the tithes of the said pasture, reserving to ourselves all great trees and woods upon the same.

[1] He was one of the King's Commissioners to take surrender of the monasteries in Hampshire, Wilts, and Gloucestershire.

We, both on account of the sincere affection that we bear towards the City or town of Gloucester, as well as in consideration of the sum of £493 14s. 2d. paid into the hands of the Treasurer of our Court of Augmentations by the Mayor and Burgesses of Gloucester, have given and granted to the said Mayor and Burgesses the reversion and reversions of the said site of the said manor of Abbot's Barton, and of all and singular the premises granted to John ap Rice and William Morgan, together with the rent thereof, and all the site of the manor of Abbot's Barton in the County of the City of Gloucester, with all the trees and woods upon the same.

We have also given to the said Mayor and Burgesses all that our land and pasture called 'Snedeham' divided into three parts, containing 26½ acres, parcel of the demesne lands of Abbot's Barton, in the parish of Upton St. Leonard, in the County of the City of Gloucester ; and also all that cottage and garden now in the occupation of William Mitchell in the parish of St. Michael, in the said County of the City of Gloucester, lying opposite to Abbot's Barton, lately belonging to the said monastery of St. Peter of Gloucester ; and all that pasture called 'the Netherhyde,' parcel of the demesne lands of the aforesaid manor of Barton ; also a messuage and water-mill and a fuller's mill called 'Corneham Myll' and half a virgate of land, now or lately in the tenure of John Samford, lying in the parish of Stonehous, co. Gloucester, also parcel of the possessions of the late monastery ; and all that land and grove of wood called 'Snedegrove' containing four acres in Hertpury, parcel of the manor of Uppledon, in the said County of the City of Gloucester, also parcel of the possessions of the said late monastery ; and also all the site and chief messuage of the manor of Mattesdon, in the County of the City of Gloucester, lately belonging to the Priory of Llanthony near Gloucester, and all houses, buildings, dovecotes, stables, barns, gardens, orchards, lands, meadows, etc., in Mattesdon or elsewhere pertaining to the said site or chief messuage ; and also all that messuage or tenement called 'Pyperlase' in the suburbs of the City of Hereford, between the land of the Friars Minor there and the land of John Scudamore, Knight, deceased, late the property of the said Priory of Llanthony ; and also all that close, land, and pasture called 'Longmaddeley' in the parish of Llanthony near a lane called 'the Maddeleylane,' in the said County of the City of Gloucester, late the property of the said monastery of Llanthony.

We also grant to the same Mayor and Burgesses all our lands, tenements, etc., in Acornebury, co. Hereford, in the tenure of Jenkyn Gryffith, Richard Glasebury, Philip Brace, Roger Churcheyarde, William Pynnok, John Tailour, John Lynke, Thomas Gethyn, John Poleyn, John Gunny, Richard Vaughan, William Veyle, Margery his wife and two sons, and David Wylcockes, late the property of the Monastery or Priory of Acornebury, co. Hereford ; and also all the rectory and church of Acornebury, late the property of the said monastery or Priory; and all the tithes of corn, hay, wool, and lambs, oblations, and other profits whatsoever arising in Acornebury or elsewhere belonging to the said Rectory ; and the advowson, free-gift, disposition, and right of patronage of the vicarage of the parish church of Acornebury ; and also all the manor of Rowlston, and also all lands, tenements, etc., in Rowlston in the tenure of Richard Vaughan, senior, Agnes his wife, and Richard their son pertaining to the said manor of Rowlston ; and all our lands, tenements, rents, reversions, securities, tithes, etc., in Acornebury and Rowlston, as fully as the said late Priory held them, together with the court leets, views of Frankpledge, and all appurtenances, and assise and assay of bread, wine, and ale, chattels waived, estrays, free warren, and other rights and jurisdictions, as the said late monastery of St. Peter of Gloucester and the said late monastery of Llanthony, and the Priory of Acornebury had and enjoyed in the premises. The rectory of Acornebury and the said lands, etc., there, except three selions reserved to us in Trudeworth, extend to the annual value of 65s. 10d., and the manor of Rowleston and other possessions there and in Little Byrche extend to the annual value of 43s. 4d.

To have and to hold in capite by the service of the twentieth part of a Knight's fee; yielding to us annually for the lands late belonging to the Abbey of St. Peter of Gloucester 37s., for the meadow called 'Hackettisfeld' 2s. 5d., for the messuage called 'Pyperlase' 9d., and for all the other lands, etc., late the property of the said Priory of Llanthony 3s. 10½d., and for the Rectory of Acornebury and the lands, etc., in Acornebury 6s. 7d., and for the manor of Rowlston and lands, etc., in Rowlston and Byrche 4s. 4d. 19.

25.—1551, November 12.—Edward VI. Exemplification, under the Exchequer Seal, of certain letters patent of King Edward III., dated March 28, 1371., enrolled in the Originalia, 45 Ed. III., roll 5, to the following effect:

'The King to all to whom, etc., greeting. Know ye that we have given and granted, of our especial grace, for us and our heirs, so far as in us lies, to our well-beloved the Burgesses of the town of Gloucester a certain piece of land with appurtenances in the same town called 'Seynt Martyn Place,' containing 72 feet in length and 24 feet in breadth: to have and to hold to the same Burgesses and their successors of us and our heirs, by the services therefor of old due and accustomed, to make a tower in the same place for fixing and maintaining in the same tower a bell to denote the hours of the day and night for ever, commonly called 'clok;' rendering therefor to us and our heirs 12d. yearly at our Exchequer as an increment of the ferm of the town aforesaid by the hands of the Bailiffs of the same town for the time being at the accustomed terms or term of payment of the same ferm for ever. In testimony whereof, etc. Witness the King, at Westminster, March 28.' [1] 20.

26.—1552-3, March 1.—Edward VI. Recital and confirmation of previous charters. 21.

27.—1555, June 27.—Philip and Mary. Exemplification of the proceedings in Quo Warranto against the Mayor and Burgesses of Gloucester in Hilary Term, 1555.

In Michaelmas Term, 1553, Edward Griffyn, Esquire, the Queen's Attorney, came, on behalf of the Queen, into Court at Westminster, and produced an information against the Mayor and Burgesses of the City of Gloucester, which sets forth that the Mayor and Burgesses of Gloucester have, for the space of a year or more, used, and do still use, to have a view of Frankpledge of all tenants and inhabitants within the City; cognizance of pleas of all actions real and personal, and of all other pleas whatsoever arising within the said city; to have the correction of the Assize of Bread and Ale and of other victuals, and the examination of weights and measures and everything that pertains to a view of Frankpledge; to have waifs and strays, infangentheof, outfangentheof, pillory, tumbrel, and gallows, and the goods waived or forfeited and chattels of felons, fugitives, and outlaws, and of felones de se, deodands, treasure trove, escapes of felons, and other forfeitures whatsoever within the City aforesaid; and the return of all writs and precepts of the said Queen, and the execution of the same; and also to elect, constitute, name, and swear Sergeants at Mace, constables and other officers within the same City; and also to ordain, constitute, and hold a Court in their Council House, and to call many and divers men to their Council at the same Court, and to compel and swear them in of their Council, and to make and ordain in the same Council divers statutes, ordinances, and laws; and to hold a market on Wednesday and Saturday in each week with a balance to weigh wool and wool-thread; and to exercise the office of Clerk of the Market, and to do everything that pertains to the office of the Queen's Clerk of the Market: all which profits, commodities, uses, franchises, and liberties the said Mayor and Burgesses have usurped upon the said Queen for the space of a year or more, to the grievous damage, prejudice, and contempt of the said Queen; wherefore the said Edward Griffyn prays the advice of the said Court, and that the aforesaid Mayor and Burgesses be summoned to answer the Queen by what warrant they claim to have the liberties and franchises aforesaid.

The Mayor and Burgesses appear, by Leonard Sandell their attorney; and, having had oyer of the said information, they say that they do not think that the King and Queen will or should impeach and hinder them on the grounds above-stated; because they say that the City of Gloucester has been time out of mind an ancient borough or town, and that by the name of 'the Burgesses of the City of Gloucester' they have been wont time out of mind to use a View of Frankpledge of tenants and inhabitants of the borough twice a year, to wit, once within a month of each feast of Easter and once within a month of each feast of St. Michael, in the Guildhall there before the said Burgesses and their Steward; and also to have within the same borough the correction or assay of the assize of bread and ale and of other victuals, and the amendment of the same, the examination of weights and measures, the election of Constables and other officers in the View of Frankpledge for the good government of the said borough, and to swear them in for the utility of the borough and for preserving the peace of our Lord the King for the time being; and to have everything pertaining to a View of Frankpledge; and also to have within the same borough waifs and strays, infangentheof, outfangentheof, goods waived and forfeited, treasure trove; and also to have within the same borough a pillory, tumbrel, and gallows for the punishment and correction of all malefactors within the same borough; and to hold a Court in their Council House when occasion requires for all honest and lawful matters concerning the common utility of the borough; and to call and swear in divers men of their Council; and to make ordinances, laws, and provisions, and penalties for the public good and good government of the borough; and to have a market every Wednesday and Saturday in each week with balances to weigh wool and wool-thread.

The customs existed time out of mind until April 26, in the first year of King Henry III.,[1] who granted the burgesses by his charter that they should elect two burgesses to keep the bailliwick of the said borough; by virtue whereof the Burgesses elected Thomas Felde and John Blounte and presented them to the Chief Justice at Westminster; who were called 'the Bailiffs of the Borough of Gloucester.' The said Bailiffs and Burgesses, and their successors, held the same liberties, privileges, etc., as the burgesses had by prescription before the grant of the said charter until the charter of King Richard III., September 2, 1483, who granted them the privilege of electing a Mayor, and twelve Aldermen, incorporated the borough, and made it a County, changed the Bailiffs to Sheriffs, etc., etc.

Other charters are put in justifying the other privileges, and in the end their liberties are allowed. 22.

28.—1560-1, February 21.—Elizabeth. Recital and confirmation of previous charters.

Whereas the burgesses of the said city of Gloucester have humbly prayed us of our munificence and grace towards them to deign to grant them certain additional privileges, exceptions, etc., for the better government and the amelioration of the same city.

We therefore nominate our well-beloved Richard Pate, Esquire, Recorder of the said city during the goodwill of the Mayor and Aldermen, to execute, do, and exercise justice and all things pertaining to the office of Recorder by himself or by his deputy, who shall be called 'the Town Clarke.'

And we grant that from henceforth the said Recorder and the Mayor and Aldermen shall be Justices of the Peace for the County of the City of Gloucester, and no other Justices of the Peace shall exercise jurisdiction within the said franchise.

The Mayor and Aldermen may elect from time to time an able and discreet man as Recorder of the said City, such Recorder to take his oath of office before the Mayor and Aldermen.

We also grant that if any of the burgesses of the said city who shall be hereafter elected to the office of Mayor, Sheriff or Bailiff, Coroner, Steward, Chamberlain, Constable, or other inferior office of the City aforesaid (except the office of Recorder and Common Clerk) and having due notice of their election, shall refuse to serve, then the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council shall have power to commit the persons so refusing to gaol, there to remain until they will undertake the offices to which they have been elected, and to tax and assess fines upon such persons so refusing to serve, and to keep them in prison until they have paid the fines so assessed; which fines are to be converted to the use of the city.

We also grant that the Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen or four of them (of whom the Mayor or Recorder shall be one) shall array and arm the musters of the city, and assign them to keep watch and ward in the city and to defend the same whensoever we shall command it to be done; and no other commissioners of musters shall interfere or have jurisdiction in the city.

We also grant that the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council may make assessments for the necessary keeping, defence, and use of the said city without warrant from us.

We also grant them power and authority to receive and have, without licence from us, from all persons whatsoever, manors, messuages, lands, revenues, etc., which are not held of us in capite nor of any others by knight-service, provided that the said lands do not exceed the clear annual value of forty pounds, notwithstanding the Statute of Mortmain.

Moreover, wishing to provide for the safe keeping and custody of orphans in the same city and that their goods may be safely guarded during their minority, and that the said goods may be best disposed of for the profit and use of the said orphans during their minority, we grant that the Mayor and Aldermen shall have the custody and government of all orphans of all citizens and burgesses of the same city, and that they shall have power of receiving, levying, collecting, seizing, and keeping in the common treasury of the city by the Chamberlains of the City aforesaid all goods and chattels and debts and legacies within the City aforesaid pertaining to such orphans, and shall have power of using or expending the said goods and chattels for the best use and profit of the said orphans; and that they shall be charged with the said goods and chattels; and that they shall deliver up such goods and chattels when the said orphans be come of age, in the same manner and form as in the City of London in such cases. And that they shall have all actions on behalf of the said orphans, as is used in London.

The privileges in the former charters are not to be forfeited by non-user.

We also grant that, if any of the customs hitherto used in the said city shall be in any part difficult or defective, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council may provide a suitable remedy as often as shall be necessary, provided that such remedy shall be made in good faith for the ease of the people, be consonant with reason, and not opposed to our prerogatives or the statutes of the kingdom.

This charter shall be of as full effect and vigour as if everything specified in it were particularly set out as of our gift, and it shall be interpreted most favourably for the Mayor and Burgesses in case of difficulty or contradiction. 23.

29.—1580, June 20.—Elizabeth. Whereas our Commissioners under the Act passed in the first year of our reign have not assigned any wharf or quay for landing and shipping foreign goods either at Gloucester or above or below it on the coast or on the River Severn from Chepstowe to Welshrood, a distance of 120 miles, to the great damage of our city of Gloucester; we have, in consideration of the great population of Gloucester at this time, and for the convenience of the said city of Gloucester and of the city of Worcester and of the towns of Shrewsbury, Bridgenorth, Bewdley, Tewkesbury, Barkeley, and other places, granted to the Mayor and Burgesses of Gloucester that all those creeks from the said place called 'Welsherode' shall be called and reputed henceforth one of our ports for loading and unloading ships, and that the creeks of Gatcombe, Newnham, Barkeley, Tewkesburye, and all others from Welsherode shall be creeks pertaining to the said port. And that the common quay of Gloucester, commonly called 'the Kynges Kaye,' shall be a lawful and proper place for the loading and discharge of ships, lighters, or bottoms. [1] 24.

[1] In the margin are the illuminated arms of England and the old arms of Gloucester and another coat. In the Chamberlain's account for 1580-1 occurs the following entry: 'Allsoe paied unto Richarde Painter for gildinge of the crowne of the saied iron staffes and mendinge of the towne armes in the Patent for the Custome House;' 1500, fo. 207d.

30.—1604-5, March 2.—James I. Whereas our City of Gloucester is very ancient and populous and enjoys divers liberties and privileges, and Henry Darby, Mayor of the city, and the Burgesses of the same have prayed us to extend our royal grace and munificence towards them, and that we should deign to make the said Burgesses, by whatsoever names they may have been hitherto incorporated a body corporate and politic by the name of 'the Mayor and Burgesses of the City of Gloucester, in the County of the City of Gloucester.'

We grant that the County of the town of Gloucester shall be called 'the County of the City of Gloucester;' and that the said City of Gloucester shall be a free City of itself; and that the Burgesses, tenants, residents, and inhabitants of the city aforesaid shall be a body corporate and politic by the name of 'the Mayor and Burgesses of the City of Gloucester, in the County of the City of Gloucester,' with the usual powers of a Corporation. The Mayor and Burgesses shall have a common seal, with power to alter or change the said seal at their pleasure.

There shall be twelve of the burgesses of the city, to be elected in the same manner as heretofore, who shall be and shall be called Aldermen of the said city; of which twelve Aldermen one shall be annually elected Mayor; and that the other eleven Aldermen shall be assistant to the Mayor in all matters touching the said city.

And the Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen of the City aforesaid, or the greater part of them of whom we will that the Mayor for the time being shall be one, being assembled by public summons, shall have power to make and ordain from time to time reasonable laws, constitutions, decrees, and ordinances in writing according to their discretion for the good rule and government of the city aforesaid, and of all officers, ministers, artificers, inhabitants, and residents within the same and for declaring in what manner the said Mayor and Burgesses and all and singular officers, ministers, burgesses, artificers, and residents of the said city shall carry and conduct themselves for the public good and common utility and good government of the city aforesaid, and for the victualling of the same, and for other matters concerning the said city. And the said Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen shall have power to inflict such penalties and punishments by imprisonment or fine upon any persons offending against such laws or ordinances so made; and that the Sheriffs or other officers of the said city shall have power to levy such fines by distress or otherwise for the use of the said Mayor and Burgesses, without hindrance from us, and without rendering us any account thereof.

And we make the said Henry Darby Mayor of the said city, to remain in such office until the Monday after Michaelmas next or until another Mayor have been elected in his place. And we make Nicholas Overbury, Esquire, learned in the law, Recorder of the City aforesaid during his life, unless he be deprived of the said office for any reasonable cause, or resign it. And we appoint the said Henry Darby, and Luke Garnons, Thomas Machen, Henry Hassarde, John Cowdale, John Taylor, John Jones, Christopher Caple, Thomas Riche, Lawrence Wiltshere, John Baughe, and John Bruster, Aldermen of the city aforesaid for their life-time, unless they be removed for evil government.

The Mayor and Aldermen shall have power to elect yearly, on the Monday after the feast of St. Michael, one of the Aldermen to be Mayor of the city, and the Mayor so elected shall take the oath of office before his predecessor and the other Aldermen; and they shall have power to elect a Mayor in case the Mayor die or be amoved before the expiration of his year of office.

The Mayor and Common Council of the said city, provided that thirty at least of the Common Council be present, of whom the Mayor for the time being shall be one, shall have power to amove or expel any of the Aldermen aforesaid from their offices; and they shall have power to fill up the vacancies so created.

The Mayor shall have full power to administer oaths of office to all Aldermen and other officers of the city.

The Mayor and Burgesses shall have power to elect the Recorder, Sheriffs, Escheators, Coroners, Bailiffs, Chamberlains, Constables, and Sergeants at Mace within the city aforesaid.

Whereas Richard III. granted that the burgesses should have the cognizance of all pleas relating to lands and tenements lying within the said borough, both of Assizes of Novel Disseisin, Mort d'Ancestor, and of trespasses and other actions real and personal, we grant that the Sheriffs of the said city shall have authority to attach by their bodies all men within the same city minus sufficientes in all actions, pleas, and suits of debts, accounts, trespasses, detinue of cattle, actions on the case, etc., and in all other personal actions within the said city commenced in the Sheriffs' Court of the same city in the Tolsey (in le Tolesinet') of the said city.

The Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen shall be Justices of t e Peace within the said County of the City of Gloucester, and no other Justices of the Peace shall have jurisdiction or shall interfere there, and they may appoint and hold Sessions.

The Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen, and five or more of them (of whom we will that the Mayor and Recorder shall be two) shall be Justices of Gaol Delivery in the said City ; and the Sheriffs and Coroners of the city shall make return to the said Justices at the Gaol Delivery of all juries, inquests, panels, and attachments, and shall be attendant upon them in all things concerning such Gaol Delivery, and shall execute their precepts in the same manner and form as Sheriffs execute such precepts of the Justices of Gaol Delivery in any county in England. So that the said Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen shall arrest murderers, homicides, robbers, and other malefactors within the said city, and cause them to be imprisoned in the gaol of the said city until they be delivered by due course of law; provided that they do not proceed without a special mandate from us to the determination of any treason or misprision of treason.

The Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen, or the greater part of them (of whom we will that the Mayor shall be one,) shall have power to reasonably tax and assess, so often as shall seem necessary to them, all citizens, burgesses, inhabitants and residents of the City and County of the City towards the repair and maintenance of the bridges within the city aforesaid and the County of the City over the Severn, and for other necessary charges and expenses of the city, and to levy such sums by distress or imprisonment. And these our letters patent shall be full warrant and authority for them in this behalf.

No fraternity or gild in the city aforesaid shall have power or authority to make or ordain any laws, orders, statutes, ordinances, or constitutions to bind any of the burgesses of the aforesaid city, unless they have authority so to do granted them under the common seal of the city; and any order or statute made without such authorization under the common seal by any fraternity or gild in the city shall be null and void.

The burgesses may hold annually two fairs within the said city, the first fair to begin in the feast of the Annunciation [March 25], to last throughout that day and the two following days; and the other fair to begin on November 17, to last throughout that day and the two following days; together with a Court of Piepowder to be held during the time of the said fairs, with all liberties, tolls, stallage, pickage, fines, amercements, and other profits belonging to such fair or market or Court of Piepowder.

We grant the Mayor and Burgesses power to acquire manors, messuages, lands, etc., that are not held directly of us in capite, provided such manors, etc., do not exceed the clear annual value of £100: and we grant licence of alienation for the above purpose to all our subjects and bodies corporate.

We grant and confirm to the same Mayor and Burgesses all such manors, messuages, etc., customs, liberties, privileges, immunities, fines, amercements, jurisdictions, etc., as the said Mayor and Burgesses now have and use, or ought to have and use, or have had or used, at any time heretofore. 25.

31.—1626-7, February 22.—Charles I. A similar proëmium to that of preceding charters. We create the City and County a corporate body with full rights of a corporation, and grant them a common seal, with power to alter and change the same at will.

In order to remove ambiguity, we grant that the limits of the County of the City of Gloucester shall extend over the Hundreds of Dudston alias Duddeston and King's Barton and over the city or town of Gloucester and the suburbs of the same.

Whereas it has been the custom in the said city time out of mind to elect certain chief burgesses, sometimes more, sometimes less in number, to form a Common Council, we, wishing to fix with greater certainty the number of the said Council, do grant, at the request of the Mayor and Burgesses, that there shall be within the said city forty chief burgesses of the said city at least, to be elected in the manner specified below, who shall be called the Common Council of the City of Gloucester; and that twelve of the said Common Council shall be elected Aldermen; and that one of the said Aldermen shall be elected Mayor; and that they shall elect a person learned in the law Recorder of the said city.

The said Council to have power to make regulations for the good government of the city and other matters connected with the said city, by the majority of votes, the Mayor having a casting vote; and that they may inflict fines and penalties for failure to obey their orders, and the Sheriffs shall have power to levy for such fines. We appoint Matthew Prior, esquire, Mayor of the said city from this date until the Monday after the feast of St. Michael next; and Sir Nicholas Overbury, knight, Recorder; and John Jones, John Browne, William Hill, Edmund Clemence, Richard Smith, the aforesaid Walter Price,[1] Geoffrey Beale, Richard Beard, Henry Browne, Anthony Robinson, William Price, and Tobias Bullocke, Aldermen of the same city; and Thomas Hill and Thomas Pury, Bailiffs of the same city and Sheriffs of the aforesaid County of the City aforesaid. We confirm the elections of the present members of the Common Council, and we grant that the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council may elect so many others of the more discreet burgesses to complete the number of forty of the Common Council at least, or so many more as they may think expedient.

Whereas the charter of Richard III. provides that these elections shall be made by the twelve Aldermen and twelve of the more lawful and discreet burgesses, which words are dubious and of uncertain construction, we, to avoid such uncertainty, do grant to the Mayor and Burgesses that henceforth every year the Mayor, Aldermen, and members of the Common Council shall assemble on the Monday next after the feast of St. Michael the Archangel, in the Guildhall of the same, or in some other convenient place with the city, or so many of them as may be alive and able to attend, and the Mayor, Aldermen, and the senior Sheriff and so many others of the Common Council in the order of their election as shall make up the number of twenty-four, shall be electors of, and shall elect, the Mayor and other officers for the following year. The Mayor or, in his absence, the senior Alderman to have a casting vote. Then follow provisions for the amoval of such officers and the elections of fresh ones to fill their places or to fill up vacancies caused by death.

[1] This is obviously a mistake for Matthew Prior.

There shall be a Town Clerk within the said city to be elected by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council; and there shall be a swordbearer similarly elected to attend upon the Mayor, who shall carry before the Mayor a sword with a coloured sheath bearing our arms and those of the city aforesaid, or otherwise adorned. There shall be four Sergeants at Mace, each of whom shall carry a silver mace with our arms and those of the city on it before the Mayor and Sheriffs, according to the ancient custom of the said city. The Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council may commit to prison, fine, and disfranchise any person refusing to serve in any of the above offices except those of Recorder, Town Clerk, Sergeants at Mace, and Swordbearer. The Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen to be Justices of the Peace within the said city, and Justices of Gaol Delivery within the same.

The Mayor to be Escheator within the city, with power to make his account at the Exchequer by attorney: and to be Clerk of the Market within the same city; and to execute everything pertaining to the office of Steward and Marshal of our household within the same city.

The Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council may tax and assess the citizens for the maintenance of the bridge over the Severn and for other necessary charges on the town. No fraternity or gild shall make ordinances without license from the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council.

In amplification of the grant of Richard III., we grant that the Mayor and Burgesses shall have a Court in the city aforesaid to be holden every Monday before the Mayor, Sheriffs, and Bailiffs, and Stewards or Chamberlains, or before three or more of them (of whom we will that the Mayor and one of the Sheriffs or Bailiffs shall be two), and that they shall have cognizance of Assizes of Novel Disseisin, Mort D'Ancestor, and of all other real or personal actions concerning lands and tenements in the city aforesaid, and they shall have the same writs, procedure, and power in the said Court as they have hitherto had.

The Bailiffs of the City and Sheriffs of the County of the City shall hold the Tolsey Court for all pleas or matters arising within the city, (with powers as in James I.'s charter).

The Sheriffs may hold a County Court for the said County of the City monthly and their Tourn twice a year. All our writs concerning Gloucester shall be directed to the Sheriffs and to no other Sheriffs. The Sheriffs shall have power to appoint a clerk to receive recognizances of Statutes Merchant.

The Mayor and Burgesses to have chattels of outlaws, felons, and fugitives, and deodands, and all fines, ransoms, and amercements of all burgesses and residents of the city aforesaid.

Whereas the Mayor and Burgesses are at great charge in maintaining the walls, gates, and pavements of the said city and of two quays constructed of stone and chalk called 'the old' and 'the new quay' and of the bridges called 'the west bridge' and 'the forreyne bridge,' and of a great part of a causeway, 16 feet in height or so, raised on arches extending in length half a mile or so; and whereas, in consideration of the above burthens, divers letters patent have been made by our progenitors, for divers terms now expired, granting the said burgesses power to take certain customs of goods coming to the same city for sale, to wit, inter alia, of each horse or mare, ox or cow coming there for sale 1d., of six sheep, goats, or swine 1d., etc., and to receive divers other customs, tolls, murages, pontages, and tonnages there; and whereas it was enacted in the Parliament of Henry VII. holden at Westminster, on February 25, in the 19th year of his reign, that any person whatsoever who should thereafter take any impost from any of his subjects for boats and small ships (Anglice 'troughes or boates') or other vessels for any goods carried on the river Severn, should incur the penalties specified in the said act, and it was also provided that if any person or corporation should appear in the Star Chamber before the feast of the Ascension 1505 and should produce satisfactory evidence of his or their right to take tolls on the Severn, such person or corporation should then be entitled to levy such tolls on the Severn; and whereas also before and after the said feast of the Ascension mentioned in the said Statute, the Mayor and Burgesses of Gloucester presented a petition to the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor, and other Lords of the Council of King Henry VII., in the Star Chamber, in which petition the Mayor and Burgesses, in consideration of their great charges upon the walls, gates, and bridges aforesaid, claimed certain tolls and imposts levied by them time out of mind upon goods passing down the Severn; upon the consideration of which petition, and after examination of witnesses on behalf of the said Mayor and Burgesses, and on behalf of the Mayor and Citizens of Coventrey, and on behalf of the burgesses and inhabitants of Bewdley and Tewkesbury and of other places, it was adjudged, after mature consideration and with the consent of the parties above mentioned, that the burgesses of Gloucester should take of every citizen of Coventrey for each dole of wine and for each ton of other merchandize passing the Severn 3d., and that they should take the same toll of all other persons (excepting of the burgesses of Tewkesbury or others who may have made agreements with the Mayor and Burgesses of Gloucester), and that they should have 4d. of every ship or boat laden with timber, board, or lath, and 2d. of every vessel laden with firewood: we grant the said burgesses that they may levy such tolls on cattle, goods, boats, etc., etc., as they have hitherto been wont to levy.

Whereas it was enacted by 4 & 5 Philip and Mary that no person inhabiting a city or borough that is a County by itself, or in which any Justices of the Peace are appointed, should be compelled to make or take any muster outside the suburbs of the said city or borough or to appear before any person authorized by commission, unless the Mayor or chief officer of the said city or borough should be joined with the said commissioners; and whereas Queen Elizabeth granted by her charter that the Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen of the said city of Gloucester should have power to take musters and arrays, etc.; we do confirm the same privileges, and we grant that the Mayor and Aldermen shall have power to call out, arm, and drill the inhabitants of the said city whensoever it may be necessary, and they are authorized to appoint captains and officers for the same troops.

We will that, to remove doubt, the burgesses shall elect two Burgesses of Parliament who shall also be Knights of the Shire for the County of the same City.

We grant them the same city with all privileges, etc., to be held of us by the ancient fee-ferm of sixty-five pounds, and we confirm to them all their possessions, privileges, immunities, etc. 26.

32.—1657, August 4.—Oliver Cromwell, Lord Protector. Exemplification of Act of Parliament, 1656, granting the Cathedral of Gloucester, the cloisters, library, and Free School house there, and the residences of the Schoolmaster and Usher, to the Mayor and Burgesses of Gloucester, for the public worship of God, the education of children in learning, and for such other public and charitable uses as the Mayor and Burgesses may deem fit. 27.

33.—1672, April 18.—[1] Charles II. Whereas the Mayor and Burgesses of the City of Gloucester have surrendered to us under the common seal of the city our charter to them dated November 16, 1664, and they have prayed us to grant and confirm to them all the liberties and privileges contained in the charters of our progenitors, and that we should incorporate them : we therefore, in order that there may be in the said city a certain and undoubted mode of keeping the peace and of governing the people, grant that the said city shall be a city of peace and quiet ; and we do grant and declare that the city shall be hereafter known as 'the County of the City of Gloucester,' that it shall be a free city and county in itself, and that the citizens thereof shall be a body corporate by the name of 'the Mayor and Burgesses of the City of Gloucester,' with powers of a corporation and liberty to hold lands, etc., to plead and be impleaded, and to have a common seal, with licence to change the same at their will.

[1] A carefully prepared edition of the text of this charter and an English version of the same was published at Gloucester in 1834 by John Webb, under the title of The Charter granted by King Charles II. to the City of Gloucester, 4to. There is a full translation of this charter in Atkyns' Gloucestershire, p. 94, and in Rudder, Appendix, p. iv.

They may elect a Council of forty members, etc., and a Recorder, with definition of powers of the Council, etc., as in charter of Charles I. We nominate Henry Fowler, Esquire, Mayor, and William Morton, Knight, Recorder, and Henry Norwood, William Cooke, Duncombe Colchester, Henry Brett, William Selwyn, William Russell, Thomas Price, John Wagstaffe, the said Henry Fowler, John Batheus, Thomas Aram, and John Rogers, Aldermen of the same city, and William Lamb and Samuel Rose, Bailiffs of the said City and Sheriffs of the said City and County, and John Powell, Esquire, Robert Holford, John Marston, Francis Singleton, Arnold Aram, William Lambe, Samuel Rose, William Jordan, John Price, Thomas Lugge, Matthias Bower, Richard Stephens, Nicholas Phelps, Giles Webley, John Cromwell, John Campion, Joseph Ludlow, Walter Veysey, Joseph Phelps, Thomas Goslyn, Daniel Comelyn, John Perkes, John Webb, William Corsley, Cornelius Plott, Daniel Collins, Nicholas Lane, and John Bishop to be of the Common Council of the said City. If any one of the above Aldermen or Councillors was not a freeman of the city when the said charter was surrendered, he shall be admitted a freeman within one month after the date of the presents upon taking the oath prescribed. The Mayor and Council shall have power to fill up the number of thirty of the Common Council at least, or to increase the number up to forty. Similar clause to that in charter of Charles I. regarding the election of Mayor, Sheriffs, etc., on the Monday after Michaelmas yearly, with provisions for the swearing in, amoval, etc., of the Mayor, Coroner, Sheriffs, Chamberlains, and for the election of Recorder. The Mayor, Alderman, and Council to have power to expel any one or more of the Aldermen, and elect others in their steads, or to fill up vacancies caused by death, or to promote any member of the Council to a higher rank or seniority than he enjoys. They may elect a Town Clerk; we, however, appoint John Dorney, Esquire, to that office. They may have a Swordbearer and four Sergeants at Mace, etc., the charter proceeding to embody the remainder of the charter of Charles I.

The Justices in Eyre, Justices of Assize, Justices of Nisi Prius, and Justices of Gaol Delivery in the County of Gloucester, and Justices of the Peace in the said County in holding the sessions, and the Sheriffs of the said County in holding their County Court, may freely enter the said city and hold their courts there of any matters arising without the County of the City; and the Justices of the Peace of the County of Gloucester may take and receive within the said city informations and recognizances, and execute all other acts pertaining to their office; and our Commissioners of Sewers and Commissioners for charitable uses may also execute their commissions within the city aforesaid concerning matters arising without the said County of the City of Gloucester.

The Mayor, Recorder, Town Clerk, Aldermen, capital burgesses and other officers and ministers of the city and all Justices of the Peace shall take, before they be admitted to their respective offices, the oath of obedience and the oath of supremacy.

No recorder or Town Clerk to be chosen in the future shall enter upon their offices until they have been approved of by us.

These our letters shall not extend to grant or confirm the Hundreds of Dudston and King's Barton, and the townships within the said Hundreds, to be parcel of the County of the City of Gloucester, as in times past they have been, or to grant to the said Mayor and Burgesses any liberties, privileges, jurisdictions, etc., within the said Hundreds; but we do declare that these Hundreds shall henceforth remain parcel of the said County of Gloucester.

Nothing in this our charter contained shall be in any wise prejudicial to the Dean and Chapter of the Cathedral Church of Gloucester.

If at any time hereafter it shall seem expedient to us or our successors to remove any one or more of the Mayors, Aldermen, or Burgesses of the Common Council, or any other officers of the City and County of the City, except the Chamberlains, swordbearer, and sergeants at Mace, and to discharge them from their offices, and we shall signify such our will and pleasure by an order of the Privy Council, then immediately upon receipt of notice thereof the Mayor and Burgesses, or if it be the Mayor who has been so removed, the Aldermen and Common Council, shall proceed to a new election of a new Mayor, Alderman, Burgess of the Common Council, or other officer, in the place of such person or persons so removed. 28.

II.—Other Royal Charters and Letters.

34.—1229, June 26.—King Henry III. Grant, for the health of the soul of his father King John, to the Hospital of Saint Bartholomew of Gloucester and the Prior and Brethren and Sisters of the same, towards the sustentation of the poor there, of the Church of St. Nicholas, Gloucester. Dated at Gloucester. 31.

35.—1265, September 12.—King Henry III. We learn by an inquisition that we have caused to be made by Roger of Leyburn, Steward of our Household, that it would not be to the damage of our town of Gloucester if we were to grant to the brethren of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew a piece of land 16 yards in length by five yards in width for the widening of the chancel of their church at Gloucester: we do therefore grant the said land to them. 31 b.

36.—1276, December 11.—King Edward I. Appointment of Walter of Wymborne and Solomon of Ross Justices to take an Assize of Novel Disseisin arramed by the Prior of Saint Bartholomew against William, son of William Ege, concerning a tenement in Gloucester. 29.

37.—1294.—King Edward I. Two writs on one piece of parchment, being (1) a writ of Cui in uita, dated September 3, commanding John, Prior of St. Bartholomew, to render without delay to Christiana, widow of John of Wylton, a messuage in Gloucester, which she claims to be her right of the gift of Christiana Ouenald made to her in the lifetime of the said John, in which the said Prior has not entry except through the said John of Wylton who demised the said messuage to him, the said

Christiana his wife being unable to contradict him, as she says ; (2) a writ, dated May 17, to the Sheriff of Gloucester commanding him to summon 12 lawful men of the neighbourhood of Brunnesfeld to be before Master Adam Crokedayk and William Inge at a day and place to be assigned by them to recognize if William of the More, father of Geoffrey of the More, was seized on the day of his death in his demesne as of fee of a messuage, an acre of meadow, and a moiety of a virgate of land in Brunnesfeld, and if he died after the coronation of our father King Henry, and if the said Geoffrey is his next heir. And summon the Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, who holds the said land and meadow, that he be there to hear the said recognition. 32.

38.—1314, April 6.—King Edward II. Licence for the Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, Gloucester, to receive from William of Aston 8 acres of land in King's Barton and from Richard of Apperleye 3 acres of meadow in Elbrugge, and for the said William and Richard to give and assign the said lands, notwithstanding the Statute of Mortmain. 33.

39.—1314, September 16.—Queen Margaret (widow of Edward the First.) Recites preceding licence of her step-son, King Edward II., to the Prior of St. Bartholomew, and approves the same. Dated at Gloucester. 34.

40.—1317-18, March 7.—King Edward II. Licence to the Prior and Brethren of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of Gloucester to acquire land and rents to the annual value of 100s., notwithstanding the Statute of Mortmain. 34 b.

41.—1334-5, February 24.—King Edward III. Grant to the burgesses of Gloucester in aid of the paving of the said town of the following customs to be levied for seven years on goods coming to the town for sale: of each load of corn, ½d. ; of each horse, mare, ox, or cow, 1d. ; of each hide of a horse, mare, ox, or cow fresh, salted, or tanned, 1d.; of each cart carrying salted meat, 2d.; of five (salted) pigs (bacones,) 1d.; of six hams, ½d.; of a fresh salmon, ½d.; of a dozen of shad (alosae), 1d.; of each lamprey before Easter, 1d.; of six sheep, goats, or pigs, 1d.; of 10 fleeces, 1d.; of a hundred sheep-skins with the wool on, goat-skins, deer-skins, 1d.; of each hundred of lamb-skins, kid-skins, hare-skins, rabbit-skins, fox-skins, cat-skins, and squirrel-skins, ½d.; of each cartload of salt, 1d.; of each load of salt by week, 1d.; of each load of cloth, 1d.; of each whole cloth, 1d.; of each hundred of linen cloth, canvas, and Irish cloth,[1] 1d.; of each cloth of silk with gold of samite,[2] diaper, and baudekyn,[3] 1d.; of each cloth of silk or gold or chief of sendal afforced,[4] ½d.; of each ship coming to the town by the Severn charged with goods for sale, 4d.; of each dole of wine and ashes,[5] 2d.; of each load of ashes (cinerum), ½d.; of each load of honey, 1d.; of each barrel of honey, 4d.; of each sack of wool, 4d.; of each trussel[6] of cloth brought by cart, 4d.; of each load of cloth and other small things, ½d.; of each cartload of iron, 1d.; of each load of iron, ½d.; of each cartload of lead, 2d.; of each load of bark (tannum) by week, ¼d.; of merchandize sold by weight (auerium de pondere),[7] of a hundred, 1d.; of

[4] Sendal = Old Fr. cendal, a fine stuff of silk or linen, of which there were two descriptions, one called sendallum de cursu, meaning, apparently, sendal of ordinary thickness, and the other sendallum affortiatum, afforced or strengthened sendal. Chief seems to mean 'piece.' In the Wardrobe Account of Edward I., 1299–1300, p. 354, cindon' affortiatum and de cursu occur, which, being apparently the same as sendal, suggest that this is only an adaptation of Greek σινδών, a fine Indian muslin or cloth. Fleta, lib. ii. c. 12, § 2, says that the piece of sindon de cursu should contain 114 ells in length.

43.—1340, April 16.—King Edward III. Whereas Parliament has granted us for two years the ninth sheaf, the ninth fleece, and the ninth lamb, and the ninth of the goods of citizens and burgesses, and of the merchants a fifteenth; we grant that this shall not be drawn into a precedent; and we grant that all merchants denizens and foreign (except they be of the party of our Enemy) may safely come and go and sojourn in the realm, paying reasonable customs; and we have also pardoned and released forfeitures of chattels of felons, fugitives, escapes of prison, fines, issues, forfeitures, and amercements of murder, all manner of trespasses of the Forest, wastes, reliefs, scutages, committed prior to our embarcation for Brabant, and all aids pour faire fitz chivaler and pour fille marier, and all debts and arrears of ferms, etc., prior to the beginning of our 10th year, and other concessions as set forth in the Statutes of the Parliament held this year. 37.

44.—1340, October 17.—King Edward III. to the Mayor (sic), Bailiffs, and Burgesses of Gloucester. Whereas we have granted to our son Prince Edward, to acquit the debts contracted by him whilst acting as our deputy during our absence abroad, inter alia, the remaining £500 of the subsidy of a ninth of the movables of the citizens and burgesses of Salisbury, Bristol, Gloucester, and Oxford; and whereas we have commanded the Abbot of Gloucester, the Receiver of the said Subsidy in Gloucestershire, that he should cause your portion of the subsidy, or at least £60 1s. 8d. thereof, to be paid to our said son: we do command you that, having levied the said ninth with all possible speed, you do pay it to the said Abbot. 29 b.

45.—1343, July 25.—King Edward III. Licence to William of Bohun, Earl of Northampton, to assign the advowson of the church of Newenham to the Prior and Brethren of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, Gloucester.[1]

46.—1345, October 1.—King Edward III. to the Bailiffs and men of Gloucester. We have, at the request of Thomas de Bradeston and in aid of the repairing and sustentation of the walls of the town aforesaid, granted to you that, from this date until the end of seven years, you may take of goods for sale coming to Gloucester by land or by water the following customs: from each horse load of corn for sale, whatsoever kind it may be, or of malt, ¼d.; of each horse and mare, ox and cow, ½d.: of each dole of wine, 2d.; of each pipe of wine, 1d.; of each hide of a horse or mare, ox or cow, fresh, salted, or tanned, ¼d.; of five (salted) pigs (bacones), ½d.; of ten hams, ½d.; of ten sheep, goats, and hogs, 1d.; of ten fleeces, ½d.; of each hundred of sheep-skins with the wool and of goat-skins, 1d.; of each hundred of lamb-skins, kid-skins, hare-skins, rabbit-skins, fox-skins, cat-skins, and squirrel-skins (squirellorum pelles), ½d.; of each hundred of gray-work[2] 6d.; of each quarter of salt, ¼d.; of each horseload of cloth, ½d.; of each whole cloth of the value of 40s., 1d.; of each trussell of cloth brought by cart, 3d.; of each hundred of cloth of worsted (de Worthstede), 2d.; of each cloth of worsted called 'couerlyt' of the value of 40s., 1d.; of each hundred of linen cloth of Dilesham,[3] 1d.; of each chief of cendalle afforced,[4] 1d.;

[1] This is sealed with the King's Seal of Absence (Wyon's Great Seals, No. 59—60), which was to be used by Commissioners during the King's absence abroad. It is here, however, used by the King himself after his return, possibly because his ordinary seal was not at hand.

and of other cendalle, ½d.; of each hundred of salted muluelli or durus piscis,[1] 2d.; of each cartload of fish, ½d.; of each horse-load of sea-fish, ½d.; of each salmon, ¼d.; of each dozen of lampreys (lampredarum), 1d.; of each barrel of sturgeon (sturioun), ½d.; of each last of herrings, 6d.; of each horseload of ashes, ½d.; of each horse-load of honey, 1d.; of each sack of wool, 2d.; of each cart-load of tan by week, 1d.; of avoir-du-pois (merchandize sold by weight), to wit of the hundred, 1d.; of each pisa[2] of tallow and grease (unctus), 1d.; of each quarter of woad (waide), 2d.; of two thousand leeks (alei) or onions, ½d.; of each bale (bala) of cordwain (cordewanni), 3d.; of each hundred of bordus,[3] ½d.; of each quern (mola), ½d.; of each hundred of faggots (centena fagettorum), ¼d.; of each thousand of turves, ¼d.; of each cartload of brushwood (busca) or timber, by week, ½d.; of each hundred of tin, brass, and copper, 2d.; of each boat laden with ale, brushwood (busca), turves, or any other things whatsoever for sale exceeding the value of 20s., 1d.; of each trussell of merchandize of any kind exceeding the value of 10s., ½d.; of each ware not named here of the value of 5s. and over, ¼d. 39.

47.—1376, May 20.—King Edward III. to our Escheator in the County of Gloucester. Whereas it was found by an inquisition taken before our Escheator that William Bruyn gave to the brethren and sisters of St. Margaret a piece of land in Gloucester without our licence after the passing of the Statute of Mortmain; by virtue whereof the said land was taken into our hands; and afterwards the Master of the said House appeared in our Chancery and pleaded that the said William long after the Statute of Mortmain, to wit in the 36th year of our reign, bequeathed, by his will made at Gloucester and lawfully proved after his death, the said land to the said Hospital for the term of fifty years next ensuing, and so the said Master holds the land until the end of the said term when the reversion falls to John Salcombe, cousin and heir of the said William; and it was afterwards found by inquest that the facts were as stated: we do therefore command you to amove our hand from the said land and to restore it with the profits thereof received in the meantime to the said Master.[1] 40.

48.—1387, July 19.—King Richard II. We have granted licence to William Heyberare and John Heed to give and assign a shop and appurtenances in Gloucester, which is not held of us, to the Prior of St. Bartholomew, in exchange for a messuage and 10 acres in Herdewyk, which is also not held of us. 41.

49.—1403, September 18.—King Henry IV. to Thomas Holgill, Clerk of the Market of the King's Household. Whereas our progenitors have granted to the Burgesses of Gloucester certain liberties and acquittances, which charters have been confirmed by us: we charge you that you allow the said Burgesses to enjoy and use before you all the liberties and acquittances contained in the same charters. 42.

50.—1407, November 19.—King Henry IV. Recites that the possessions of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew between the bridges of Gloucester are insufficient for the sustentation of the Prior or Warden and the brethren or chaplains of the Hospital and of the poor men and women therein dwelling and for the maintenance of the buildings; that the charters and evidences relating to the possessions of the said Hospital have been burnt, abstracted, and lost by the carelessness of the late Priors or Wardens and brethren or chaplains of the said Hospital, whereby, unless we assist them, great damage and disinheritance may accrue to the said Hospital; we therefore confirm to the said Hospital its possessions, and we take under our protection the collectors of alms for the use of the said Hospital together with the Hospital itself and its goods. We also grant that the brethren or chaplains of the Hospital may, upon each vacancy, elect a Prior or Warden of the said Hospital without obtaining a royal licence, and their election shall be confirmed by the Bishop without a royal licence. During vacancy no Sheriff or Escheator or other royal officer to intermeddle with the Hospital, except that the Escheator may take a simple seisin at the gates of the Hospital on behalf of the King, the said Escheator to leave the Hospital immediately he has taken the said seisin. We also grant that the said Hospital shall be quit of granting pensions or corrodies at our request. 9.

51.—1424, November 5.—King Henry VI. General Pardon to Stephen Riche, Prior of the House of Poor People of St. Margaret, near Gloucester, and the brethren and sisters of the same. 43.

52.—1433-4, February 5.—King Henry VI. to William Westbury and Thomas Rolf, appointing them Justices to take an assize of novel disseisin arramed by Stephen, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, against John Hamelyn and John Luke, Bailiffs of Gloucester, and the Community of the same regarding a tenement in Gloucester. 44.

53.—1434, October 28.—King Henry VI. grants in aid of the paving of the town of Gloucester that the burgesses may, from the date of this grant until the end of five years next following, take the following customs of goods for sale coming to the said town, to wit:[1] of each horse-load of corn, ½d. ; of each horse, mare, ox, or cow, ½d. ; of each horse-hide, mare's hide, ox or cow-hide fresh, salted, or tanned, ¼d. : of each waggon or cart bound with iron loaded with goods for sale, 1½d. ; of each cart carrying salted or fresh meat, 1d. ; of five hogs (bacones), ½d. ; of each fresh or salted salmon, ¼d. ; of each lamprey before Easter, ½d. ; of ten sheep, goats, or pigs, 1d. ; of a hundred goat-skins, deer-skins, hind (bissa) or fallow deer skins (damus et dama), ½d. ; of each hundred of lamb-skins, kid-skins, hare-skins, rabbit-skins, fox-skins, cat-skins, and squirrel-skins, ½d. ; of each horse-load of cloth, ½d. ; of each whole cloth, ½d. ; of each hundred of linen cloth, canvas, Irish cloth, Galway cloth, and Worstede (= worsted) cloth, ½d. ; of each cloth of silk, of gold, of samite, diaper (diaspre), and baudekyn, ½d. ; of each cloth of silk or of gold and chief of sandal afforced, ¼d. ; of each boat laden with goods for sale, 1d. ; of each dole of wine and ashes (cineres), 1½d. ; of each horse-load of ashes, ½d. ; of each horse-load of honey, 1d. ; of each trussel of cloth brought by cart, 2d. ; of each horse-load of cloth or other small articles for sale, ½d.; of each cart of tan by week, ¼d.; of avoir-du-pois,[2] to wit of a hundred, 1d. ; of each peisa of tallow and grease, 1d. ; of each quarter of woad, 2d. ; of each hundred of alum, copperas, argol, and verdigris, ½d. ; of two thousand onions, ¼d. ; of 8 shauis of garlic[3] (allium), ¼d. ; of each milliare of herrings, ¼d. ; of each horse-load of sea-fish, ½d. ; of each hundred of bord, ½d. ; of each quern (mola), ¼d. ; of each milliare[4] of faggots (fagettorum), 1d. ; of ten milliaria of

[1] Most of the terms in the following list are explained in the notes to No. 41, p. 51.

[2] See above, page 51, note 7.

[3] The words shauis allei mean sheaves or bundles of garlic.

A milliare means a thousand, but it frequently meant, as in the case of herrings, 1200, that is, ten of the long hundreds of 120. See Fleta, lib. ii. c. 12, § 2.

turves, ¼d. ; of each quarter of salt, ¼d. ; of each peisa of cheese and butter, ½d. ; of each cart-load of hay, brushwood (bussorum), or coals by week, ½d. ; of each quarter of tan, ¼d. ; of each trussell of any kind of ware exceeding the value of 2s., ¼d. ; of each hundred of tin, brass, and copper, 2d. ; of each hundred gads (= rods) of steel, ½d. ; of each hundred of Aburden,[1] 1d. ; of each hundred of stockfish, ½d.; of ten stone of hemp, ¼d. ; of ten lagenae[2] of oil, ½d. ; of every other article of sale of the value of 5s. here not specified, (wool, hides, and fleeces, and iron and lead excepted), ¼d.[3] 45.

54.—1434-5, February-March.—Certificate under the seal of the Court of the Marshalsea of the King's Household, of the allowance of the right of the burgesses of Gloucester to have execution of a precept of this Court, sitting at Tewkesbury, in the town of Gloucester in the case of Thomas Malmesbury, chaplain, against Robert Crompe and Juliana his wife in a plea of trespass within the verge of the King's Household.[4] The defendants are distrained in 5s. to appear, but they fail to do so ; whereupon the burgesses claim this forfeiture, which is allowed them.

In another case between Thomas Compayn, of Gloucester, and Roger Webbe, of the same, the burgesses of Gloucester claim to have cognizance of this plea (since both parties resided in the town). This is also allowed them. 30.

55.—1435, July 4.—King Henry VI. Exemplification, at request of John Andrewes, of the entry relating to

[1] Aberdeen, a name given to some description of stockfish imported from Aberdeen.

[2] Lagena generally means a gallon.

[3] This grant is entered on the Patent Rolls, 13 Henry VI. See Calendarium Rotulorum Patentium, p. 278 b.

[4] The Steward and Marshall of the King's Household had cognizance of all offences committed within a radius of twelve leucae of the King's person. This radius was known as the 'verge.'

Gloucester in the Nomina Villarum, 9 Edward II., which sets out that Margaret, Queen of England, is Lady of the Hundred of Gloucester, and that there is the Borough of Gloucester in the said Hundred of Gloucester, and that there is no other town in the same Hundred. 46.

56.—1445, June 12.—King Henry VI. to the Sheriff of Worcester. Edmund, Abbot of St. Peter of Westminster, complains to us that Stephen, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, has unjustly disseised him of a freehold in Longedon: we charge you to re-seise the said freehold and to keep it in our peace until a day to be appointed by William Yelverton and Richard Byngham; and in the meantime cause 12 men of the neighbourhood to view the said freehold and cause them to appear before the said William and Richard to make a recognition.[1] 47.

57.—1458, July 12.—King Henry VI. to the Sheriff of Gloucester. Stephen, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, complains that Thomas Bokelond and John Hilley, Bailiffs of Gloucester, and the community of the same town, have unjustly disseised him of his freehold in Gloucester: we therefore command you to cause the said freehold to be re-seised and to be in our peace until such day as Richard Byngham and Richard Chokke shall cause to be made known to you; and you shall cause 12 men of the neighbourhood to view the said freehold, and shall cause them to appear before the said Bingham and Chokke to make a recognition.[1] 48.

58.—1483-4, February 5.—King Richard III. to the Sheriff of Gloucester. Whereas we have, on the second of September last past, created a County of the town of Gloucester, and have made the Bailiffs of Gloucester Sheriffs within the same County, we do charge you that you permit the Mayor, Sheriffs, Bailiffs, and Burgesses of the town of Gloucester to have, use, and enjoy all the liberties, privileges, etc., contained in our letters patent of the above date, not molesting or aggrieving them in any wise against the tenor of the said letters patent. 49.

59.—[1487-8.]—Copy of petition of the Mayor and Burgesses of Gloucester to the King, shewing that they hold the said town at a fee-ferm of £65, for which sum they answer by their two Bailiffs, and the burgesses pay the money in effect of their own goods, to their undoing considering that they have nothing certain whereof the said sum may be levied ; and remembering the great ruin and decay of the habitations of the said town, decayed within a few years to the number of 300 and more dwelling places ; and considering the other great costs and charges that they have to bear in keeping and maintaining the walls, gates, and towers of the town and in repairing and maintaining the great bridge over the Severn : which bridge, walls, and towers are now very ruinous and likely to fall unless your grace be shown to us : for aid and succour whereof we made petition at your last being in Gloucester, when it pleased you to command us to attend your Highness in London at your better leisure. May it please your grace to consider the premises and that the said town is the chief defence of great part of this coast of this realm adjoining the marches of Wales, and to grant us release of [blank] li. parcel of the fee-ferm rent of £65, and that it may please you to sign the ensuing bill with your signature, so that it may be sufficient warrant and discharge for the making, sealing, and delivering of the same. [In English.]

The King to all to whom, etc., greeting. Whereas the Mayor and Burgesses of Gloucester hold of us their town or borough at a fee-ferm of £65 per annum ; and now it is shown to us by the plaintive information of John Hilley, now Mayor of that town, and the Burgesses of the said town that their progenitors in times past flourished in manifold ways and the town was so inhabited everywhere that an unoccupied house could hardly be found, so that the fee-ferm of £65 could be paid out of the profits and revenues arising within the said town without raising it from their own goods ; the said town in recent times has fallen into such ruin and desolation and the inhabitants have fallen into such poverty by misfortune and inconveniences, labours and expenses incurred, and so remain now, so that a great part of the town remains desolate and destroyed and destitute of persons able to fulfil the office of Bailiffs, in so much that the men and burgesses of the said town and especially the Bailiffs daily sustain such great and unbearable loss in paying the said fee-ferm of £65, so that the Bailiffs for the present year and those for several preceding years have been compelled to make up at least £30 per annum of the said £65 out of their own goods ; on which account very many of the burgesses who seemed able, from their good manners and means, to fill the office of Bailiff have left the town with their goods when they thought that the time was coming for them to be elected Bailiffs, and others intend following their example, so that in a short time there will be no men with sufficient means to fill the said offices left in the town ; and it is very probable that they will hardly be able to answer to us for any part of the fee-ferm of the town unless we graciously assist them : wherefore they have prayed us that we should deign to extend our grace to them : We therefore, considering the premises and knowing them to be true, do pardon and release [blank], parcel of the aforesaid £65 of the fee-ferm of the borough, and we grant that they shall be quit of the said [blank sum] from the feast of St. Michael last past henceforth for ever without impeachment.

60.—1492, June 19.—King Henry VII. Exemplification of Henry the Fourth's letters patent in favour of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, dated November 19, 1407 (see No. 50), at the request of Andrew Whitmay, Prior of the said Hospital. 50 b.

61.—1510-11, February 6.—King Henry VIII. Exemplification of a recovery in the King's Bench, Hillary term, 1510-11, by writ of entry on a disseisin in the post[1] brought by Giles Brugges, knight, against John Tymrell of 40 acres of pasture in Horton. 51.

62.—1513, June 3.—King Henry VIII. We have committed, by the surety (mainprize) of Thomas Taylowe, of Gloucester, gentleman, and Robert Milton, of the same, gentleman, to John Pakyngton, gentleman, the custody for 20 years of 2 virgates of land in Sandherst, in the County of the City of Gloucester, formerly held by Richard Avenel, and of a messuage, 7 acres of land, and the third of an acre of meadow in Langford, in the said County, that formerly belonged to Thomas Inglys, attainted of High Treason, August 16, 1402. 52.

63.—1526, May 24.—King Henry VIII. Exemplification of a fine levied in the Court of King's Bench, a month from Easter, 1526, between John Coke, demandant, and Giles Kyn and Elizabeth his wife, deforciants, of land in Ebbley and Stonehowse. 53.

64.—1542, April 2.—King Henry VIII. Lease to John Jenyns, Esq., of the King's Household, for 21 years, of the site of the Grey Friars' house at Gloucester, now dissolved, with all houses, buildings, etc., and a close of pasture in Gloucester extending from the city wall on the east to the wall of the cemetery of the Grey Friars on the west and from the lane called 'Marylane' on the north to the church of the said Grey Friars on the south, parcel of the possessions of the late

[1] A species of writ of entry so called from the words post disseisinam quam B. iniuste et sine iudicio fecit (after the disseisin that B. made unjustly and without judgment). Writs of entry were often sued out in collusive suits to secure the title of a person to whom an estate was conveyed.

house; and a garden in Southeyate Strete between the tenement inhabited by Thomas Morgan and the wall of the Grey Friars' house, also parcel of the possessions of the late house; reserving to the King all such buildings there as the King by his commissioners has ordered to be demolished and carried away: yielding therefore an annual rent of 33s. 53 b.

65.—1543-4, February 4.—King Henry VIII. Licence to John Jenyns, of Halfenacre, co. Sussex, Esquire, to alienate to Thomas Payne, of Gloucester, merchant, the house and site of the late Friars Minor, commonly called 'the Grey Freres,' in the City of Gloucester, in the parish of Christchurch, extending in length from the walls of the said city on the east to the walls of the cemetery of the late house of the said late Friars on the west, and in breadth between the lane called 'Marlelane' on the north and the church of the said Friars House on the south: which extend to the clear annual value of 33s. 54.

66.—1544, June 13.—King Henry VIII. Grant to Francis Bryan, Knight, and Matthias Coltehirste, gentleman, of all the house and site of the late Priory of Tawnton, in the County of Somerset, and of the demesne lands, etc., of the said Priory. 55.

67.—1551, May 17.—King Edward VI. Exemplification of the enrolment in the Chancery Rolls of a judgment delivered on February 12, 1550-1, upon a petition exhibited by William Messenger, gentleman, plaintiff, against the Mayor and Burgesses of Gloucester, defendants, as to the right and title of certain manors, messuages, etc., in Poddesmeade, Hempsted, Elmore, Bageworthe, and Bentham, in the County of Gloucester, in the tenure or possession of Thomas Tayllour, and of other lands in Brokworth now in the tenure or occupation of John Wryght, and also of a small messuage or tenement in Gloucester at the east end of the tenement called 'the Crowne' late in the tenure of William Hawkes, and of other messuages, lands, etc., in Stonehowse, Ebley, Oxlynche, Standyshe, Westbury, and Chaxhall, in the County of Gloucester. After consideration of the answer of the Mayor and Burgesses and the examination of witnesses, it appeared to the Court that Joan Coke, otherwise called Dame Joan Coke, formerly the wife and executrix of the will of John Coke, sometime Alderman of Gloucester, made a tripartite feoffment of the above lands and messuages to the Mayor and Burgesses to the use and intent that a Free School and all the other things specified in the will of the said John Coke and in the said feoffment should be maintained and continued for ever. It is therefore adjudged that the said Mayor and Burgesses have the said manors, lands, etc., without molestation from the said William Messenger, and he is ordered to deliver up to them all the charters and muniments in his possession concerning the said lands. 56.

68.—1555-6, January 20.—Philip and Mary. Licence to William Hasard to alienate a messuage or shop in Gloucester in the parish of All Saints' near the High Cross to Henry Kyng. 57.

69.—1559-60, February 12.—Queen Elizabeth. Pardon for Geoffrey Wheteley, of Gloucester, for acquiring from Robert Bankes and John Bankes his son four cottages under one roof with three gardens adjoining in Watryngstrete in the parish of St. Oswald in the suburbs of Gloucester, and a garden near Brydelane in the suburbs aforesaid, which are held of us in capite; and we grant that he shall hold the premises of us.[1] 58.

70.—1564-5, February 22.—Queen Elizabeth to Sir Henry Sydney, Knight, Lord President of the Council of Wales, Henry, Lord Berkeley, Gyles, Lord Chandos, Sir Nicholas Arnold, Knight, Sir Giles . . . . Nicholas Pointz, Knight, Sir Thomas Chamberleyn, Knight, Sir

Atkins, Esquires, Henry Carsey, Thomas Dennys, William Cecill, John Guyes, Gyles Reade, Thomas Semys, Anthony Wye, John Woodward, gentlemen, William Messenger, Lucas Garnans, Sancky, gentlemen, Thomas Seames, Aldermen of Gloucester, and . . . . . of Lassington, gentleman. Whereas the wall, ditches, banks, weirs, etc., etc., by the coast of the sea and marsh ground within the limits of the water called 'Leddon' in the County of Gloucester are out of repair and the passage of ships is obstructed, we appoint you justices for surveying and repairing the same. 58 b.

71.—1565, April 18.—Queen Elizabeth. Licence to Geoffrey Wheteley, of Gloucester, to alienate four cottages under one roof and three gardens adjacent in Watringstrete in the parish of St. Oswald in the suburbs of Gloucester, and a garden near Brydelane in the said suburbs to William Golston. 59.

72.—1576, August 20.—Queen Elizabeth. Commission to Edward, Earl of Lincoln, Baron of Clinton and Say, K.G., Great Admiral of England, Ireland, and Wales, and of the Isles of the Sea, etc., and to George Bromley, Esquire, Justice in the Counties of Carnarvon and Merioneth, David Lewis, Esquire, LL.D., Lieutenant-General of the said Admiral, Judge and President of the Court of Admiralty, William Leighton, Esquire, John Lloide, LL.D., Vice-Admiral of the said Admiral in the County of Carnarvon, Maurice Wyn, Richard Vaughan, John Wyn ap Hughe, Roland Puleston, Esquires, Edmund Meyrick, LL.D., and Evan ap Robert ap Howell, John Wyn Owen, William ap Richard, Roland Griffith ap Robert, Hugh Manney, Griffin Lloide, Humphrey Wyn, Robert Vaughan, and Henry Salisburye, gentlemen, appointing them Justices to hear and determine Admiralty cases in Carnarvon and Merioneth. 59 b.

73.—1588, April 2.—Queen Elizabeth. Licence to Richard Fowler to alienate a messuage, a dovecote, three gardens, an orchard, four acres of land, and three acres of pasture in the City of Gloucester to Thomas Seames, gentleman, Edward Michell, gentleman, and Ancelin Sandford, gentleman.[1] 60.

74.—1607, July 10.—King James I. Commission to Henry, Bishop of Gloucester, Sir George Singge, Knight, one of the Barons of the Exchequer, Sir Henry Poole, Sir John Poyntz, Sir John Tracy, Sir Henry Winston, Sir John Hungerford, Sir Edward Wintour, Sir William Cooke, Sir George Huntley, Sir Henry Blomer, Sir Thomas Seymor, Sir Robert Woodroffe, Knight, the Dean of Gloucester, Thomas Edward, LL.D., Nathaniel Dodd, D.D., the Bishop's Chancellor, the Mayor of Gloucester, Richard Atkins, Richard Daston, Thomas Stephens, William Dutton, Gyles Reade, John Throckmorton, Arnold Oldisworth, Clerk of the Hanaper, William Barnes, Nicholas Overbury, William Guyes, John Delabere, Jasper Selwyn, Gyles Forster, William Bourchier, Richard George, Esquires, Luke Garnons, John Jones, Esquires, Aldermen of Gloucester, Henry Robyns, Esquire, Lawrence Bridger and Henry Aisgill, Prebendaries of Gloucester, empowering them, or four of them, to enquire, by virtue of the Statute 43 Elizabeth, entitled 'an Acte to redresse the mysimployment of landes, goodes, and stockes money hertofore given to charitable uses,' what lands, tenements, rents, etc., etc., have been given for charitable uses in the County of Gloucester, and the City and the County of the City of Gloucester, and of all abuses, misemployments, etc., of the same. 61.

75.—1610-11, February 5. Exemplification by James I. of the proceedings in Easter Term, 31 Elizabeth, between William Beane and John Payne. 62.

76.—1613, April 1.—King James I. Licence to Edward Michell, gentleman, to alienate a messuage, a dovecote, three gardens, an orchard, four acres of land and three acres of meadow in Gloucester to Thomas Pury. 63.

77.—1616-17, January 4.—King James I. On account of the want of good governors the revenues of the Hospital of St. Mary Magdalene, at Gloucester, have been much wasted, we ordain that the government of the said Hospital shall be in the Masters and Governors of the said Hospital, which shall henceforth be called the Hospital of King James; that they be a body corporate with a common seal; and that they shall have and enjoy the possessions of the said Hospital (which are duly specified) for the benefit of the inmates, and shall have in addition a pension of thirteen pounds from the King, to be called 'King James' pension,' as was formerly paid by the Kings of England. 64.

78.—1626, October 11.—King Charles I. Commission to William, Earl of Northampton, Lord President of the Council within the Marches of Wales, and to the Mayor of Gloucester, Sir John Bridgman, Knight, Justice of Chester, Sir Nicholas Overbury, Knight, another Justice of Chester and Recorder of Gloucester, Sir William Gwyes, Knight, John Powell, Esquire, and the Aldermen of Gloucester, to receive loans for the carrying on of the war in Germany. 65.

79.—1627-8, March 11.—King Charles I. Commission to Richard Beard, Esquire, Mayor of Gloucester, John Johnes, Esquire, John Browne, Esquire, and William Hill, Esquire, Aldermen and Justices of the Peace of the same city, to proceed according to the justice of martial laws against any of the soldiers and mariners returned from the 'Isle of Ree' and billeted in the City and County of Gloucester, who shall commit any robbery, felony, mutiny, or other offence, or who shall desert, which offences by martial laws are punishable with death, empowering the said commissioners to proceed to the trial, condemnation, and execution of such offenders, according to martial laws; for which purpose they are to cause to be erected such gallows or gibbets as they shall think fit, thereupon to cause the offenders to be executed in open view. 66.

80.—1633, October 31.—King Charles I. to the Mayor and Burgesses of Gloucester. Commission to collect subscriptions for the repair of St. Paul's Cathedral, London. 67.

81.—1639-40, February 8.—King Charles I. Exemplification of return of 26 Henry VIII. in the Firstfruits office in the Exchequer of the possessions of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew. 67 b.

82.—1641-2, January 27.—King Charles I. Commission to John Scriven, Mayor of Gloucester, Henry Brett, Esquire, Thomas Pury, John Brewster, John Webb, William Lugg, William Singleton, William Caple, James Powell, Thomas Hill, John Scriven, Dennis Wise, Nicholas Webb, and Leonard Tarne, Aldermen of the same, to administer the oath of supremacy and the oath of allegiance to all suspected persons who shall come and pass through the said city. 68.

III.—Local Deeds and Charters

83.—[1175-1190].—Grant from William of Saucei[1] to Ranulf Pinel of the land in Gloucester that Robert Hoch held, lying between the house of David and the house of Roger the Welshman (Walensis). Witnesses: William, son of Stephen, Sheriff of Gloucester;[2] Adam, son of William; Pagan Haket; Thomas the Chaplain of St. Nicholas; Nicholas Auenel;[3] Richard Burgeis; Walter, son of Peter; Ernald, son of Dunning; Ern[ald] his son; David, son of Ern[ald]; Adam the Red; Henry the Bald (Caluus); Henry Cadifer; Walter Cadifer; Robert the Taillur; Roger, son of Richard the Frenchman (Francus); Nicholas the Girdler (le Seinter); Pagan the Lorimer; David Permiter; Roger the Welshman (Walensis); William, son of Ouenat.[4] 75.

[1] Saucei in an Old French representative of Latin salicetum* (class. salictum), 'thicket of willows,' French saussaie, but is, in this case, derived from a Norman local name, such as Saussaye (Salceium, Salcei), which occurs as a local name in the departments of the Eure and the Seine-Inférieure, Normandy. In 1198 the above William of Saussaye (de Salceto) was being sued by Geva (= O. E. Giefu), wife of the above-mentioned Roger the Welshman (Walensis) in a plea of land; Rotuli Curiae Regis, i. 138. The suit concerned land in Wirmeton, co. Hereford, according to vol. ii. p. 233 (A.D. 1200). In 1189-90 William de Salceio was defendant in an action regarding land in Begbrook, co. Oxford; Rot. Pipae, 1 Ric. I., pp. 109, 110; Madox, History of Exchequer, i. 213, note u.

[2] William, son of Stephen, was Sheriff of Gloucester 22 Hen. II. (1175-6) to 1 Richard I. (1189-90); 31*st Report of Deputy Keeper*, p. 289.

[3] Nicholas of Avenel acted for the Sheriff of Gloucestershire, William Marshall, in 1192-3 and 1193-4 and again in 1199-1200 and 1200-1. In the following years the Earl Marshall appointed another deputy, so it is probable that Nicholas died at this time. Avenel is the present Avesnelles, canton and arrond. of Avesnes, dep. of the Nord, (Picardy).

[4] The seal bears an equestrian figure. William, son of Uvenad, became a canon of Llanthony Priory before 1192; Cart. S. Petri Gloucest., ii. 6.

84.—Ab. 1180.—Grant from Elias [1] Giffard to the Lepers of St. Sepulchre, near Gloucester, for the souls of his father and mother and for the health of his own soul, of a load of wood in his wood of Brumesfeld, such as a horse can carry, to be taken daily in winter, to wit, from the feast of All Hallows [November 1] until the feast of the Holy Cross [May 3]; and in summer from the feast of the Holy Cross to the feast of All Hallows three cartloads of wood weekly. Witnesses: Peter of Piritona;[2] William Bastard; Patrick de Calc';[3] John Francheual';[4] Geoffrey, the Abbot's nephew;

[1] Written 'Eliis' in MS. Elias Giffard, the father of the above Elias, was alive in 1163; Cart. S. Petri, ii. 158. About this time he became a monk in St. Peter's Abbey; idem, i. 69, 117. His son Elias accounted, in 1165-6, for £197, the fine for his land; Rot. Pipae, 12 Hen. II., p. 79. In 1167 he confirmed his mother's grant to the Abbey; Cart. S. Petri, i. 117; ii. 158. He appears to have succeeded his father as early as 1162; Id. ii. 160, 157. His father and mother were married about 1127; Round, Ancient Charters, part 1, no. 12. He died 2 Ric. I., 1190-1; Dugdale, Baronage, i. 500. The seal bears an equestrian figure of Elias Giffard.

[2] Peter of Periton, in 1189-90, paid 5½ marks for a disseisin; Rot. Pipae, 1 Ric. I., p. 168, co. Glouc.

[3] This appears to mean de Calce = Caux. The Pays de Caux, Pagus Caletensis, Pagus Calcegius, Calceium, Normandy (Seine-Inférieure), is, apparently, not meant, although it is called Chalz, Chauz by Wace, Roman de Rou, writing about this time. The village of Caux or Cahours, on the Scardon, dept. of the Somme, is probably meant. Hence Patrick de Calce is called de Cadurcis in the Cart. S. Petri, i. 342. Hugh of Cahours, the brother of his grandfather Pain, is called 'Hugo de Cadurcis' in the Cart. S. Petri, i. 343, 'de Chaurces,' idem, i. 303, and 'de Calco,' A.D. 1163, idem, iii. 237. In 1189-90 Patrick de Chaurcis accounted for 40s. for scutage in Gloucestershire; Rot. Pipae, 1 Ric. I., p. 167. Patrick de Caorcis received £50 as a gift from the King in 1200-1; Stapleton, Norman Rolls, ii. 502. He is mentioned in 1203 as 'de Caturciis;' Rot. Litterarum Patentium, pp. 23, 24, 25. From the form Chaurces (Latinized as de Chaurciis in Rot. Chartarum, p. 133, etc.), the form Chaworth, which already occurs in Robert of Gloucester, line 11,500, has descended. The name is generally derived from Cahors in Guienne (dept. of Lot), but it comes much more probably from the less-known Caux or Cahours in Normandy.

[4] For 'Franchevaler,' Latinized as Liber Miles in Rotuli Curiae Regis, ii. 139, A.D. 1199, and not from Francheval, which occurs as a local name in the dep. of the Ardennes. John Francchevaler's widow Wymark gave land in Longford to St. Peter's Abbey before 1205; Cart. S. Petri, i. 95, 229, 354.

Walter Toki ; Walter, brother of Elias[1] Giffard ;[2] Gilebert Giffard ;[3] Elias[1] de Drois ;[4] Symu[n]d del Pu. 76.

85.—Ab. 1180.—Grant from Sigar the priest and all the parish of St. Nicholas to Roger the Weaver (Telator) of a moiety of the land that belonged to Alward Capie, which Alward bought of Baldwin, son of the priest; rendering therefor to the Church of St. Nicholas 8d. a year and 4d. to the Abbot (of St. Peter) at Hocgchedai. Roger gave to the said Sigar 6s. for this grant for the entry for the part that is next the house of Godid, daughter of Baldwin. Witnesses ; Jordan beyond the Bridge (ultra Pontem) ; Ærnald, son of Dunnig ; Ernis, son of Thured ; Alfred (Æluered) beyond the Bridge ; Wlierd beyond the Bridge ; Osmund the Fuller (Fullo) ;[5] Nicholas, son of Seuare ;[6] Thomas, son of Ernis ; Ernald the Goldsmith; William the Shieldwright (Umbonarius); Maurice ; Augustine the Weaver (Telator) ; Alfred (Alured) the Weaver. 77.

86.—Ab. 1190.—Grant from Sibilla, daughter of William the Girdler (le Seinter), to Alice her niece of her land lying between the land of Arnald, son of Dunning, and the land of Nicholas the Girdler ;[7] which land Helyas the

[2] Walter Giffard in 1186 gave land to Gloucester Abbey ; Cart. S. Petri, ii. 156. See also pp. 65, 153 sqq. of the same work.

[3] Gilbert Giffard, brother of Walter Giffard, gave land to St. Peter's Abbey about 1186 ; Cart. S. Petri, ii. 154, 155 ; i. 117.

[4] Drois = Dreux, (from Durócasses), dep. of Eure-et-Loire, called Droies (Rot. Curiae Regis, i. 221), Drocis, abl. (Ordericus Vitalis, ii. 38, 19 ; 444, 6), and Dreues, Droes (Wace, Roman de Rou), in the twelfth century. This Elias of Dreux occurs in a deed of 1148-1179 ; Cart. S. Petri, i. 244.

[5] Possibly the Osmund, the Reeve of Gloucester, who accounts for the ferm, etc., of Gloucester, in 1164-5 ; Rot. Pipae, 11 Hen. II., pp. 12, 14. He again accounts for the ferm of Gloucester in 1165-6 ; Rot. Pipae, 12 Hen. II., p. 80. He is probably Osmund Kes, the father of Henry Keys, mentioned in Cart. S. Petri, i. 190 ; ii. 4.

[6] Seuare may represent the genitive Seuarae. But the name is masc. in Earle, Land Charters, 257, 9 ; 258, 9 ; 261, 11 ; representing an O.E. Sǣ-fara*.

[7] There is a grant from the above Sibilla to Walter the Doubler (Dublarius) of the above land in Cart. S. Petri, i. 184.

Dean,[1] of Hamme, gave her for her service. Witnesses: Thomas the Limner (Illuminator); Nicholas the Girdler; Offre the Goldsmith; Nicholas Muet; Walter the Mercer; Stephen, son of Atheline; Walter, son of Roger; Walter, son of Walter; John the Girdler; David the Parmenter (Parmentarius). 103.

87.—Ab. 1190.—Copy, in a hand of circa 1230, of grant from Ralph Muchegros,[2] with the consent of his wife Iuta, to Stephen, son of Odo, of the land and messuages that belonged to Wibert, father of the said Ralph, in the street going towards the church of St. Mary. Witnesses: Robert Wace; Edwiia; Roger, son of Matilda; William Uuenad;[3] Richard the Skinner (Pell[iparius]; Richeman, son of Erm'; David the Skinner (Pell'); Stephen cor[am] Reg[e]; Ralph the Goldsmith; Roger Lanc'; Walter Child; Odo, father of Stephen; Richard Rugge. 'These were present at the drinking in the house of the said Ralph of Muchegros.'[4] 82.

88.—1199-1200.—Grant from Geoffrey of Metteresdune,[5] son of Maurice of Metteresd[un], with the assent of his wife and the consent of his son Thomas, and of Thomas Carbunel, Abbot of Gloucester,[6] his lord, to Waleran the Chaplain, of Burttune, of a messuage at Sandebruge that John of the Lane (de la Lane) held, with the same four acres of land that the said John held of the [1] Helias the Dean is mentioned between 1185 and 1191 in Cart. S. Petri, ii. 48, 56, and, without date, at ii. 137.

[2] This name is derived from Mussegros, in the commune of Écouis, arrond. of Les Andelys, dep. of the Eure, (Normandy). In 1205 Richard Mucegros gave 20 marks and a palfrey to the King to obtain the acquittance of his brother Ralph Mucegros, who had committed an offence against the Forest; Rotuli de Finibus, p. 294, co. Glouc.

said Geoffrey with the said messuage. Witnesses: John, Dean of Gloucester;[1] Ernis the Chaplain; Henry, the Chaplain of Holy Trinity; Master Edmund; Master Thomas; Simon of Matteresdun'; Thomas of Matteresd[un]; Walter Thoki; Geoffrey of Liletun;[2] Philip Carbunel; Osbert of the Grove;[3] Maurice of Snedham;[4] Roger Burd'. 78.

89.—Ab. 1200.—Sale and release by Rann[ulf] Pinel to Thomas, son of William of Lond', of his right in the land that Robert Hoch held in the parish of St. Nicholas, lying between the land of Richard Waggare and the land of Roger the Welshman (Walensis); which land the said Ranulf bought of William of Saucei.[5] Witnesses: John Draper and Maurice Durant, Reeves of Gloucester; Roger the Chaplain of St. Nicholas;[6] Richard the Burgess; Henry his brother; Richard, son of William; Helias the Palmer; William Bretun; Walter of Banneb[uri]; Walter the Writer; Herebert Fisticus;[7] William Oþen; William the Lorimer; Hugh the Clerk, son of Milo; Euerad Gunter. 223.

90.—Ab. 1200.—Duplicate of the preceding. 224.

91.—Ab. 1200.—Grant in fee-ferm from G.,[8] Prior of Lontonia near Gloucester, and the Convent of the same, John of Bortun, Dean of Gloucester, witnesses a charter of 1175-90; Cart. S. Petri Glouc., ii. 81; and another in 1196; i. 288.

[2] Geoffrey of Lilletune (Lillington) is mentioned in 1221; Pleas of the Crown, co. Glouc., ed. Maitland, pp. 12, 103.

[3] Osbert of the Grove, of Gloucestershire, is mentioned in Oblata Rolls, 3 John, A.D. 1201-2, p. 159. In the same year he paid a fine of half a mark that he might not accompany the King over the sea; Rot. Cancellarii, p. 43.

[4] Maurice of Snedham (printed Sredham) occurs in the Gloucester Plea Rolls of 1221, p. 103.

[5] See above, No. 83, p. 70, delivered with the above to the grantee.

[6] On July 5 or 6, 1203, King John presented his chaplain Robert to the church of St. Nicholas, then vacant; Rot. Litterarum Patent., pp. 31, 34 b. The date of this charter would, therefore, appear to be between John's charter of April 1, 1200, by which the two Reeves were authorized, and July, 1203.

[7] Apparently intended for Fiscicus = Physicus, 'leech, physician.'

[8] Geoffrey of Henlowe is described as Prior of Llanthony in 1192 and 1197. See Cart. S. Petri, i. p. lxxvii. and ii. p. 7. He held this office until to Richard Mei of land in Holy Trinity lane between the land of Lady Katherine[1] and the land of Roger Musserun. Witnessed by the Chapter of Lanthony and the Halimote (Halimotum) of St. Owen (Audoënus).[2]

[1] Probably the Katherine, wife of Walter [Toki ?], who paid 63s. 4d. to the King in 1189-90 in order that she might have the debts due to her husband; Rot. Pipae, 1 Ric. I., p. 165.

[2] This form proves that St. Owen is here, as generally throughout the country, the Frankish Saint Audoen, called by the French Ouen. This name has no connexion with the Welsh Owen, but is the Frankish representative of the Teutonic name Auda-wini-z*, represented in English by Edwin. The Welsh Owen, older form Eugein, on the other hand, is from an original Eu-genios, which may represent the Greek Εὐ-γένιος, Eugene, or an independent Celtic Esu-genjos; Rhys, Celtic Heathendom, p. 63, note 2.

[9] Aubamara is a partial Latinization of the form Aubemare, which occurs in Wace, Roman de Rou, ed. Andresen, ii. 365, line 8543. It is the present Aumale, arrond. of Neufchâtel, dep. of Seine-Inférieure, (Normandy). In 1189-90 Robert of Albemara owed £4 7s. 10d. for an amercement of the Forest ; Rot. Pipae, 1 Ric. I., p. 164, co. Glouc. His widow Hilaria is mentioned in 1223 ; Exc. e Rot. Fin., i. 106. In the year 1233 his son William fined for having seisin of his father's land in Reworthin (Ruardean), which his father held by the serjeanty of keeping the bailliwick of the said Reworthin in the Forest of Dene ; Exc. e Rot. Fin., i. 240.

95.—Ab. 1200.—Grant from Richard Pancefot, son of George Pancefot, of Heffold,[1] to the Leper Brethren of St. Sepulchre, Gloucester, of an acre of meadow in Widehamme, near the meadow of Walter of Paris, for the health of his soul and for the souls of his father George and of his mother Isabel. Witnesses: Milo Folet, parson of Hesfold; Thomas Pic, chaplain; William the Chaplain; Reginald, the chaplain of Hesseleswurd'; Vincent the Chaplain; John Pancefot, brother of the donor; William Pancefot; Hernald the Reeve of Hesseleswurd;[2] William of Nedeweine; Humfrid; Nicholas; Osbert of Berrow (de Berga); William of Pudebroc;[3] Simon of the Town (de latune). 84.

[1] Read 'Hesfold,' as below, = Hasfield. Richard Pancefot, lord of Hasfield, released, in 1200, to the Abbey of St. Peter his right in the pasture of Langridge in Maisemore; Cart. S. Petri, i. 98, 354; ii. 5. He occurs, in 1199, in the Rotuli Curiae Regis, i. 224; ii. 47. In 1210 he was with King John at Carrickfergus in Ireland; Rot. de Praestito, p. 200. He was sued by Walter Toky in 1221 for illegally distraining his goods; Pleas of Crown, ed. Maitland, p. 25.

[2] Arnald of Esselewurthe (Ashleworth) was accused of procuring the murder of Pollard the Forester, his wife's lover. His chattels were seized by Richard of Mussegros, who acted for William Marshall the Sheriff in 1190-1 and 1191-2 and was Sheriff himself in 1207-8. The latter was probably the time when Arnald's crime was committed. He and other parties to the crime died before the judicial eyre of 1221; Maitland, Plea Rolls, pp. 70, 127.

[3] Called William, son of Adam of Pudibroc, in Cart. S. Petri, ii. 5, circa 1200 (cp. i. 98). Nicholas of Pudibrok, probably the 'Nicholas' who witnesses this deed, was a surety of Joan, wife of Arnald of Ashleworth, in the case described in note 2; Pleas, p. 127 (misprinted 'Cudibroc,' p. 70).

[4] Written 'del Mans' in MS. From Le Mans, dep. of the Sarthe, the capital of Maine.

[5] Richard of Mussegros (see above, page 73, note 2) was a collector of the subsidy in Gloucestershire in 1207; Rot. Litt. Pat., 72 b. in length by the land of John Garwi, and near the land of Robert, son of Suein, to the Severn.[1] Witnesses: Walter, son of Wibert; Richard of Kenefare; Ernald of Waleswurthe; Gocelin, his son; Ernald of Esseleswurthe; Robert of Hages. 97.

97.—Ab. 1200.—Grant from Salerna of Bruernia to Richard of Michegros of an acre of land in the long meadow in length next the land of Robert, son of Suein, and reaching to the Severn.[2] Witnesses: Henry of Bares; Ernald of Waleswort; Gocelin his son; Milo his brother;[3] John his brother; William of Bares; Odo his brother; Robert of Ketifort; Herbert, son of Gocelin of Waleswort;[4] Thomas, son of Gocelin. 99.

98.—Ab. 1200.—Grant from Henry, son of Hunfred of Hasfeld,[5] to the Prior and Brethren of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of Gloucester, of an annual rent of 6d., which he was wont to receive from them for an acre and a half of meadow and a parcel on the Hurste, and for another acre on the Severn called 'Lawrence's acre.' Witnesses: Ernald of Asselewurthe; Henry of Cors;[6] Henry the Forester, of Meysmor';[7] Richard of Sanford; John of Eldresfeld; William the Farrier (le Ferrur);[8] William of the Town (de la Tone);[9] Nicholas the Clerk. 236.

[1] This land was in Brewern, in the parish of Sandhurst. See below, Nos. 124, p. 89; 125, p. 90. See also p. 79, note 2. Richard Pancefot paid 100s. for this grant.

[2] This is, apparently, her dower in the preceding grant.

[3] Frequently called 'Milo of Sandhurst' in the other deeds, and in the Plea Rolls of 1221, p. 101.

[4] Herbert of Walsworth is mentioned in the Plea Rolls of 1221, pp. 93, 101, 103, 132.

[5] Called Henry Umfray in Cart. S. Petri, ii. 6, circa 1200 (cp. i. 98).

[6] Henry of Corse is mentioned in the Pleas of 1221, pp. 21, 122, 123, but the events referred to are of earlier date.

[7] See Cart. S. Petri, ii. 6, 22, 27, circa 1200 (cp. i. 98).

[8] The suit and landgavel of 11s. of the land that had belonged to William the Farrier were granted to St. Peter's Abbey by the Archbishop of York in 1218, as part of an exchange of land for the Abbey to enlarge its court towards St. Oswald's Priory; Register of Archbishop Gray of York, Surtees Society, p. 277.

[5] A Robert, son of Fordric (= O. E. Frōd-rīc), was slain in the Hundred of Westbury before 1221; Pleas, ed. Maitland, p. 80 bis.

102.—Ab. 1200.—Grant from Geoffrey of Dena[1] to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, Gloucester, of 6d. rent to be received from Alfred the Forester near the spring of Piletut. Witnesses: Roger the Chaplain of Westbir'; Michael, the Chaplain of Blecheduna;[2] Richard of Pipilintuna; Richard of Bleched[un].[3] 86.

103.—Ab. 1200.—Grant from Peter of Piritunia to Reginald Runell of his land and house in Grantelone. Witnesses: Henry Kais', Reeve of Gloucester; Walter Hut; Adam the Red; Erniet, son of Ingeleis; Henry the Bald; Richard Draper; Arnald, son of Cutilb[ert]; Richard the Red; Maurice, son of Godef[rey]; Warin the Saddler (Sellarius); Reginald, his brother; Robert Spicer; Gillebert, son of Arkebolt, pot';[4] John the Clerk, son of Richard the Draper. 87.

104.—Ab. 1200.—Grant from Richard of Hida, with the consent of his wife Edid', to the Leper Brethren [of St. Sepulchre] of a curtilage of Hida of the croft that is nearest to St. Sepulchre, measuring in breadth 30 feet[5] and in length as much as the said croft, for the souls of his father and mother and for the fraternity of the Leper Brethren. He also gives to the Chapel of St. Sepulchre another curtilage of the said croft next to the curtilage that he gave to the said Lepers, of the same breadth and

[1] His widow, Petronilla of Stanway, is mentioned in the Plea Roll of 1221, pp. 79, 130.

[2] This seems to be Blaisdon. A Baldwin of Blechesdune of the Hundred of Westbury is mentioned in the Plea Rolls of 1221, p. 77. The Blechesdone of the Domesday Survey, i. 154 a, col. 1, is, apparently, Bletchingdon, Oxfordshire.

For explanation of this phrase, see below, page 100, note 4.

[2] Knisteton = O.E. Cnihta-tūn, Knighton, the strong guttural pronunciation of O. E. medial h being occasionally represented by s, owing to the influence of French orthography, which also accounts for the spelling Teffort= Stafford. Ralph of Knighton died in February, 1220-1; Annals of Worcester, in Annales Monastici, iv. 412.

[3] The name of this family is derived from the hamlet of St-Jean-d' Abbetot, in the commune of La Cerlangue, canton of Saint-Romain, arr. of Le Havre, dep. of Seine-Inférieure. Geoffrey of Abbetot gave the King, in 1200, the sum of 100 marks for a demise of the manor of Hanley ('Enley') and the Forest of Malvern; Rot. de Oblatis, p. 67. See also Rot. Chartarum, p. 80 a. In 1209-10 he and two others owed 2000 marks for having the custody of the land of Wilekin of Beauchamp, their Lord, for four years; Rot. Pipae, 11 John, co. Worc., in Madox, Hist. of Exchequer, i. 844 n.p.

124.—Ab. 1210.—Grant from Richard of Muchegros[2] to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of Gloucester and the Brethren of the same of three acres of meadow in Browernia on the Severn; which three acres he holds of Walter of Le Mans.[3] He also gives the following rents in Gloucester: from Robert the Red, 8d.; from Richard Hernis, 6d.; from Richard, son of William, 3½d.; from Thomas Tholi, 1¾d.; from Cecily Wlyard, 1¾d. The total of the gift is 9s. 9d.;[4] whereof 4s. are to be assigned to the maintenance of a lamp in the said Hospital; 4s. 4d. to be spent in shoes for 13 poor people of the said Hospital; and the remaining 5d. is to be put as the beginning and in aid of five beds in the said Hospital, which undertaking he will take care to fulfil. He also gives them 12 acres of land that he holds of Roger of the Wood (de Bosco), whereof 6 acres lie next to the field of Haderlega and 6 acres next to Westgraue;[5] which land is worth 4s., to be added to the 5d. for the beds. He makes this grant for his soul and the souls of Hellaria, daughter of William Folet, and of the infantes of the said Richard and Hellaria. Witnesses: Herebert of Muchegros; Richard Panceuot; William of Dernef[ord]; Richard of Haþerl[eg]; Richard the Burgess; Richard the Red; Helias the Palmer; William Fernagut.[6] 201.

[2] The seal has an equestrian figure of donor.

[4] This total must include the land hereby conveyed as well as the rents. The sums that follow only amount to 8s. 9d.

[5] Above, p. 83, No. 110.

[6] 'Fernagut' is written 'Ferag[u]' in No. 111, p. 83, above. It is derived from Latin Ferracutus ('sharp iron or sword'), Old French Feragu, and is the name of a giant in the Song of Roland. See Rajna, Contributi alla Storia dell' Epopea, in Romania, xviii. 21. The spelling Fernagu is common in Old French; Wachter, Roland and Vernagu, Berlin, 1885, p. 31. The above William received a grant from his brother Henry Ferragu of land in Abbot's Barton; Cart. S. Petri, i. 190.

125.—Ab. 1210.—Confirmation by William of the Park[1] of the gift that Richard of Muchegros made to the Brethren of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of Gloucester, to wit, three acres of meadow that he bought of Walter of [Le] Mauns near the meadow of Richard the Palmer and the land of John Garuui and the land of Robert, son of Suein.[2] Witnesses: Ralph Musar;[3] Hilebert of Greinuile;[4] Henry of Miner' ; Rodulf of Wiletun;[5] Richard the Burgess ; Richard the Red ; John Draper ; Geoffrey the Clerk, who wrote this charter. 98.

126.—Ab. 1210.—Grant from Alexander of Delbruge to William Wischard, his son, for his service and homage, of 18 acres of arable (lucrabilis) land in Telbruge: whereof six acres lie in Tornis ; six in Hust ; and six in Botme.

[1] William of the Park occurs as a witness in 1196 ; Cart. S. Petri, i. 288. In 1220 he granted a rent of 6s. to the Abbey ; Id., ii. 30 ; i. 99. This grant was confirmed by his son in 1223, William being at that time a monk ; Id., ii. 29. He is mentioned in Select Pleas of the Crown, i. 80 (Selden Society).

[2] In Brewern. See preceding charter.

[3] In 1191-2 Ralph Musard, of Gloucestershire, owed £100 for licence to marry where he wished, and for the fine for his land ; Rot. Pipae, 3 Ric. I., in Madox, History of Exchequer, ii. 224. He became Sheriff of Gloucester on July 8, 1215 ; Rot. Litt. Pat., p. 148 b. He filled this office until 1225. He died in 1230 ; Exc. e Rot. Finium, i. 199, 203. A life of him is given by Foss, Judges, ii. 419.

[4] Ylbert (=Hildebert) of Greinville (one of the Norman Grainville's) demised land in Leighterton to Gloucester Abbey for 14 years from Hockday, 1217 ; Cart. S. Petri, i. 356. Engelard of Cigogné imprisoned Ilbert of Grenvilla and took 20 marks of him ; Plea Rolls of 1221, p. 42. The passage is so obscurely worded that it is doubtful whether he was arrested for having spoken evilly of King John or for some cause unknown.

[5] Ralph of Wileton (Wellington, co. Hereford) agreed, in 1210, with the Abbot of Gloucester concerning pasture in Abload ; Cart. S. Petri, i. 169. In 1214-15 the Bishop of Worcester recovered from him lands in Easton and Ablington ; Annals of Worc., in Annales Monast., iv. 404. He erected at his own expence the Chapel of St. Mary in the cemetery of St. Peter's Abbey and endowed two chaplaincies therein, 1224-1226 ; Cart. S. Petri, i. 27, 59, 120 ; ii. 146, 188; iii. 279 ; Annals of Worc., iv. 419. He gave to the Abbey lands in Longford, in Abload, and Ablington ; Cart. S. Petri, i. 59, 220, 353 ; ii. 188. He is frequently referred to in the Close Rolls, being described as Constable of Bristol Castle between 1224 and 1226 ; Rot. Litt. Claus., i. 624, 625, etc. ; ii. 103, etc. The Bishop of Worcester settled disputes with his heirs in 1240 ; Annals of Worc., iv. 432.

[4] On May 28, 1220, Geoffrey of Dicheford paid a fine in order to be let out on bail, he being then in prison for the murder of Henry, son of Ralph le Poer, of which he was appealed by Roger le Poer and William le Poer; Exc. e Rot. Fin., i. 48; cp. also i. 50. Roger, however, did not prosecute his appeal; Plea Rolls of 1221, p. 30. Poher is the Old French Pohier, Poier, a native of the district of Poix in Picardy (dep. of the Somme), or, by extension, of Ponthieu. See La Chanson d'Antioche, ed. Paulin Paris, i. 5, note 1. The form Poher is used by the Anglo-Norman Benedict of St. Maure, Chronique des Ducs de Normandie, 19,735, 35,255, (12th cent.)

135.—Ab. 1210.—Grant from Thomas Toly to William Russell, smith,[1] of his land under Colstalle in the Smiths' Street (in uico Fabrorum), between the land of Alric and the land of Adam Gunulf. The dimensions are given. Witnesses: Adam the Welshman (Walensis), John the Red, Reeves;[2] John of Gosedicsh; Adam the Goldsmith; Ralph the Goldsmith; William the Burgess; Aliric (sic) the Smith; Ralph of Thudeham; Walter Budde; Adam Spillecute.[3] 120.

136.—Ab. 1210.—Grant from Richard, son of William the Burgess, of Gloucester, to the infirm Brethren of St. Margaret without Gloucester of an acre of arable land of his tenement of Longeforde; to wit, half an acre between the land of Robert Shuldre and the land of Robert, son of William; and half an acre between the land of William, son of Ingleys,[4] and the land of Rycheman in Cangistret. The said acre abuts upon the King's headland (Kyngesforard).[5] Witnesses: Peter of King's Hall;[6] Master Walter the Writer; William the Chaplain, of Dudeston: William the Chaplain of St. Sepulchre of the House of St. Margaret; Gilbert Longe, tailor (cissor); Maurice the Young; Hugh the Tailor; William Breans, of Longeford.[7] 126.

[1] The land in Gloucester that had belonged to William Russell was conveyed, in 1218, to St. Peter's Abbey by the Archbishop of York; Register of Abp. Gray, p. 277. He is possibly the William Russell who is recorded to have died before 1221; Plea Rolls, p. 64.

[2] This is written 'pp.' in MS., and may be singular.

[3] The seal appears to be a copy of a Roman gem.

[4] An Ingeleysa, wife of Richard the Red, of Gloucester, is mentioned in Cart. S. Petri, i. 190. The name in the above case is, however, probably masculine.

[5] Forard = O.E. fore-yrð, literally 'fore-ploughing,' meaning a headland.

[6] King's Hall is the meadow known as King's Holme at Gloucester. Wibert of King's Hall surrendered, in 1117, to the Abbey land described as being 'near the King's Hall, where his [the King's] Barton is;' Cart. S. Petri, i. 106. See below, p. 95, note 2. On March 27, 1239, the Warden of (the King's) Barton of Gloucester was commanded to take security from William of Kingesham, son and heir of Peter of Kyngesham, for the relief for his father's lands, Peter having divested himself of them for the use of his said son; Excerpta e Rot. Fin., i. 322.

[7] This is in a 14th hand, sealed as if it were the original grant.

137.—Ab. 1210.—Demise in fee from Richard of Kideremunstria, with the assent of Edith his wife, to Nicholas, son of Yvo of Neweham, and Ralph the Vintner, of Gloucester, of his land in Gloucester that is of the fee of the Church of St. Peter, which he took with Edith his wife, lying between the land of William Algar and the lane going to the Abbey. For this grant the said Nicholas and Ralph paid him two silver marks and to the Jews of Gloucester 20s. 5d., which the said Richard owed them, etc. Witnesses: Richard the Red; Richard, son of William; John the Red and Adam the Welshman, then Reeves[1] of Gloucester; John the Draper; Adam the Goldsmith; Alexander the Goldsmith; William Algar; Walter Slep; John Monitwot; William of Alecestr'; Robert the Palmer: Reginald the Wise (Sapiens); Elyas the Palmer; Thomas the Writer; Henry Damisele; Maurice, son of Durand. 129.

138.—Ab. 1210.—Grant from Peter,[2] son of Walter Wibert, of King's Hall, to Philip the Fletcher (Fleccherius) of his land in the street before the gate of the Castle at Gloucester, which land he received with his wife in free marriage from William of Munsterworthin, lying between the land of Geoffrey Pumerai and the land of Walter, son of the aforesaid William. Witnesses: John the Red (Rufus) and Adam the Welshman (Wallensis), then Reeves[3] of Gloucester; Richarg Burg[eis]; Richard the Red; David Dunning; Henry Burg[eis]; Richard, son of William; Philip the Clerk, who wrote this charter. 146.

139.—Ab. 1220.—Demise for term of life from John, son of Godfrey, of Gloucester, to Yllaria,[4] daughter of Edith, of his portion of land within the bridge of Gloucester

[1] Possibly singular, being written 'pp.' in MS.

[2] Peter of King's Hall (i.e. King's Ham). See Cart. S. Petri, i. 170, where he is called 'Peter, son of Walter, son of Wybert.' See above, page 94, note 6.

[3] This may mean only 'Reeve;' it is written 'pp.' in MS.

[4] Yllaria = Hilaria.

between the land of Frethesanta,[1] daughter of Admare, and the land that belonged to William, son of Katherine, with reservation for life of her husband Benedict if he survive her. In return Yllaria grants to him the reversion of her portion of the same land. Witnesses: Richard, son of Katherine; William Torel;[2] William the Cnussare;[3] Nicholas, son of Ivo of Neuheham; Gocelin Grundhebbe;[4] Thomas, son of Edward; Walter Payn. 121.

140.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Hugh of Urdleg' to Simon Murdac of his land near Watersup' between Clotleg and Minti, which is of the fee of the Abbey of Malmesbire of the manor of Credewell. Witnesses: Roger de Dantesio;[5] Robert Maudut;[6] Thomas of Riton'; Matthew of Bremesham; Henry the Breton; Wibert of Cherleton; Helias his son; Pagan of Brenkeword'; William, son of Richard of Lale; John Scott'; Richard the Clerk, of Whitminster (de Albo Monasterio). 122.

141.—Ab. 1220.—Demise from Walter, son of Simon of Elbrugg, to Simon of Willeresheye of three acres of land in Elbrug; to wit, one acre in Sondfeld extending 'in þe dene;' and half an acre upon þisteleya extending from the King's highway 'in þe dene;' and half an acre in Hodintre that belonged to Richard the Bonde; and half an acre in Homberlonde near Durand's land; and half an acre at the head of Wodhulle extending to Gorbrodaker. Witnesses: Roger, clerk of Brihthamtunn'; Master Henry of Peritunn; Hugh of Brihthamtunn'; Roger of Pertunn; Durand of Elbrug; William the Miller. 124.

[1] 'Freþesante' in MS. is, no doubt, a gen. fem. She is called Freþesanta, of Burthunn in No. 163, p. 103, below.

[2] A William Torell is mentioned between 1207 and 1222 in Rot. de Finibus, p. 408; Exc. e Rot. Fin., i. 85, 90; Rot. Litt. Claus., i. 256, 325 b. He was a landowner in Essex, and can hardly be the person above-named.

[3] Cnussare represents O. E. Cnyssere*, derived from cnyssan, 'to beat, stamp,' but its meaning as a trade-name is obscure.

[4] A Margery Grundelle (Grundebbe?), of Newnham, is mentioned in the Plea Rolls of 1221, p. 75.

[5] Of Dauntsey, co. Wilts.

[6] On July 19, 1222, livery of the lands of Robert Maudut was granted to William Maudut; Exc. e Rot. Fin., i. 87. A life of Robert is given by Foss, Judges, ii. 91.

142.—1220.—Grant from Walter, son of Simon of Elbrug', to Simon of Willeresleya,[1] of three acres of land in Elbrug; whereof one acre lies in Blakegraueforlong, between the land of Richard the Miller and the land of Walter Bachelar, of Periton; half an acre lies upon þysteleya, between the land of Richard the Miller and the land of Alice Grey, extending to the King's highway; half an acre of two selions and a gore (gora) lie in Hodintro, extending to Hodyntrodenne, near the land of Walter Tollyloli; half an acre in Ombrelonde, near the land of Durand of Elbrugg; and half an acre at the head of Wodhulla. Witnesses: Sir Reginald of Periton, Knight; Master Henry of Parton; Durand of Elbrug; Roger the Young, of Parton; Robert the Rich (Diues), of Gloucester; Adam Gladwyn; Geoffrey of the Field; Walter Payn, the writer of this charter. Dated in the year 1220. 123.

143.—Ab. 1220.—Confirmation by Alice, daughter of Alexander of Elebrug, to Simon of Wylardeseye of the grant (No. 141) that Walter her son made him of three acres of land in Elebrug; to wit, one acre in Sondfeld; half an acre on Thisteleg; and half an acre in Hodintre; and half an acre in Omberlond; and half an acre at the end of Wodhull. Witnesses: Durand of Elebrug; Roger of Parton; Robert the Riche; John, son of Osbert. 125.

144.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Roger of the Wood (de Bosco) to Richard the Chaplain,[2] of Gloucester, of two acres of land in Heatherleg' in the field near the park, extending towards Eglouleg. Witnesses: Thomas Chauri; Richard the Burgess; John the Draper; Master Henry of Perton; Roger of the Ford; Amys the Butcher;[3] Walter of the Chapel. 127.

[1] This appears, from the other charters, to be a mistake for 'Willeresheya' (Willersey, co. Glouc.)

[2] Called elsewhere 'Richard of Hatherley.'

[3] Amis the Butcher (le Macecrer) was amerced at the Eyre of 1221 for diverting the course of the 'Fulebroc' in Gloucester; Plea Rolls, p. 109.

145.—Ab. 1220.—Confirmation by Roger of the Wood to Richard the Chaplain, of Gloucester, of two acres of land in Hetherleg' lying at the Scaggwe, and of an acre of meadow in Sudmede. Witnesses: Thomas Chauri; William Gambeis; Roger of the Ford; Robert of the Wood; Roger the Cook; John the Draper; Maurice, son of Durand; Amis the Butcher; William of Sumery. 128.

146.—Ab. 1220.—Confirmation by Roger of the Wood (de Bosco) to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of four acres of land in Heathe[r]leg; whereof two lie at the Scagwe and two near the park, extending towards Eglouleg'; and of an acre of meadow in Sudmed: which Richard the Chaplain, of Gloucester, held of the said Roger and gave to the said Hospital. Witnesses: Thomas Chaury; Richard the Burgess; David Dunning; John the Draper; John of Gosedich; Amys the Butcher. 130.

147.—Ab. 1220.—Demise from Henry,[1] Abbot, and the Convent of St. Peter of Gloucester to Turstin the Fuller of their land near the mill of Roger Morin[2] pertaining to their Bertona (quae pertinet ad Bertonam nostram), lying between the land of Henry, son of Hunfrid, and the land of Maurice Durand. Witnesses: John the Red; John of Gosedich; John the Draper; Roger Morin; Walter the Blund; Eynulf the Feutrer; Drogo the Butler; Salomon the Porter; Walter of Mora.[3] 131.

148.—Ab. 1220.—Confirmation by Walter, son of Walter Toki,[4] to the Hospital between the bridges of Gloucester

[1] Henry Blount, Abbot from 1205 to 1224; Froucester's History in Cart. S. Petri, i. 23, 26.

[2] Morin's mill is mentioned, during the above Abbacy, in Cart. S. Petri, i. 186; ii. 195. It was, according to Fosbroke, p. 70, under the north gate.

[3] A fragment of the Abbot's Seal is still adhering to this charter.

[4] Walter Toky, of the Hundred of Deerhurst, brought, in 1221, an unsuccessful action for illegal distraint against Richard Pancefot; Plea Rolls, p. 25. Walter Thoky, probably the father, occurs as a witness in 1196; Cart. S. Petri, i. 288. There is an interesting grant of land in Corse to Walter Toky from Abbot Henry (? Blount, 1205-1224) of Gloucester in Cart. S. Petri, i. 323.

of the gift of certain land between the land of William the Porter (Ianitor) and the land of Robert the Glazier (le Verur) [1] that Richard, brother of the said Walter,[2] made to the said Hospital. He gives, in addition, half an acre of land in Widenham lying near the meadow of the Abbot of St. Augustine at Brecheburne. Witnesses: Richard the Burgess; Henry the Burgess;[3] John the Draper and David Dunning, then Reeves[4] of Gloucester; William son of Katherine (Katelina); Helias Palmer; William of Herdeperer; Hugh the Clerk; John, then Dean, who wrote this charter; Walter the Writer. 132.

149.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Richard Panceuot, son of Richard Panceuot, to John of Sudwick of four acres of meadow in Widenham, which Panceuot's father gave him. Witnesses: Richard of Muchegros; John the Priest of Trinleie; Reginald Folet; Milo Folet; William of Paris; Walter of Paris; Reginald Panceuot; Simon of Apperleie. 133.

150.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from John of Suthwic to Richard of Heidun, with Amicia his daughter in free marriage, of four acres of meadow in Widenhom', which Richard Panceuot gave the donor;[5] and a rent of a pound of pepper, which Walter of Paris pays for the pasture of six oxen and other liberties. Witnesses: Hugh Mustel; William of Paris; Walter his brother; John the Priest of Trinlega; Adam his brother; Richard of Kinefare; John his son; Henry Archer.[6] 134.

[3] On July 19, 1216, King John commanded the Sheriff of Gloucester not to distrain Henry Burgeis for the debt demanded from him by Mirabel, widow of Elias the Jew, because the debts of the said Elias had been taken into the King's hands; Rot. Litt. Pat., p. 194; Rot. Litt. Claus., i. 282 b. On February 20, 1240-1, Henry III. granted to Henry, son of Richard Burgeys, a little tower (turrella) in Gloucester on the east of the town at a rent of 6d., for him to dwell in (ad hospitandum super eandem turrim); Exc. e Rot. Fin., i. 336.

[2] Berga = Berrow (from O.E. beorge, dat. sg. of beorh, 'barrow, hill').

[3] This is a 14th century forgery. The handwriting of the original is clumsily copied, letters of a later date occasionally occurring inadvertently.

[4] 'Omnes quidem istas partes praedictas dedi et concessi Deo et Hospitali Sancti Bartholomaei Glouc., Priori et Fratribus, defendendas pro undecim acris.' The meaning is, as in the similar phrases in the Domesday Survey, that the land answers to the King as eleven acres, no matter what its real contents were. There is generally a disparity between the contents in the wife Cecily and to Margaret of Wreneford fraternity with the said Hospital. Witnesses: Sir Robert Folet; Reginald, then parson of Langedune; Geoffrey of Abitot; Gilbert, then Steward; Robert Folet; Walter of Niwenton; William of Estinton; Richard Burgess, of Gloucester; Richard the Red, of Gloucester; David Dunning. 136.

153.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from John of Wreniford to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of two selions of land in Estfelde near the land of William the Brown, one end of which goes to the way and the other to the meadow of Pincuelle. Witnesses: Sir Robert Folet; Reginald his son; Richard, son of Gilebert; William the Brown; William of Estintun; Richard his son; Walter of Nowintun; Robert the Dane (Dacus); Geoffrey of Mostowe. 137.

154.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from William, son of Henry of the Hok, with the assent of the Lady Celestra his wife, to the Leper Brethren of the Hospital of Saint Sepulchre of an acre of land in Hindforlong between the land of Walter Ingeram and the land of Adam, son of Roger of Huckelicote. Witnesses: Henry of Drois; Ralph of Chandos; Reginald of Peritun; Master Henry of Peritun; Peter of King's Hall (de Sala Regis); Henry Mercer; and all the Hundred of the town of Gloucester. 138.

155.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Geoffrey of Abitot to Richard of the Mere (de la Mara), in free marriage with Lucy his sister, of half a virgate of land, which Ralph of the Mere, father of the said Richard, formerly held of the said Geoffrey in Rudmerl[eg'] at the Mere (apud la mara); and of a messuage at Petford with the land pertaining to the said messuage, also formerly held by Ralph of the Mere. Witnesses: Richard of Abitot, then parson; Richard of Barcliua; Osbert of Boclint[un]; John of Ho; William Dispenser; Walter of Ketiford; Walter of Holoford; Walter of Ruleya.[1] 139.

Survey at which estates answered to the King and their actual contents. This arose from the retention of ancient assessments in the Survey. For instances of such reductions of area in answering to the King, see Archæological Review, iv., 324. Cp. also Nos. 122, 123, pp. 87, 88, above.

[1] The Seal has a figure of Geoffrey on horseback.

156.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Hugh the Parmenter, of Morton, to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of two acres of arable land in Morton, lying in Hauecheresbrige between the land of John, son of Reinbald, and the land of Gilian Hotes Loue. Witnesses: Odo of the Hill (de Monte); Robert Vawepol;[1] Gilbert the Cook; Walter Mose; Geoffrey of Astinges. 140.

157.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Robert Folet to Richard Waringer of six acres of arable land in Morton that Robert Craketeil resigned into the hands of the said Robert, and two parcels of meadow lying between the meadow of Richard of Estinton and the meadow of Thurstan. Witnesses: Peter of Stanton; P., Dean of Poiwik'; Gilbert the Cook; William Brun; Richard, son of Gilbert; Robert Wagepol; William the Clerk. 141.

158.—Ab. 1220.—Confirmation by the Lady Emma, lady of Langedon', formerly the wife of Robert Folet, of her late husband's grant to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew. Witnesses: Dom. Thomas, Vicar of Langed[on]; Sir Peter of Stant[un], Knight; Gilbert the Cook; Simon the Red, of Anleia. 142.

159.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Agnes Folet, daughter of William Folet, to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew between the Bridges of Gloucester of a virgate of land in the town of Morton lying in five fields; to wit, in the field called 'Samfrayburhoc' six acres; in the field called 'Ruhelde' seven acres; in the field called 'Stanling' three acres; in the field called 'Holibed' four acres; in the field called 'Loueles Ruding' four acres; and all her share of the meadow of Frewine; and housebote and haybote in her wood of Maluern' sufficient to maintain the said virgate of land in Morton. Witnesses: Sir William of Kardif, Knight; Sir Peter of Stanton, Knight; Sir Richard Muchegros, Knight; Gilbert the Cook; Robert Wawepol; Odo of the Hill; Walter Mose; John Wawepol; Geoffrey of Yuonton'. 143.

160.—Ab. 1220.—Duplicate of the preceding. 144.

[1] The 'Wagepol' of the next deed.

161.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Amfelisa Folet, daughter of William Folet, to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew between the Bridges of Gloucester of all her portion of the land assigned to her in the field called 'Louel Ruding' and all her portion of the meadow of Frewine assigned to her.[1] Witnesses: Sir Richard Muchegros; Gilbert the Cook; Robert Wawepol; Hed' of the Hill; Walter Mose; Nicholas of Sawe. 145.

162.—Ab. 1220.—Demise from Richard the Clerk, son of Richard the Carter (Karetarius), to Akestil (= Asketil) of his land beyond the Bridge near the land of the Priory of Lanton' and the land of the Hospital. Witnesses: Roger the Chaplain; Roger, son of Cecily; William, son of Kat[herine]; Reginald, son of Ser[lo]; Simon, son of Alfred (Aluredus);[2] Geoffrey the Hooper (Circul'); William, son of Godriz;[3] Thomas, son of William Uuenat; Robert the Red (Ruphus); Reginald of Breh[enio]c; Walter, son of Seuar'. 147.

163.—Ab. 1220.—Sale and release from Richard the Chaplain, son of Richard the Carter (Karetarius), of Gloucester, to Philip Axtil (=Asketil),[4] of Gloucester, of all his land beyond the bridge of Gloucester, to wit, the land lying between the land of William Rug' and the land of Frepesanta[5] of Burthunn'. The vendor acquits the land of all charges except landgavel (saluo londogabulo) of threepence per annum to the King at Hockeday. Witnesses: William of Sanford; Adam Croc;[6] William the Dyer; John the Dyer; Thomas Ouenaht; Robert the Glazier (le Verrur); William the Cnusare; William Rug'. 148.

[1] In Morton Foliet. See preceding deed.

[2] His land is mentioned in Cart. S. Petri, i. 186.

[3] Abbot Thomas (Carbonel, 1179-1205) confirmed the demise that Richard Burgeis had made to William, son of Godric, of land between the bridges of Gloucester; Cart. S. Petri, i. 318.

[6] Adam Croc was amerced at the Eyre of 1221 for selling wine contrary to the assize; Plea Rolls, p. 109.

164.—Ab. 1220.—Sale and release by Serlo, son of Wibert the Skinner (Pelliparius), to Edith, daughter of Philip Carbonel,[1] of his right in his land in Gloucester in the lane (uiculus) between the street (ruta) of St. Mary before the gate of the Abbey and the Severn, lying between the land that belonged to Helias of the Infirmary and the land that belonged to Reginald the Skinner; saving the landgavel (saluo longabulo) of threepence, which the said Edith and her heirs shall pay yearly to the chief lord for that land at Hokedai. Witnesses: Thomas, parson of St. John; Simon of Matresdun; Geoffrey of Matresdun; Thomas, his son; Thomas Carbonel, cook; Robert, son of Hamo Carbonel; William Baldi; Alexander, Randulph, servants (famuli) of the Sarteria;[2] Nicholas, Roger, Ralph, Helias, servants of the Infirmary.[3] 149.

165.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Edith, daughter of Philip Carbunel, to Thomas Carbunel, her brother, of all her land in Gloucester described in the preceding charter. Witnesses: Geoffrey of Westun; John of Eldresfeld; Adam the Farrier (le Ferrur); Master Richard of Walford; Geoffrey Skyn;[4] Stephen of Curmenile.[5] 150.

166.—Ab. 1220.—Release from Edith, daughter of Philip Carbunel, to her brother Thomas Carbunel, of her right in the land specified in No. 164. Same witnesses as to No. 165. 151.

[1] Philip Carbonel witnesses a deed in 1196; Cart. S. Petri, i. 288. See also vol. i. p. 111.

[2] Sarteria means the room in the Abbey where the garments of the monks, servants, etc., were made and repaired, from Old French sartrerie, from sartre, 'tailor,' Latin sartor. This room at Worcester was west of the cathedral; Annals of Worcester, iv. 419, A.D. 1226, where it is called sartrinum. At Evesham it is called sartrina in 1214; Chron. Abb. Evesh., p. 208. In 1380-1418 it is the sartaria; Id., p. 309. It is erroneously printed sarceria in Cart. S. Petri, iii. 154.

[3] The seals of Serlo and of Alice, Botild, and Matilda, his sisters, are appended.

[4] He is mentioned in Cart. S. Petri, ii. 236.

[5] Courmenil, cant. of Exmes, arrond. of Argentan, depart. of the Orne (Normandy).

167.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Claricia of Lutegareshale, widow of John Hunedi, of Gloucester, to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of half a virgate of land in Lutegareshale, which she had of the gift of Sir Richard of Couel[eg'], her brother. Witnesses: Sir Richard of Couel[eg']; Simon of Olepenne; Henry his son; James, then parson of Eweleg'; Peter of Eweleg'; Robert of Couel[eg']; Walter of Benecumba; Walter Hoich; William of Sanford. 152.

168.—Ab. 1220.—Duplicate of the preceding grant, with slight variations in the wording. The witnesses are the same, except that Richard of Couel[eg'] is omitted. 153.

169.—Ab. 1220.—Confirmation by Richard of Couel[eg'] to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of his sister Claricia's gift of half a virgate of land in Lutegareshal.[1] He grants to them an annual rent of 12d., which his sister used to pay him for the said half virgate. Witnesses: Sir Peter of Eggeword, Sheriff of Gloucester;[2] William of Sanford; Richard of Hanl[eg'], chaplain; Walter Hoich; Robert of Couel[eg']; John of Draicote; Walter of Bennecumba. 154.

170.—Ab. 1220.—[3] Release from Henry of Berkel[eg'],[4] Lord of the Castle of Dursel[eg'], to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of Gloucester, of the rent of a sparrow-hawk (speruarius), which he was wont to receive from [2] Peter of Edgeworth accounted at the Exchequer for the Sheriff of Gloucestershire in 14 and 15 Henry III. (1229-1231) and 19 Henry III. (1234-5). A Decius of Edgeworth acted in the above capacity for the Sheriff in 6 Henry III. (1221-2), a date that fits the present charter, which, as the succeeding confirmation proves, was granted before September, 1221. Sir Henry Barkley, Trans. of the Bristol and Glouc. Archæol. Soc., xiii. 190, thinks that Decius in this case is a mistake for Petrus, remarking that 'a prolongation of the D into P is still visible on the parchment' of the Pipe Roll.

[5] This form proves that the name of Elmbridge is derived from the O. E. þelbrycg 'plank bridge' which occurs in Cartul. Saxonicum, i. 82, 31 ; iii. 15, 7 ; 236, 28, 31 ; Kemble, Codex Diplomaticus, vi. 60, 21. 'Thelbrycg' was, apparently, understood as 'th' elbrycg' in about A.D. 1200 ; comp. 'the Elbrug' No. 338, page 160, and No. 369, page 170, below. This form was etymologized to Elmbridge, which already occurs in No. 221, p. 122, below. There is a parish of Thelbridge near Crediton, Devon.

183.—Ab. 1220.—Confirmation by Alice, daughter of Alexander of Telbruge, of the gift of 18 acres of arable land, described in No. 182, which her brother William Wischard made to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew. Witnesses: Robert Morin; Reginald of Piritun; Richard of Muchegros; Henry of Drois; Master Henry of Partun; Richard the Red; Richard the Burgess; David Dunninc; William, son of Katerine. 188.

184.—Ab. 1220.—Confirmation by John of Elebrug', son of Simon of Mattresdon, to Simon of Wylardeseye of the gift that Walter, son of Simon, made to him of three acres of land in Elebrug, as set out in No. 141, page 96, above. Witnesses: Durand of Elebrug; Roger of Parton; Robert the Riche; David of Brekenihoc; John, son of Osbert. 190.

185.—Ab. 1220.—Grant, at the request of his sister Lucy, his nearest heir, from Walter of Hida to Geoffrey Morin[2] of five acres of land in Sandforlong, to wit, those that his father John of Hida gave to Roger Morin in free marriage with the said Lucy. Witnesses: Domini Adam and Philip of St. Oswald, chaplains; Walter of Bannebir', clerk; William Feragu; Alexander the Mercer; Roger Ace;[3] Hunfrid; Henry, Matthew, and William his sons; Nicholas Morin; William Morin; Robert Morin; William Paucok.[4] 193.

[1] This is an adjectival form = the Latinized Drocensis of Ordericus Vitalis, ii. 108, 8; iii. 449, 4. Hence the forms 'le Droys,' etc., in the Cart. S. Petri and le Drois in No. 215, page 120, below, etc.

[2] Geoffrey Morin terminated his tenancy of Morin's mill before 1220; Cart. S. Petri, ii. 29, 30. This gift is possibly to Geoffrey (Morin) the Chaplain, of No. 189, page 112, below.

[4] Richard, Prior of Little Malvern, died in 1268; Dugdale, Monasticon Anglicanum, iv. 446. This is probably not the witness of this charter.

198.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Richard the Fowler (Auceps), of Morton, to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of two acres of arable land in Morton in the furlong (forlong) called 'Ruding' between the land of Robert Cracheteil and the land of Gilian Hotes Loue. Witnesses: Odo of the Hill (de Monte); Robert Vawepol; Gilbert the Cook; Walter Mose; Geoffrey of Astinges. 229.

199.—Ab. 1220.—Release from Cecily la Denesche,[1] of Langedon, relict of Geoffrey of Tefford, to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of her right and claim in eleven acres of land in Langedon, which her said husband gave the said Hospital (see above, No. 152). Witnesses: Sir Richard of Muchegros; Walter Galun, then Constable of Hanl[eg']; Reginald, then Vicar of Langedon; Odo of the Hull'; Walter of Newinton; Roger of Den. 231.

200.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Walter, son of Hunfrid, of Hesfeld, with the consent of Matilda his wife, and with the will of his lord Richard of Panceuot, to Richard, son of Jordan, of Gloucester, of an acre of land in Widinham lying on the bank of the Severn between the Severn and the meadow of William of Hae. Witnesses: Reginald Folet; Richard the Red; Robert the Rich; Richard the Burgess, junior; Roger, son of Cecily; Richard, son of Richard the Red; Alexander the Parmenter; William the Clerk.[2] 235.

201.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from John the Little (le Petit), with the consent of his wife Margery, to William, son of William Siward, of half a virgate of land and half a dwelling house in Langeford, to wit, of the virgate that the donor's father William held. Witnesses: Peter of the Hall (de Aula); Master Walter the Writer; Milo of Sandhurste; Richard, son of William; Hugh the Tailor (Cissor); Herbert of Waleswrth. 238.

[1] This appears to mean 'Danish,' O.E. Denisc. A 'Godricke þe Denske,' A.D. 1052-1065, occurs in the Ramsey Chartulary, i. 189.

[2] The seals of Walter, and of Richard Pauncefot are appended. The latter is a fine impression of an interesting seal.

202.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Hugh Charke to the Brethren of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of 12d. of rent of the land of Forstalle that Walter Hoch, Nicholas Iue, and Adam the Palmer held. Witnesses: William of Abehale; William of Dene; Richard the Burgess; Adam Croc, then Reeve of Gloucester; Walter Hoch; William of Sanford; Master Walter of Garsint[on]. 239.

203.—Ab. 1220.—Demise from Walter, son of Walter Hut,[1] of Gloucester, to Joel Hut, his brother, of all his land in the east street of Gloucester, which formerly belonged to Luwin Hut, his grandfather. Witnesses: Henry the Burgess and John of Gosedichs, Reeves[2] of Gloucester; Richard the Burgess; Richard, son of Jordan; Richard the Red; Richard, son of William; Helias the Palmer; John the Red; Richard, son of Ernis; David Dunning; John, son of Osbert; William the Tailor. 256.

204.—Ab. 1220.—Confirmation by Philip, son of Henry of Hocholte, of the grant that Henry the Bald made to the Brethren of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew between the Bridges of Gloucester, to wit, two acres of arable (lucrabilis) land in the fee that the said Henry bought from Henry, father of the said Philip.[3] Witnesses: Ralph Musard; Simon of Matresdone; Geoffrey of Matresdon; Richard the Burgess, Mayor of Gloucester; David Dunning. 257.

205.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Ralph Auenel, with the consent of his wife Margaret, to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of an acre of land in Gloucester, being the acre nearest to the town in the cultura near Chingesweia, which acre extends towards the garden of the monks of St. Peter. Witnesses: Sir Roger Poer, Knight; William of Habenhale; Walter Hachet; Peter of Chingeshame; Richard the Burgess, of Gloucester; John of Gosedich; David Doning; William of Sanford. 275.

[1] An undated grant from Walter Hut to Henry, son of Godid' (= O. E. God-gȳð, fem.), occurs in Cart. S. Petri, ii. 197.

[2] Written 'pp.' in MS., it may, therefore, be singular.

206.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from William the Smith, of Ledebur', and Emma his wife, with the assent of Walter their son and heir, to John of Berkelay of the land in the Walkers' Street (in Vico Fullonum), Gloucester, between the land of William the Weaver (Textor) and the land of Haulf the Schipsmit, extending from the Street to the Severn. Witnesses: Richard Burgess, Mayor of Gloucester; Adam Crok, then Reeve; Henry Burgess; William of Sanford; William Fader; Hugh the Weaver (Tixtor); Gilbert Gubich; Philip Anketil.[1] 279.

207.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Nicholas Wodye, of Wottun', to William, son of Adam of Suthgrave, of a headland (forerdia) of arable land in Ruecrofte between the land of Henry of Lasseberwe and the land of Nicholas Sygrit, of Wotton', one end of which reaches to his green way towards Sondebrug' and the other end abuts upon the ford to the mill called 'Sawagemulne.' Witnesses: Henry of Lasseberwe; Philip of Mattersdon; William Jurdan; Henry Petitclerk; Robert Wodye; William Gerard; Henry Passemer; Nicholas Sygrith; Richard the Clerk. 341.

208.—Ab. 1220.—Duplicate of preceding grant. 342.

209.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Robert Wodie, of Wotton, to Brother Sewyn, Master of the Hospital of St. Margaret near Gloucester, and the leper brethren of the same of two selions of arable land in the field called 'Sidenhale' between the land of Richard of Comton and the land of Henry Passemer. Witnesses: William of the Plock; Nicholas Sygrit; Dom. Thomas, then Chaplain of the same place; Henry Passemer, of Wotton; Henry Petitcl[e]rk; William Yngeleys; Gilbert of Syde. 339.

[1] The land that Peter, son of Anketel, had held of the fee of St. Peter's Abbey was conveyed to the Archbishop of York in 1218; Register of Abp. Gray, p. 277. He is, no doubt, the Philip Axtil (=Asketil) of No. 163, page 103, above, the Norman name Ansketil appearing as Anketil or Asketil, possibly owing to its similarity to the English (Scandinavian) form of the same name Ós-cytel (Old Norse Ás-ketill).

210.—Ab. 1220.—Grant in fee from Henry,[1] Abbot of St. Peter of Gloucester, and the convent of the same to Walter Hoch of their land near the wall of their cemetery, between the land of John of Gosedich and the land of John Gode. Witnesses: Richard the Burgess; David Dunning; William of Sanford; Walter the Writer; Drogo the Butler (Pincerna); Henry le Bel; Maurice the Stableman (Stabellarius). 212.

211.—Ab. 1220.—Grant from Roger the Chaplain, son of Henry Costart, and Henry his brother to Walter of Pynecote, in free marriage with Edith their sister, of their land against the Church of the Holy Trinity between the street called 'Gorlone' and the land of Richard Mey, except half a shop (solda) that the said Henry retains; and of land in Scroddelone that belonged to Osbert þoruin. Witnesses: Richard the White; Henry the Goldsmith; Walter Wayn; Walter of Pynecote. 213.

212.—1222, June 24.—Grant from Richard of Heydunn, with the consent of Amice his wife and his heirs, to Richard, the Chaplain of Hayþerleya, of four acres of meadow in Wideham held of Richard Panceuot,[2] lying near the meadow of Richard of Mucegros. If the donor be unable to secure possession of the said meadow for the said grantee, he agrees to grant him in exchange the meadow at the Moor (la More) towards Nortuun, containing four acres, whereof two and a half acres lie at the Wildemore; and for greater security he will make exchange of the meadow called 'Cunemede' at the Hardewike (apud la Hardewike). Witnesses: Hugh Mustel; Master Henry of Pertuun; Roger of the Ford; Maurice, son of Durand; John the Draper; William of Trinleya; Robert the Painter; Walter, son of Harald. 158.

[1] Probably Henry Blount, A.D. 1205-1224.

213.—Ab. 1225.—Grant from John,[1] Prior of Lanthon' near Gloucester, and the Convent of the same to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew between the Bridges, for the soul of Richard, priest of Heytherleya, and for the souls of his ancestors and successors, of ten loaves called 'loaves of Dudestan' daily for the sustentation of the infirm coming to the said Hospital, to be received from their house of Lanthonia, which loaves are to be of the same corn, weight, and quantity as the brethren of the Prior's Hospital at Dudestann have been wont to receive from the Priory. The Priory is to have the option of paying 6d. (Esterlingi) instead of the 10 loaves. The aforesaid Richard gave to the said Priory eleven score (undecim uiginti) marks of money by tale (de numerata pecunia),[2] so that the Priory should not be injured by this grant. Witnessed by 'our Chaplain.' [Fragment of Seal.] 159.

214.—[1225-1229].—Grant from Hosbert Giffard,[3] son of Helias Giffard, to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew between the bridges of Gloucester, for the sustentation of a chaplain to celebrate divine service therein for the

[1] Prior John died on December 29, 1240; Annals of Tewkesbury, i. 116.

[2] For explanation of this phrase, see above, page 6, note 2.

[3] Osbert Giffard was in attendance upon King John in 1209; Rot. Misae, pp. 123, 126. He took up arms with the Barons against the King, and was captured at Rochester by the King in 1215, and was imprisoned at Corfe; Roger of Wendover, ii. 151; Matthew Paris, Chronica Maiora, ii. 626; Rot. Litt. Claus., i. 241. In 1216 he was one of the Barons excommunicated by the Pope; Wendover, ii. 170; Paris, ii. 644. In this year his wife Isabella of Friville had letters of safe conduct; Rot. Litt. Pat., 168 b, 171. On June 1 she had a letter of safe conduct to enable her to visit the King to obtain the liberation of her husband; Id., 185. He was liberated shortly after this, orders being issued on July 7 to the constables of the royal castles to receive him on his journey; Id., 190. He paid £108 as ransom; Rot. Litt. Claus., i. 481. In 1223 he had a grant, to sustain himself in the King's service, of the land that Ralph of Vernay had of the grant of King John in the demesne of King's Barton without Gloucester; Exc. e Rot. Fin., i. 110. He died in 1229; Id., i. 186; Annals of Tewkesbury, i. 73. An extent of his lands is recorded in Calendarium Genealogicum, i. 18, under 31 (= 13?) Henry III. He is to be distinguished from another Osbert Giffard, a natural son of King John's, who died in 1245; Matthew Paris, Chron. Maiora, iv. 491.

souls of William de Bruere[1] and of Helias Giffard and of Maut Giffard, mother of the said Osbert, and for the souls of the said Osbert and Ysabel his wife, which chaplain is to be a brother of the same Hospital, of all his land in the manor of Brumesfeld, that is, two virgates of land in Hulletmed. Witnesses: William [of] Putot, Sheriff of Gloucester[2]; Peter of Egeswrthe, then Constable of Gloucester; Richard Burgess; David Donnig; William of Sanford; Adam Croc; Richard of Aldewik; William of Budefeld; Abel of Wike. 276.

215.—[1225-1229.]—Confirmation by Elias Giffard,[3] Lord of Brumesfeld, for the health of his soul and of the souls of Ysabell and Alice and Yseud his wives, etc., of the grant to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew between the Bridges of the land of Hullittemed within his manor of Brumesfeld made by Osbert Giffard, his brother.[4] Witnesses: Dom. Geoffrey, then Vicar of Stanhus; Dom. Richard of Cromhale; William le Mansel;[5] Gilbert Giffard; Jordan [of] the Ware;[6] Henry le Drois;[7] John the Brown; Henry the Red (le Rus), Knights. 277.

[1] William of Briwere died in 1226; Annals of Tewkesbury, in Annales Monastici, i. 69; Annals of Waverley, ibid., ii. 302; Annals of Oseney, ibid., iv. 302. See also Foss, Judges of England, ii. 264.

[2] William of Putot was Sheriff of Gloucester from 10 to 16 Henry III. (1225-1232).

[3] In 1201-2 the lands of Elias Giffard were in the guardianship of William Marshall, so that he was, apparently, still a minor; Rot. Cancellarii, 3 John, p. 233, etc. In 1210 he was in Ireland in the King's army; Rot. de Praestito, pp. 182, 199. Like his brother Osbert, he was in arms against King John, but returned to his allegiance upon John's death. On March 11, 1217, the Sheriff of Gloucester was ordered to deliver to Elias seisin of his lands, he having returned to his fidelity to the King; Rot. Litt. Claus., i. 299. He died in 1248, and was succeeded by his son John, the famous soldier of the Barons' War; Calendarium Genealogicum, i. 25; Exc. e Rot. Fin., ii. 183.

232.—Ab. 1230.—Confirmation by Alice, daughter of Alexander of Elbrug', widow of John of Matresdune, to Roger of Elbrug' of a demise[1] in fee of a rent of 2s. made

No. 224, p. 123, above. Cf. also Scoerthe-forlung in No. 227, page 125, which also occurs at Sort-furlong in No. 338, page 160, below. These various forms all arise from O.E. sceort 'short,' the forms schort, sort representing the absorption of the first element of the diphthong owing to the palatalization of the sc. The O.E. mōr, it may be remarked, had not the restricted sense that moor has in modern English. Its most usual meaning in field-names is marshy, low-lying land.

Witnesses: Reginald of Piritunn; Master Henry of Pertunn; John of Matresdunn; Richard the Burgess; David Dunning; Thomas Oye; Walter, son of Harald. 197.

[1] This occurs in the nom. fem. (?) form Meinfelis in an 11th century entry in the register of St. Germain des Prés, Paris; Guérard, Polyptyque de l'abbé Irminon, p. 50. Longnon, the latest editor of this invaluable register, reads the name Memfelis, p. 62. Guérard's reading identifies the name as a compound of the Frankish magin, main (= O.E. mægen, mǣn, 'main'); Forstemann, Altdeutsches Namenbuch, i. 890. The unexplained suffix occurs in the name Amfelisa Folet in the present volume. The name is misprinted Manselm, A.D. 1284, in Cart. S. Petri, iii. 26. The masc. form is Latinized as Meifelinus in No. 272, page 140, below.

239.—Ab. 1230.—Grant from Philip of Kinemeresbur[y] to the chapel of St. Sepulchre near Gloucester, in order to maintain a lamp there, of an acre of arable land at þendercumb near the acre called 'Sladaker.'[1] Witnesses: Simon of Matresdunn; Ralph of Chandos; Henry the Red; Reginald of Piritunn; Henry of Droys; William of Widicumbe; William the Hunter (le Venur); Adam of Benetham.[2] 202.

240.—Ab. 1230.—Demise from John of Gosedich to Seulf the Weaver (Tixtor) of his land without the east gate of Gloucester near Gosedich, lying between the land of Baldwin and the land of Alan Filtor,[3] with certain implements of weaving thereon. Witnesses: Richard of Ticedewelle; Edwin the Hooper (Circulator); Alan Filtor; Robert Watermon; Hugh the Clerk.[4] 204.

241.—Ab. 1230.—[5] Grant from John Gosedissh to the Church and Brethren of the Sepulchre of the House of St. Margaret without the town of Gloucester of a rent of 5s. to be received from the land that Seulf the Weaver took of him in fee-ferm near Gosedissh',[6] lying between the land that belonged to Henry the Bald and the land of Alan the Thresher (Triturator). He also gives them all the weaving implements that the said Seulf took of him with the said land. The priest of the said Brethren for the time being is to receive yearly 2s. out of the said rent; and he is to say mass every week for the souls of the said John and of his wife, ancestors, and of all the faithful dead.

[2] Adam of Bentham held land in Brockworth of Lawrence of Chandos; Cart. S. Petri, i. 196, 197, 200.

[3] He is called 'Thresher' (Triturator) in the next deed.

[4] John of Gosedich's seal bears a representation of a fortified gateway with two flanking towers, intended, no doubt, for the north gate of Gloucester.

[5] Although this deed is sealed with the seal of John of Gosdich, the writing is a century later in date than his time. The writing of the original is clumsily reproduced, intermixed with 14th century letters. The seal appears to have been taken from a contemporary deed, scraped away at the back, and then fastened with fresh wax to the fillets of this deed.

[1] He is elsewhere called 'Nicholas Muet, Muwet' the Old French form of Latin mutus, 'mute.' Hence the surname Mowat = Muwet (i.e. Muët).

[2] Hugo Milonis in MS. This was a rather common way of expressing patronymics in the 13th century. It is, probably, connected with the custom of omitting the son in English, as, e.g., Thomas Uuenad or Thomas, son of Uuenad, Roger Ace or Roger, son of Ace, etc., in this volume.

[3] He would probably be known in English as 'John the Cornwaleis' (whence Cornwallis), for this French adjectival form seems to have displaced the native English Cornwelsh*, the adjective to be expected from the O.E. Corn-wealh, 'Cornishman,' just as Welsh (O.E. Wielisc) is the adj. of Wealh, 'Welshman.'

[2] This may be plural (including Richard Burgess). It is written 'pp.' in MS.

[3] Luminer = Limner (Illuminator).

[5] Ba is the Anglo-French form of Bath (from the form Bada). It occurs in Wace, Roman de Rou, l. 7750.

274.—Ab. 1230.—Grant from Iuel,[1] son of Walter Hut, of Gloucester, to Robert, son of Richard, son of Warin, of land near Gosedich, lying in front between the land of Elias the Weaver (Tixtor) and the land of Robert the Watermon, and at the back between the land of Roger Iuing and the land of the said Robert the Watermon.[2] Witnesses: Richard the Burgess and Maurice, son of Dura[n]d, Reeves; William of Chirchesd[un]; Roger Iuing; Odo the Red; Adam, son of Claricia; Alan Filtor; Robert the Watermon; Elias the Weaver; Reginald Wiþer; Philip the Clerk. 250.

275.—Ab. 1230.—Grant from Adam the Wate to Richard the Tanner (Alutarius) of his land in Gloucester, to wit, that in Castle Street (in Vico Castelli) nearest to the castle gate between the donor's land and the said gate; paying therefor annually to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew between the bridges of Gloucester 19d. Witnesses: Richard the Burgess (Burgensis); Adam the Chaplain of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew; John of Gosdiche and Richard, son of Walter, then Reeves; Adam, son of Matilda (Matillid'); Walter the Smith; John of Ehamsted; Roger the Farrier (Marscallus). 251.

276.—Ab. 1230.—Grant from Reiner the Palmer, of Gloucester, to John the Dyer (Tinctor), son of Sampson of Ekinton, of a piece of land in Gloucester lying between the land of William the Dyer and the donor's land, the donor acquitting the land of landgavel (de longabulo). Witnesses: John the Dyer; William the Dyer; Thomas Ouenat; Ralph the Dyer; William Knusar; Hugh the Clerk; John of Gosedig'; Richard, son of Walter, son of Peter, then Reeves of Gloucester; Adam Croc; John the Draper; Osbern the Dyer. 252.

[1] Juel is an Anglo-French form of Joel (hence the surname Jewel). In 1218 Joel (Johel) Hut demised his land outside the east gate (of Gloucester) to St. Peter's Abbey for four years; Cart. S. Petri, i. 191.

[2] This land is described above. No. 192, p. 113.

277.—Ab. 1230.—Grant from Reiner the Palmer, of Gloucester, to Henry the Goldsmith, son of Henry the Goldsmith, of a shop (selda) in Ebrugestred in free marriage with his daughter Ysabel, lying between the land of Geoffrey the Hooper (Cerclarius) and the land of the said Reiner. Witnesses: Richard Burgess, Mayor of Gloucester; David Doning; William of Sanford; Walter Hoch; Adam Croch; Adam, son of Roger. 258.

[1] This is obscure. The expression in the original is 'quam . . . dedit mihi cum Matillide uxore sua et sorore mea' = (which . . . he gave me (Henry Craft) with Matilda his wife and my sister.) This looks as if the pronouns were confused, for it would certainly be much more reasonable to read 'with Matilda my wife and his sister.'

280.—Ab. 1230.—Grant from the Infirm Brethren of the Hospital of Saint Sepulchre near Gloucester to Richard of Cornwall[1] (Cornubiensis) without the North gate (extra portam del North') of all their land and the buildings thereon that Henry the Mercer[2] gave them without the North gate opposite the house that belonged to Walter the Red, between the land of Master Peter Malesmeyns and the land of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew. 405.—Ab. 1240.—Release from Helena, widow of Walter of Elbrugg, son of Simon of Euesham, to William

[2] Luke of Cornwall and Ege the Fisher were Bailiffs in 1254 according to Fosbroke. But as No. 461, page 199, below, which is clearly subsequent to this deed, is, according to Fosbroke's list of Bailiffs, dated in 1241, it is obvious that the present deed is older than 1254. No. 461 was certainly executed prior to 1252-3.

[1] See above, No. 262, page 136.

[2] This means, no doubt, 'Richard of Rodmerleye, chaplain.'

[3] They held office in 1248, according to Fosbroke.

[4] To be read 'L'Enweise.' This is probably the origin of Fosbroke's erroneous identification of Roger the Enveise with Robert the Wise.

430.—[1248.]—Demise at ferm from Brother Walter, Prior of St. Bartholomew, Gloucester, and the Brethren of the same, to Richard the Frenchman (Fraunceys), Burgess of Gloucester, of land in Grasieslane, which Gilbert Lawful (Lahful), priest, formerly gave to the said Hospital, lying between the land of St. Mary and the land that belonged to Thomas, son of Thomas. 431.—[1249.]—[1] Grant from Henry, son of Osbert the Bald (Caluus), of Gloucester, to David of Brekenoch of 8 acres of arable land in Hyda without Gloucester, which the said David held of Osbert, father of the said Henry.[2] He also releases to him an annual rent of 6d., part of the rent of 12d. paid by the said David for the above land. Witnesses: William of Sumeri and Richard Franceis, Reeves of Gloucester; Walter Hoich; John the Draper; William of Saunford. 444.

432.—[1249.]—Grant from Roger, son and heir of John of Berkeley, with the assent of Floria his wife, to Thomas the Dyer, burgess of Gloucester of the land that his father John of Berkeley held in the Walkers' Street (in Vico Fullonum), Gloucester, lying between the land of William the Weaver (Textor) and the land of Haulf Schipsmith.[3] Witnesses: Walter Hoych'; William of Samford; Simon of Apperleyg; William Fader; Robert Belhoste; William the Chalonner; Robert of Roy; William the Cnusare; Richard of Pukelone; Walter Hulfe; Gilbert Gobich; Ranulf the Fuller; John Chese. 368.

433.—[1249.]—[1] Grant from Roger, son and heir of John of Berkeley, to Thomas the Dyer, burgess of Gloucester, of the land specified in the preceding, of which this deed seems to be a duplicate, although the wording is slightly different. Witnesses: William of Someri, Richard French (Franciscus), then Bailiffs of Gloucester; John Draper; Hugh of the King's Hall (de Aulla Regis); William the Cnusare; Simon of Aperley; Robert le Roy; Richard of Pokelon; Walter Hulfe. 443.

434.—[1249.]—[1] Grant from Alexander Derk, Chaplain of Elmor', for the health of his soul and for the soul of Walter his father and Goldþiue his mother, to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew between the bridges of Gloucester and the brethren there of a rent of 7s. 4d. in Gloucester, to be received of the heirs of John of Gosedich for the land of Henry the Roper and for the land upon which the said John's house was built; yielding therefor to the King for landgavel (de longabulo) 22d. in silver at Hockeday, and to the keepers of the work of the Church of Shottesouera 3s., out of which they are to pay to the Friars Minor 12d. and to the Friars Preachers (of Gloucester?) 12d. Witnesses: Richard of Hanleg, chaplain; William of Saunford; Walter Hoich; David of Breyenoik'; William of Sumery and Richard French (Fraunceys), Bailiffs of Gloucester. 500.

435.—Ab. 1250.—Grant from Ralph Ingeram, of Lutlehokelecote, to the Master and Brethren of the Lepers' House of St. Margaret near Gloucester, of an acre of arable land (terra lucrabilis) in Middelfurlung, between the land of Adam Frere and the land of the said Hospital,[2] the end of which acre extends to the land of John Seetd. Witnesses: Richard of the Cellar and Egidius the Fisher, then Bailiffs of Gloucester; Roger the Enueyse; Richard Fraunceys; Henry of Holecumb; Henry Celestr'; John of the Hall; Richard the Clerk. 348.

436.—Ab. 1250.—Grant from Richard the Blund,[1] of Gloucester, to Christina his daughter of a rent of 11s. 6d., issuing from land in the Butchery (in Vico Macecrariorum[2]) opposite the Church of the Holy Trinity on the south side of Gorlon ; and 2s. 6d. of rent that he bought of William þurvyn, issuing from land in Scruddelone ;[3] and 16d. of rent that he bought from John the Forester and Alice his wife from land outside Sudgate near Tycedevelle. Witnesses : Richard of the Cellar and Egeas the Fisher, Bailiffs ; William of Sumeri ; John Monitot ; Luke of Cornwall ; William the Farrier (Marscallus) of the Cross (de Cruce) ; Henry the Clerk. 358.

437.—Ab. 1250.—Grant from Cecily Freke and Custi Freke her sister to the Prior and Brethren of St. Bartholomew, for the sustentation of a lamp in the chancel, of all their land between the bridges of Gloucester, lying between the land of the said Hospital and the land of Milisant, widow of Benedict ; rendering therefor yearly ¼d. for the King's landgavel (pro longabulo Domini Regis), and 1d. to the donors, and 18d. to the heirs of William Long, of Newham. Witnesses : Richard of the Cellar and Egeus the Fisher, Bailiffs ; Hugh of the King's Hall ; Hugh the Girdler (le Ceynterer) ; William the Farrier (Ferrarius) ; John Blund ; William of Sumeri. 359.

[2] A Latinization of Old French macecrier. Thus Wace, Roman de Rou, 10,227, says of the survivor of the wreck of the White Ship in 1120, that he was a machecrier and sold meat :

> 'Cil Berout de Roem esteit
> Machecrier ert, sa char uendeit ;
> Por sa dete la cort sueit,
> Kar a plusors sa char creeit.'

Berout is called 'Beroldus, Rotomagensis carnifex,' in Orderic Vitalis, iv. 414, where carnifex has its medieval meaning of 'butcher.' Amys the Butcher, of Gloucester, is called 'le Macecrer' in the Plea Rolls of 1221, p. 109, and 'Macecrarius' in Cart. S. Petri, ii. 86, iii. 240. A 'Nicholas le Macecrer,' of Herefordshire, is mentioned in 1252 ; Exc. e Rot. Finium, ii. 145.

438.—Ab. 1250.—Release from Joan the Freke,[1] of Gloucester, to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of her right in the land that her mother Aubreda the Freke held in inheritance, lying on the Severn between the land that formerly belonged to Cecily the Freke[2] and the Severn. Witnesses: Dom. Richard, Vicar of Frouc[estre]; William of Somery; Egeas the Fisher, then Bailiff of Gloucester;[3] John of Eldresfeld; Hugh the Girdler (le Ceynter); John the White; William the Farrier (Ferrator); Walter of Abehale; Nicholas the Chaplain of St. Mary's in St. Nicholas' Church. 349.

439.—Ab. 1250.—Grant from John, called the Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of Gloucester, and the brethren of the same, to Hugh the Girdler (le Ceynter), of Gloucester, of a piece of land in Pukelone, lying between the land of the said Hugh on the one side and the land of Master John the King's Mason (Cementarius)[4] on the other: to be held quit of all services and demands except landgavel (saluo longabulo). Witnesses: Richard, Vicar of Frouc[estre]; William of Somery and Egeas the Fisherman,[5] then Reeves of Gloucester; Hugh of Kingeshome; Richard of Sanford; Thomas of Euesh[am]; Peter the Tailor (Cissor); Richard the Dyer (Tinctor); Nicholas the Chaplain of St. Nicholas. 469.

440.—Ab. 1250.—Grant from Brother John, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of Gloucester, to Walter

444.—Ab. 1250.—Release from Petronilla, daughter of Hugh of Gerna, to the Prior and Brethren of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew between the bridges of Gloucester of her right in certain lands that the said Prior and brethren hold of the grant and sale of the said Hugh, her father. Witnesses : Henry the Clerk of Redleg' ; Helias of Heydon' ; Richard of Clyue ; Walter of Pulton ; Henry of Chakeshull' ; Nicholas the Clerk. 452.

445.—Ab. 1250.—Grant from Reginald Bucler to the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of all his land between the bridges of Gloucester, between the land of John of Eldresfeld and the land of Alice, daughter of Reginald of Eldresfeld. Witnesses : Hugh of Kingeshome ; William of Somery ; Henry the Clerk ; Hugh the Girdler (le Ceinter) ; John Blund ; William the Farrier (Ferrone) ; Walter of Abehale ; Richard of Teukebir[y] ; Martin Mariner ; Nicholas the Chaplain. 421.

446.—Ab. 1250.—Grant from Brother John, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, and the Brethren of the same to John of Eldresfeld of the land between the bridges of Gloucester that Reginald Bucler gave to the said Hospital. Witnesses : Richard of Frouc[estre], Vicar ; William of Somery ; Master John the King's mason (cementarius) ; Hugh of King's Hall ; Henry the Changer[1] (Cambiator) ; Hugh the Girdler (le Ceinter) ; John Blund ; William the Farrier (Ferone) ; Walter of Abehale ; Richard of Teukebir[y] ; Nicholas the Chaplain. 562.

[1] The changing of the money of one foreign country for that of another and of the different foreign coins in circulation in England was in the hands of the moneyers, who were established in most boroughs up to the end of the 12th century. When the whole of the minting came to be done in London, a class of private 'changers' arose who managed the exchanges of money, deriving their living from the charges they were entitled to make. See Cunningham, Growth of English Industry and Commerce, 1890, pp. 150, 263.

447.—Ab. 1250.—Grant from Geoffrey, son of Baldewin, to Dionisia, wife of Walter of Abbenhall, his sister's daughter, of all his land between the bridges of Gloucester, and a curtilage outside the west gate on the bank of the Severn, and a messuage and an acre of arable land in the village of Oure; reserving to him and his heirs the rent of the tenement of Thomas of Lamputthe.[1] Witnesses: Sir Richard Poyntz; Gilbert Taleboth; Hugh of the Kingeshome; William of Sumery; Hugh the Girdler (le Seinter); John of Eldesfeld. 422.

448.—Ab. 1250.—Sale and release from William Torel, of Gloucester, to Robert of Bredon of an annual rent of 20d., which he was wont to pay for the land between the bridges that the said William gave him in free marriage with his daughter Cicely. Witnesses: Richard Hoyhc; Henry Siluester; Roger of Northwys; Walter of Theokebur[i]; William the Dyer; William of Waddon; Walter of Hamtonn'. 423.

449.—Ab. 1250.—Grant from Robert of Bredon to Richard the White, of Gloucester, of an annual rent of 20d. that William Torel sold to him,[2] issuing from land between the bridges of Gloucester near to the land that belonged to the said William. Witnesses: Stephen of Cornwall (Cornubiensis); John the Farrier (Marescallus); William Breton'; John Ulf; Henry of Gloucester, clerk. 424.

450.—Ab. 1250.—Agreement by Stephen of Harnhulle[3] to pay £10 to the Brethren of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew in case he be unable to warrant to them the land near Watersip' between Clotleye and Mynti, which is of the fee of the Abbey of Malmesbir[y], to wit, of the manor of Crudewelle. 515.—Ab. 1260.—Grant from Alice, widow of John Hyngolf, of Wotton', to Brother Walter, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, and the Brethren of the same of a parcel of her curtilage in Hyda near Gloucester, between her land and the land of the said Prior, extending from the land of Robert the Oilmaker (Oleator) to the land that formerly belonged to Maurice Symenel. She also releases to the said Prior and Brethren an annual rent of 4d. due to her from them for land that they hold

[1] Hulier is an Anglo-French form of French huilier, 'oilmaker.' Cf. the Latinized Oleator in the following deeds.

[2] 'Willelmus, filius Roberti Tinctoris, infra portas boreales Glouc.' The meaning is, apparently, that William was dwelling within the north gates.

[3] Richard of Compton is described as a Canon of Southwell in 1257; Le Neve, Fasti Ecclesiae Anglicanae, iii. 461.

[4] This represents the pres. part. surjurnant of the Old French surjurner, or of the Mid. Engl. surjurn (Genesis and Exodus, 63), 'to sojourn, stay, reside,' etc. Its meaning as a surname is not very obvious.

in Hyda of the gift of David of Brekenech. Witnesses: Richard of Compton, clerk; Philip of Heyþerleya; Philip of Mattresdon; William Geraud; Nicholas Sygrit; William of Morgan; Walter the Skinner (Pelliparius); Robert the Oilmaker; John the Clerk. 505.

516.—Ab. 1260.—Grant from Alice, widow of John Yngulf, to the poor and infirm of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of an annual rent of 12d. issuing from her curtilage in Hyda near Gloucester, between the land of Freþesante the Lultare and the land that lately belonged to Maurice Symenel. Witnesses: Philip of Heyþerleya; Philip of Mattresdon; Robert of Ledene; Nicholas Sygrit; Henry Passemer; William of Markeleya; Geoffrey the Smith; Walter the Skinner (Pelliparius); Robert the Oilmaker (Oleator); John the Clerk. 506.

517.—Ab. 1260.—Grant from Henry Peticlerk, of Wotton', to the Prior and Brethren of the Hospital of Saint Bartholomew of Gloucester of two selions of arable land in Wotton lying in the field called 'Pedesmeresfeld,' between the King's land and the land of the Abbot of Gloucester, extending from the King's highway to the land of the said Abbot. Witnesses: Philip of Haytherleyg'; Philip of Mattesdon'; Robert of Ledon'; Robert Keys; Henry of Lasseberg'; Henry of Marwent; Alexander Achard. 508.

518.—Ab. 1260.—Grant from Henry Peticlerc, of Wotton', to Brother Walter, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew and the Brethren of the same of an acre of arable land called 'Smochacre' at Wyntersiche,[1] between the land of the Abbot of St. Peter and the common furlong (furlungum) of Langeforde, extending from the land of Walter the Sopere, of Wotton, to the land of Henry of Breus, of Langford. Witnesses: Richard of Compton, Canon of Southwell (Suthwell); Philip of Hayþerlech; Philip of Mattresdon; William Gerald; Nicholas Sygrit; Henry Passemer; Gilbert of Syde; William Richemon; John the Clerk. 510.

519.—Ab. 1260.—Grant from Henry, son and heir of John Peticlerk, of Wotton', to Brother Walter, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew and the brethren of the same of an acre of meadow in Waleham between the meadow of the Abbot of Gloucester and the meadow of Sir William Daubeny, extending by the Severn to the place called 'Leg.' Witnesses: William Daubeny, knight; Richard of Compton, clerk; Philip of Hayþerleg; Philip of Mattresdon; John of Holecumbe; Nicholas Sygrit; Henry Passemer; William of the Plock; Gilbert of Syde; John the Clerk. 511.

520.—Ab. 1260.—Grant from Henry Peticlerck, of Wotton', to Brother Walter, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew between the bridges of Gloucester, and the brethren of the same, of two selions of arable land in the fields of Wotton towards Sauagesmulle, between the land of Nicholas Sprot on the east and the land of Dionysia the Budeles[1] on the west; of which selions one head extends from the land of Richard of Compton on the north to the land of the said Richard on the south. Witnesses: Richard of Compton; Philip of Heyþerleya; Philip of Mattresdon; Hugh of Brichamton'; Robert Keys; Henry of Lassebur'; Nicholas Sigrit; Gilbert of Syde; John the Clerk. 556.

521.—Ab. 1260.—Demise from Elias the Welshman (le Waleys), of Hardewik', to Roger of Kemele and Alice of Longroue his wife, for the term of their lives, of a croft of his inheritance in Hardewik', between the house of Matilda of the Place and the house of Alice Horsman. Witnesses: Robert of Wike; William Conseil; Richard Bernard; William Tassel. 512.

[1] This is, apparently, intended as a fem. of M. E. budel (= O. E. bydel), 'beadle.' A 'William the Beadle' (le Budel) witnesses No. 524, next page. An Alice, widow of the Beadle (Alicia relicta Bedelli) was living about this time in King's Barton; Cart. S. Petri, iii. 228. There was a Beadle's mill (Budelesmulne) in Abbot's Barton; Id., i. 219; ii. 204, 240; iii. 228. Thus Budeles in the present deed seems to be a feminine form, representing bydel + the fem. suffix -es.

522.—Ab. 1260.—Grant from Helias, son of Gilbert of Godric's Castle,[1] to the Brethren of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, towards the sustentation of Christ's poor and infirm languishing there, for the health of his soul and of the soul of Hunyd [2] his wife, of an annual rent of 6d., which Ralph le Passur renders yearly for his tenement in the said village. Witnesses: Dom. Thomas, Vicar of the same village; William, son of William; John of Groft-hamton'; Adam, son of William; John Bienuenu;[3] Adam, son of John. 513.

523.—Ab. 1260.—Grant from William Foket to Richard the White,[4] of Gloucester, in consideration of money paid to the donor in order to acquit his debts due to Jews and Christians, of 2s. of annual rent that John Steuene was wont to render for the land that he held in Atteleg' without Sondebrug', between the land of Simon of Mattesdon and the land of Robert Foket. Witnesses: Alexander of Brok;[5] Stephen of Cornwall (Cornubi-ensis); John Simond; Luke of Cornwall; William Clemond; William Breton; William, Bailiff of the King's Barton (praepositus Domini Regis de Berton). 537.

524.—Ab. 1260.—Grant from Richard the Blund to Henry, son of Robert the Clerk, of Gloucester, of 2s. of annual rent that he has of the gift of William, son of William Foketd,[6] to be received from John Steuene for the tenement that he holds in Atteleg' without Sonde-brugg', between the land of Simon of Mattresdon' and the land of Robert Foketd. Witnesses: Philip of Hay-therleg'; Philip of Mattresdon; William Geraut; William the Beadle (le Budel); Sampson of the Berton'; William of Chelteham; Luke of Cornwall (le Cornwaleys); John of Eldresfeltd; Richard the Clerk. 514.

[1] Goodrich, described in a grant of A.D. 1228-1243 as the 'town of Godric's Castle;' Cart. S. Petri, i. 71, 316.

[2] Hunyd = O. E. Hūn-gȳð.

[3] 'Welcome,' French bienvenu.

[4] Called 'the Blund' in the next deed.

[5] Land that formerly belonged to Alexander of the Brook in Gloucester is mentioned in 1263; Cart. S. Petri, ii. 198.

[6] See preceding deed.

525.—Ab. 1260.—Demise from Gilbert of Eldresfeld, with the assent of his wife Amfil[isa], to the Prior and Brethren of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of all their land, etc., that they have of the gift of Reginald of Eldresfeld,[1] for the term of the life of the said Amfil[isa]. Witnesses: William of Chilteh[am] and Roger the Enveyse, Bailiffs of Gloucester; Hugh of Kynkesh[am]; John of Eldresfeld; Hugh the Girdler (le Seinter); John Blunde; Richard the Dyer; William the Farrier (le Ferrur); Walter the Clerk. 515.

526.—Ab. 1260.—Demise from Alice, widow of Hugh the Farrier (Marescallus), to Walter Cusin of all her land in the great street going to the bridge of Gloucester between her lands near the Bothall (Bohalla). Witnesses: Roger the Anueise; Hugh of the Kingeshame; Richard of Saumford; William the Rich; Stephen the Tailor (Scissor); Thomas the Tailor; Ernald the Baker. 516.

527.—Ab. 1260.—Grant from Thomas the Chaplain, of Gloucester, son of Walter of Stanley, to Richard of Sanford and Christiana his wife of his land[2] that he bought of Thomas Ouenad,[3] lying between the house lately belonging to the said Thomas Ouenad and the lane going to the Archdeacon's house in the parish of St. Nicholas. Witnesses: Walter, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew; William of Chilteham; Richard, Vicar of Froucestr'; Hugh of the King's Hall; Philip the Spicer (Apothecarius); Roger the Enueise. 517.

528.—Ab. 1260.—Release from Lucy, daughter of Simon the Cook (Cocus), to Adam of Ardern' of her right in the lands and tenements that belonged to Henry the Parmenter, her brother,[4] in the parish of St. Nicholas,

[4] On March 21, 1231-2, the Burgesses of Gloucester were pardoned 100 marks, in which they were amerced for the trespass of Henry the Parmenter at Gloucester, for which he was hanged; Rot. Litt. Claus., 16 Henry III. mem. 27. His widow Emma had a grant, on May 30, 1233, of his house and chattels for a year and a day (that is, the King waived the forfeiture of them to him for a year and a day); Id., 17 Henry III., mem. 9.

Gloucester. Witnesses: William of Chelteham; Philip the Spicer (Apothecarius); Robert the Wyse; Robert Seli; Geoffrey the Taverner; John Payn; John the Draper. 518.

529.—Ab. 1260.—Grant from Hugh Charc to the Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew and Brethren of the same, for the health of his soul and of the soul of Isabella his wife, and for the souls of his father and mother, and of Henry his son and of Isabella his daughter, etc., of all the land that Walter of the Boxe,[1] son of James of the Boxe, held of him in the Portfelda without Neuham, and 12 selions of land in the Hydecroft, and a rent of 6d. from the land called 'Charcfeld,' which the said Walter held of him. Witnesses: Alexander of Staura; Helias of Heydon; Henry the Clerk, of Redleg'; William Luuerich; John Lumbard; William of the Hulle; Adam Yue and Robert the Blund, Bailiffs of Neuham; Nicholas, Chaplain of St. Nicholas, Gloucester. 519.

530.—Ab. 1260.—Grant from William of Toekesbur[y], goldsmith of Gloucester, to Walter Florye, burgess of Gloucester, of land in the Smiths' Street, which the donor held of the Brethren of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew,[2] lying between the land that belonged to William the Chaplain and the land that belonged to John the Welshman (Walensis), smith, and between the land that belonged to Walter Hoich and the land that belonged to William of Reding. He also grants the parcel of land that he had of John the Welshman (le Waleys) adjoining the said land. Witnesses: John, son of Simon, Bailiff of Gloucester; William of Somery; Richard the Blund; Richard of the Cellar; William of Chiltenham; Robert the Wise; Alexander Florye; John of the Stowe; Richard the Clerk. 520.

531.—Ab. 1260.—Grant from Peter Widie, son and heir of Nicholas Wydie, of Wotton', to John of the Wood (de Boscho), of Hayþerleya, for his homage and service, of all the land and buildings, meadows, pastures, rents, and appurtenances that descended to the donor by inheritance from the said Nicholas in Wotton; and also of a messuage in the Bertonestrete without Gloucester pertaining to the said land: rendering therefor to the Abbot of St. Peter of Gloucester 5s., and to John of Holecumbe 1d. Witnesses: Philip of Heyþerleya; Philip of Mattresdon; Hugh of Brichamton; Nicholas Sygrit; Henry Passemer; Gilbert of Syde; Henry Peticlerk; John the Clerk. 527.

532.—Ab. 1260.—Grant from William of Arraz to the Prior and Brethren of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew between the bridges of Gloucester of a meadow in Iwel[eg] called 'Neuuemed,' lying between the grove (graua) called 'Kingesmor' and the meadow of William of Stone, the Prior and Brethren having licence to enclose the said meadow every year from the Feast of the Purification until the Feast of All Saints. [1] This may mean a native of Surrey, as Surreis is so used by Fantosme, line 735, in Michel's Benedict of St. Maur, Chroniques des Ducs de Normandie, but it has more probably the meaning above given, for Anglo-French possessed the adjectives norreis, 'northern,' westreis, 'western,' and surreis, 'southern' (suthrensis*, from Old Norse suðrœnn?) He is called John le Sutherne in Nos. 709, 710, page 280, below.

[2] Grimbald Pauncefot (printed 'Paunsenont') was one of the fifteen knights captured by the King at Northampton in 1264; Rishanger, Chronica, p. 21; Eulogium Historiarum, p. 123. According to a MS. quoted in Halliwell's edition of Rishanger's Chronicle of the Baron's Wars, p. 125, there was (in addition?) a Grimbald Pauncefot, a sergeant (serviens), amongst the prisoners. Grimbald Pauncefot assisted in repelling Prince Edward's first attack upon Gloucester in 1264; Robert of Gloucester, Chronicle, line 11,242. He was in the Castle when Edward again attacked Gloucester (Id., 11,594), and, after the surrender of the Castle, deserted the Barons and adhered to Prince Edward, by whom he was knighted; Id., 11,607.

[1] Brimpsfield.

[2] The date of this is probably identical with that of the following abstract. Thus Robert of Puttley and Robert Sely, being Bailiffs in December, 1262, must have held office from Michaelmas, 1262, to Michaelmas, 1263. According to Fosbroke, 'Robert Potel or Putteley' was Bailiff in 1261 and 'Robert Sely or Cely' in 1262.

578.—[1262-3.]—[1] Fragment of grant from Richard the Blund,[2] burgess of Gloucester, to the Leper Brethren of the Hospital of Saint [Margaret] without Gloucester of three selions of land in the Hamme near Suthbrock', between the land that belonged to Robert [Wodye] and the land of Robert Sely, of Langeford ; which three selions he bought from [John Ingolf,] of Wottone.[3] The donor is to receive for the term of his life half the crop of the said land, which is to be manured, ploughed, sown, harrowed, etc., at the expense of the said Brethren. After his death, they are to receive the whole of the crop. Witnesses: Robert of Putteleye and Robert Sely, Bailiffs; William of . . . . . ; Richard Franceis ; Roger the Enveise ; John Sage ; Richard the Clerk. 574.

579.—[1262-3.]—[1] Grant from John of Meryet, Rector of the church of St. Michael, Gloucester, to Master Richard of Crystchircche of the land that the said John holds of the Prior and Convent of Lanton' without the east gate of Gloucester. .—[1283-4.]—[2] Release from Robert of Bath (de Batonya) and Alice Walerond his wife to Adam, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, and the Brethren of the same of their right in a tenement in Sondebrugge. Witnesses: John of Worcester and Randolph of Putteleye, Bailiffs; Philip of Matteresdone; Alexander of Bikenore; Alexander Achard. 700.

[2] John of Worcester (Wigornia) and Ralph Putteley were Bailiffs in 1283, according to Fosbroke. As they held office in March and September, 1284 (see Nos. 694, 695, below), their term of office extended, no doubt, from September 30, 1283, to September 29, 1284.

694.—[1284, March.]—Lease for 20 years from Lady Day, 1284, from Philip the Spicer (Apothecarius), burgess of Gloucester, to Adam, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, and the Brethren of the same of four acres of arable land in Kyngeshome, which John of Kerwerþin held, lying between the land of the said Hospital and the land of Richard Siston and extending from the street called 'Boteldelone' to the lands of Ralph of Wylintone and Richard Siston. Witnesses: John of Worcester and Randulph of Putteleye, then Bailiffs of Gloucester; John Payn; John Daubeneye; Philip of Haþerleye; William Yngeleys; Alexander Achard. 701.

695.—[1284.]—Lease for 10 years from September 29, 1284, from Adam, Prior of St. Bartholomew, Gloucester, to Nicholas Bagod, burgess of Gloucester, of the tenement that belonged to Walter Florye,[1] lying in the Great Smiths' Street (in magno uico fabrorum), between the land that belonged to Robert the Wyse and the land that belonged to Walter Hoch. Witnesses: John of Worcester and Ralph of Putteleye, Bailiffs; John the Wise; Thomas of Tudenham; John of Wylton; John of Stodleye, clerk; Alexander Achard. 702.

696.—[1284-7].—Grant from Walter Seuere, burgess of Gloucester, to Brother John,[2] Prior of the Hospital of St.

[2] John was Prior of St. Bartholomew's Hospital in 1287 (see No. 709, page 279, below). The Prior in 1284 was Adam (see No. 694, above). In 1295-6 William was the Prior (see Nos. 737, 739, page 288, below). The names of the Bailiffs for every year between 1287 and 1295-6 are known, and, as the Bailiffs who witness this deed do not occur in the list, it is obvious that they must have held office between 1284 and 1287. Thus we may conclude that Alexander of Bicknor and German of Tunbridge were Bailiffs of Gloucester in 1284-5 or 1285-6 or 1286-7.

Bartholomew, and the Brethren of the same, for the sustentation of the light of St. Mary in the same Hospital, of 6s. of annual rent that Alice, daughter of Reginald of Eldresfelde, mother of the said Walter, was wont to receive from a tenement between the bridges, between the land of the said Reginald and the land that belonged to Robert Durseleye.[1] Witnesses: Alexander of Bikenore and German of Tonebrugge, Bailiffs; Philip the Spicer (Apothecarius); Robert the Dyer; William Chose; Henry the Changer (Excambiator); Henry the Paumer; Alexander of Eynesham; Roger of Quenhulle; John the Draper; Henry the Draper; Alexander Achard; Richard, then Clerk of Gloucester; Peter the Dyer. 693.

697.—[1284-7.]—[2] Release from Walter Seuare to Brother John, Prior of St. Bartholomew, and the Brethren of the same of his right in the rent conveyed by the preceding deed. Witnesses as in preceding, but arranged in different order and with the omission of Richard, Clerk of Gloucester, and Peter the Dyer. 692.

698.—[1284-7.]—[2] Grant from Walter, son of Annora,[3] to Master John of Stodleye, clerk, of a tenement lying between the land formerly belonging to Hugh of the Kyngeshame, and the land of the Abbot of Gloucester in Ebruggestret. 711.—[1287-8.]—[1] Release from John, son and heir of Philip of Hatherleye, to John, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew and the Brethren of the same of his right in a tenement that his father held of the said Hospital, lying near St. Nicholas' Church; and of his right in the land that formerly belonged to his said father in Ebrygge-stret, between the land that belonged to Rose the Rich (la Ryche) and the land that belonged to Elias the Maryner.[3] Witnesses: Walter Seuare and William Schaward, Bailiffs; Alexander of Bykenore; John Hard, of Cheltenham; Philip the Spicer (le Especer); Robert of Lassendon; Master Adam of Northwich; William Chose; Henry the Draper; Henry the Changer (le Chaniour). 707.

[1] The ailiffs who witness this deed held office in December, 1287 (see the preceding deeds). Thus their year of office must be 1287-8.

[2] Regarding this name, see page 217, note 4, above. This form is quite as regular as surjurnant. It represents a compound of the Vulgar Latin djornare* (classical diurnare*) with sub, whilst the form in sur is compounded with super. The form sojurner occurs in Wace, Roman de Rou, ii. 1290, 1730, and as sujurn in the Anglo-Norman poem of Brandan, 874.

[3] See No. 708 on previous page.

712.—[1287-8.]—[1] Release from John of Stodleye, clerk, to Walter, son of Annora, of Gloucester, of his right in the land in Gloucester that he had of the gift of the said Walter lying in Ebruggestrete,[2] between the land of Hugh of the Kyngeshome and the land of the Abbot of Gloucester. 1020.—1388, April 3.—Agreement between Edmund Toky, burgess of Gloucester, and the Prior of St. Margaret's near Gloucester and the Brethren and Sisters of the same, witnessing that the said Edmund has granted that the said Prior, Brethren and Sisters shall have, for the term of 60 years to come after the date of this agreement, the course of the fall (la cheioure[1]) of their water to run and drop (aualer) on the shed (le schire[2]) of the said Edmund, as they have had before the making of these presents, that is to say, from a house that one William Bruyn, burgess of Gloucester, formerly gave to the said Hospital, to have and hold the said course peacably without disturbance from the said Edmund. The Brethren agree to bear half the expenses of repairing or mending the shed (le schire) or the gutter of the said shed (schire), so far as regards the gutter or the roofing of the same. Witnesses: John Heed and Roger Resseyuour, Bailiffs; Richard Baret; William Baret; William Hasulton; Simond Hasulton. [In Anglo-French]. 1010.

1021.—1388, August 28.—Release from Thomas Byseley, burgess of Gloucester, to Brother John Bullemulle, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, and the Brethren of the same of his right in a tenement in Oxebode lane, between the tenement of Robert Sweyniseye and the tenement that formerly belonged to Thomas Styward. Witnesses: John Hed and Roger Resceyvour, then Bailiffs; Robert Pope; John Byseley; Robert Tounisende; William Baret. 1011.

[1] This word appears to represent a substantive formed by means of the suffix atura from the verb chëoir, Mod. Fr. choir (= Latin cadere), 'to fall.' The grant is evidently one of permission for the Brethren of the Hospital to discharge their gutters upon the shed of the grantor. Similar grants are not uncommon. The interesting London Assize of Building, A.D. 1189, devotes considerable attention to the discharging of gutters; Liber de Antiquis Legibus, p. 206.

[2] Upon schire = shed, see 'Rental of Gloucester, 1455,' p. 133, s.v. 'Schura.'

1110.—1437, August 24.—Release from John Wyre to Stephen, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, and to the Brethren and poor men and sisters of the same of his right in two shops between the bridges, which he had lately demised to them for a term of years, so that the issues thereof may be expended in the food and sustenance of the said poor men and sisters. 1100.

1111.—1437, September 19.—Lease from Thomas Berwe, husbandman, of Ettelowe, Matthew Buke, husbandman, of Lyddeney, John Hoychys, of Aure, husbandman, and William Dyer, of Gloucester, to Thomas Carpontar, tanner, of Ayleberton, and to his first wife and their first child, for their lives, of a messuage with curtilage and pasture adjoining in Ayleberton, extending from the highway to the brook called 'Millebroke,' lying between the croft called 'Howecrofte' and the land of Agnes Markyl and John Schipmon. 1101.

1112.—1438, August 10.—Agreement between Brother John Godewyn, Guardian of the Friars Minor of Gloucester, and the Convent of the same place, on the one part, and John Streynesham and Richard Dalby, Bailiffs of Gloucester, and the Community of the same town, on the other part, whereby the Friars, on account of their affection towards the Community of Gloucester, and with the assent of Father Richard Leeke, their Provincial Minister, grant to the said Bailiffs and Community three-quarters of their water running in a leaden pipe in the ground from the hill called 'Mattesknoll'' to the garden of the said Convent within the walls of the said town : to have and to hold to the said Community from a certain place in the garden aforesaid where the water is divided into four parts to the high cross in the town aforesaid, and at other places where they will in the same town, by a leaden pipe in the ground to be put in at the cost of the said Community ; reserving to the said Guardian and Convent their fourth part of the water aforesaid. The said Convent undertake to repair the aforesaid subterranean leaden pipe, all middle channels of stone or wood, and the houses, walls, receptacles, and other things, both in digging and in other necessaries, from the heads of the springs of the water aforesaid to the said hill within reasonable time, provided that plumbers and other necessary workmen for this work may be found in the county of Gloucester ; or if the Bailiffs will provide such plumbers and workmen, the Convent will receive and hire them. The Community are to find three-quarters of the cost of such repairs. Neither party is to do anything to lessen the supply of the other, and both are bound in sums of money to faithfully fulfil the provisions of this agreement. 1102.

1113.—1438, September 30.—Lease for 70 years from Brother Stephen, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew of Gloucester and the Brethren and infirm poor of the same to Thomas Hyot and Margery his wife of a tenement lately held by John Fladder in Ebruggestrete, between the tenement of the said Hospital held by Richard Byrche and the tenement of the Abbey of St. Peter, lately held by John Strangwysh, barber. 1103.

to remain in a chest within the said church of St. Mary in the South under the custody of the Chaplain and Proctors of the Chantry of St. Mary therein; and another book of the miracles of St. Jerome bound with iron chains to the stall (stallum) where the testator was wont to sit in the same church, to likewise remain in the said church under the custody of the wardens for the increase of the virtues of those reading the said books and for the remedy of the testator's soul. To Richard Spillesbury, jun., a green tester, a bed coverlet, a quilt, two blankets, three sheets, and two of the best books that he has not already bequeathed to be chosen by the said Richard. After he has made choice, the other books are to be disposed of by way of alms to such persons as shall seem most fit and necessary, for the testator's soul. A dozen of white woollen cloth in his house to be divided one half to Agnes Spillesbury, Maurice Clement a third part, and Ingham, servant of Agnes Herbered, a fourth part. To be spent in bread, ale, and other victuals amongst his neighbours to be assembled at the testator's cost after the burial of his body, 20s. To John Jelyf, Hugh Carpenter, and Thomas Ekynton, and John Grove, cutler, his tenement on the west side of the south street, which the testator now inhabits, and his tenement adjoining the aforesaid tenement: to have and to hold to them, on condition that the income arising therefrom be expended in the sustentation of a chaplain of the perpetual chantry of St. Mary in the said church of St. Mary in the South, and that such chaplain say on every Thursday in his mass the prayer 'Deus cui proprium minor' for the soul of the testator and for the other souls above mentioned. He gives to the said John Jelyf, Hugh, and Thomas and John three cottages standing together on the south side of Scrudlane: to have and to hold to them, on condition that they pay the profits thereof to the churchwardens of the said church for the maintenance of a light to burn daily in a lamp in the second chancel (cancellum) of St.

Mary in the same church during the celebration of divine service. He also gives to the said John, Hugh, Thomas and John three other cottages and a shop adjoining the before-mentioned cottages: to have and to hold to them, on condition that they pay the annual profit thereof to the churchwardens aforesaid for an anniversary of the testator's death, the churchwardens to have a suitable reward for their trouble. He gives to Henry Dode, John Wolaston, and John Halden two other shops adjoining the said high shop, on condition that they pay all the profit thereof for the service of the chaplain of the Fraternity of the Holy Trinity in the said church of St. Mary at the Abbey gate, and that each chaplain of the said Fraternity say every Friday in his mass the prayer 'Deus, cui proprium minor,' and celebrate yearly on the day after the feast of St. Jerome the mass of 'Requiem Aeternam' for the soul of the testator and for the souls abovesaid. To Robert Godewyn another shop next to the above two, and another to the testator's servant Katherine Thomas annexed to the last-mentioned shop, for the several terms of their lives; after their deaths, the said shops are to revert to the said Dode, Wolaston, and Halden, who are to pay the profits thereof to the use of the poor infirm in the Hospital of St. Bartholomew to specially pray for the testator's soul. If any of the said legatees fail to fulfil the conditions of the bequest, the testator's cousin and next heir John Smith is to take possession of the legacies, and to distribute the profits to other charitable uses. The residue of his goods to his executors Dom. Robert Englyssh, chaplain, and Ancelm Chenon, to be disposed of at their discretion for the health of the testator's soul. [Prob. 23 October, 1454.] 1127.

Also of another piece of land with a house and bakehouse on it, between the land of the late Richard Chamberleyn and the way that leads from the great south street to the cemetery of the Friars Preachers. In the time of James Ivy and William Hanshawe, Bailiffs and Sheriffs; Philip Gronowe, David Vaughan, Nicholas Elyottes, and John Farley, Stewards. 1177.

1189.—1498, September 22.—Confirmation by the Mayor and Burgesses of Gloucester to the Abbot of St. Peter of a chief messuage opposite the Kyngis Burde, extending from the common way called 'Myntes Smyth' to a tenement of Joan Clerke, widow, lying between the tenement of Philip Pridyth, now belonging to the said Mayor and Burgesses, and the tenement of the Prior of St. Oswald, with the lane called 'Gore Lane' at the back at the west end; which messuage was late in the tenure of John Farreley, deceased, and is now held by Elizabeth Brokwood, widow: and of another tenement in Edbruggestrete (sic) reaching from that street on the north to the tenement of the said Mayor and Burgesses inhabited by John Myles, purser, and John Blakspade, capper, lying between the tenement of the said Abbot and Convent inhabited by Alice Harys, widow, and the tenement of the Prior of St. Bartholomew inhabited by William Tanner, 'hoper;' and of another tenement in Brodesmythstrete between the tenement of the said Abbot and Convent and the tenement of the late Thomas Balle, now belonging to William Grasewell, extending from the highway in front to the lands belonging to the chantry or service of the Blessed Mary the Virgin in the church of the Holy Trinity, now inhabited by Walter Plummer; and in another tenement in the suburb in Herelane, between the tenement of the Abbey of Hayles and the tenement of the Abbey of St. Mary of Circencester, extending from the said lane to the water of Weuer on the east, now in the tenure of William Hymon, tanner: which tenements are held of the said Mayor and Burgesses by certain rents and services and were acquired by the said Abbot and Convent without licence from the said Mayor and Burgesses. The said Mayor and Burgesses acknowledge the said Abbot and Convent to be seised of the said tenements in their demesne as of fee in right of their said monastery, and they ratify and approve the estate and title of the said monastery in the said tenements. 1178.

1190.—1504, September 24.—Certificate by Sir Nicholas Blakeman, Thomas Bulbryght, John Bageworthe, Richard Halden, Richard Byssheop, and William Farmer that Thomas Whythypoll, one of the brethren in the House of St. Margaret, did bequeath to the sustentation and maintenance of the said House all such debts are were owing to him in Mortymere Clebery as are shown by an indenture given by him to Robert Cloterbucke, Prior of the said House. [In English.] 1179.

1191.—1508, December 25.—Lease for 41 years from William Newcman clerk, Andrew Whitemay, Keepers or Governors of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, Walter Sternolde and Philip Harryce, proctors of the infirm of the said Hospital, to John Jackeson, of Gloucester, 'sherman,' and Elizabeth his wife of a tenement between the bridges, now inhabited by the said John and Elizabeth, extending from the King's highway in front to the meadow called 'Archedeken Mede' at the back. 1180.

1192.—1510, September 29.—Lease for 21 years from Andrew Whittemay, clerk, and William Neweman, clerk, Keepers or Guardians of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew the Apostle of Gloucester, Water Sternold, and Philip Harrice, proctors of the infirm of the said Hospital, to Richard a Courtte, of Liddeney, of all their lands in Liddeney; whereof one close is called 'Bartilmewes Helle,' and lies between the land of the Lord of Shrewsbury called 'the Morelande' and the land pertaining to the chantry of Neweland, reaching from the land formerly belonging to William Cooke to the land of William Wyrall, and half of another close called 'Wellcettur.' 1181.

1193.—1511, March 25.—Lease for 61 years from Giles Kynne, gent., to John Benet of a tenement and fulling mill, etc., in Ebley in the parish of Stonehowse. 1182.

1194.—1511-12, February 3.—Final Concord made at Westminster between John Cook, demandant, and Christopher Throgmerton, esq., William Throgmerton, and Richard Bucklande, esq., deforciants, of six messuages, a garden, 60 acres of land, and four acres of meadow in Beggeworth, Wyttecombe, Uphatherley, Downehatherley, Great Bentham, Little Bentham, Great Shordynton and Little Shordynton, whereby the said deforciants acknowledge them to be the right of the said John Cook as those that he has of their grant. 1183.

1195.—1512, May 8.—Lease from Andrew Whytmay, Prior of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew, and the Brethren of the same to Ralph Pyxley, of Gloucester, capper, and his wife Joan and to their son, for their lives of a tenement in Ebryggestrete, Gloucester, lately inhabited by William Brasy. 1184.

1196—1517, September 29.—Lease for 70 years from Andrew Whitmay, Prior of the House and Church or Hospital of St. Bartholomew of Gloucester, and the Brethren of the same to John Mylner, of Arnall, co. Gloucester, of a water-mill in the demesne of Newenham, lately held by Richard Waters. 1185.

1197.—1517-18, February 6.—[1]Agreement between William, Abbot of the Monastery of St. Peter in Gloucester, and the Convent of the same, and their customary tenants of their manor and lordship of Maysmore, on the one part, and the Mayor and Burgesses of Gloucester, on the other part, for the settlement of disputes between the parties regarding the title, use, and possession of common of pasture in certain meadows and pastures called 'Co*m*en Ham,' 'Oxelesowe' otherwise called 'Noneham,' 'Portham' otherwise called 'Prestham,' 'Pullemedowe,' 'Lytle Meneham,' 'Archedekyn's Medowe' and 'Litle Medowe,' nigh adjoining to the west gate of the said town, and regarding the right, title, use and possession of certain liberties, franchises, waifs, strays, and divers other matters. It is agreed, after inspection of muniments and examination of witnesses, that the Mayor and Burgesses shall have for ever the profit and advantage of and in a little meadow nigh adjoining to the little gate at the Westbrugge [= west bridge] of the same town, extending thence to the corner of the orchard of the Prior of St. Bartholomew unto the butt westward to the water of Severn, in which meadow the common pound now is ordained and made for the impounding of beasts belonging to strangers as well as of beasts belonging to the burgesses and inhabitants of Gloucester taken by distress for any manner of cause; the freehold of the said meadow remaining in such person or persons as before this agreement.

[1] In the Cart. S. Petri, iii. xlv. is an award, dated October 27, 1513, made by Richard, Abbot of Winchcombe, and Edmund, Prior of Llanthony, arbitrators chosen by the Abbot of St. Peter's and the Mayor and Burgesses concerning the burgesses' right of common in the meadows to which this deed relates. A contemporary copy of this award occurs in Council Book, No. 1450, fo. 206.

The Mayor and Burgesses to have common of pasture in the meadows known as 'Archedeken's Medowe' and 'Lytell Meneham' from such time as they be mown and the hay carried away yearly until the feast of the Purification of the Virgin Mary [February 2.] If the said meadows be at any time used by the Abbot and Convent by way of agistment or depasturing of beasts or otherwise before it be mown, then the Mayor and Burgesses to enter with their beasts at the feast of the Translation of St. Thomas the Martyr [July 7], and there to continue until the said feast of the Purification, during which time the Abbot and Convent shall have there only ten horses or geldings and no other beasts, and the tenants of Maismore to be excluded, as they have been in times past, from any common of pasture there. The Abbot and Convent shall mow and carry away the hay from the said meadows known as 'Archedeken's Medowe' and 'Meneham' every year before the said meadow called 'Portham' be mown, and the Abbot and Convent are not to depasture the said meadows after they have been mown except with the ten horses or geldings above specified.

The Abbot and Convent shall have and hold in severalty the meadow called 'Pullemedowe' without hindrance or impeachment from the Mayor and Burgesses; the said Mayor and Burgesses to have common of pasture at all times of the year in the Common Hame for all their beasts except sheep, such burgesses as are butchers being excluded from this privilege, the butchers to have going in the said 'Comyn Ham' 20 sheep and no more from the time when the said meadow of 'Prestham' is mown; after which time the sheep of the butchers to depasture both in the said 'Comyn Ham' and in the said meadows called 'Prestham' and 'Noneham' until the feast of the Purification. If the said meadow of Prestham be not mown but used by way of agistment or tillage by the Abbot and Convent, then every burgess being a butcher to put their sheep into the said Comyn Ham and meadows called 'Prestham' and 'Noneham,' after the number aforesaid, in the said feast of St. Thomas, there to remain until the said feast of the Purification. The said Abbot and Convent to have at all times of the year in the said Common Ham 14 score sheep, and no more, and no other beast or cattle except their swine of the Barton, which shall depasture in the pits within the said Comyn Ham; in which pits the Mayor and Burgesses have been wont to dig for earth and clay for repairs within the said town. The Abbot and Convent shall have in Prestham and Noneham meadows their sheep after the hay has been mown without impeachment by the Mayor and Burgesses. For a perfect knowledge of the said Comyn Ham, it is understood and taken that it extends from the westgate of the town to the end of the causeway leading from Maisemore to the west bridge of the said town; from thence to a crosse standing on Maismore causeway called 'Old Ledon Crosse;' from thence to the new ditch, so that one half of the said new ditch shall continue as it now is, and thereupon boundary stones and stakes to be set from time to time as need requires; and the other half of the said ditch to extend to the corner of Pulmedowe adjoining to the Severn, and boundary-stones to be also set there. No other ditch, hedge, rail, or enclosure to be put by either of the parties upon the same ditch.

The Mayor and Burgesses shall have common of pasture for all manner of beasts in the meadows and pastures called 'Noneham' otherwise called 'Oxelesowe' from the eve of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist to the feast of the Purification. The Abbot and Convent to have their own lambs that shall be bred and reared within their manor of Maismore and Over depasturing in the said meadows of Noneham (otherwise called 'Oxelesowe') and Prestham during that time, and they are not to put in any other beasts or cattle.

The Mayor and Burgesses shall have common of pasture in Prestham otherwise called 'Portham' from the time when the hay be mown and carried away until the Purification; and, if the said meadow be used by the Abbot and Convent for agistment, then the said Mayor and Burgesses to use their right of common there from the feast of St. Thomas to the Purification. The Abbot and Convent to have common of pasture therein for their ewes and lambs from the feast of All Saints until the Purification; and their tenants at Maismore to have common of pasture in the said meadows and pastures called 'Oxelesowe,' 'Portham' or 'Prestham,' and 'Comyn Ham' for their oxen and kine only from the time when Prestham be mown for the space of one month, but, in case the Abbot and Convent agist the said meadow of Prestham, the tenants' right of pasture to commence at the feast of St. Thomas and to continue for one month.

It is agreed that no burgess shall have above five beasts in number yearly depasturing in the said meadows and pastures at any time, and these to be their own property, except in the case of the butchers, who may use the right of common with their beasts after the rate aforesaid and with their sheep at such times and with such number as is before rehearsed: provided always that, if it should appear at any time that the said meadow is overcharged with beasts, it shall be lawful for the Mayor and Aldermen of the said town to newly assess the said burgesses' right of common.

The Abbot and Convent may make, at their pleasure, a bridge over Little Severn where the foot bridge now is, or near the same, to carry and convey at all times their hay, timber, horses, cattle, etc., from their said monastery to their manors and weirs and vice versa, and over or through the said meadows and pastures called 'Archedeken's Medowe,' 'Meneham,' and 'Litill Medowe,' and through the little gate near the west gate of the said town for drift and passage only, so that by reason thereof no great loss accrue to the Mayor and Burgesses in defiling or consuming of their common there. The Abbot and Convent and their servants to use and enjoy for ever all such footpaths and ways to and from the said monastery through and over the said meadows and pastures as they have had and used in times past, without hindrance from the Mayor and Burgesses.

The Abbot and Convent to have all waifs and strays and other forfeitures and casualties that shall befall hereafter within all their liberties, and the Mayor and Burgesses to have the like within their liberties. The Abbot and Convent shall make, by their officers, replevin of all manner of beasts, goods, and chattels impounded or detained within the Hundred of Barton that hereafter shall happen to be sued for any manner of causes within the said Hundred and all manner of process depending upon the same, without let or hindrance from the Mayor and Burgesses. In like manner the Mayor and Burgesses are to have the making of all manner of replevins of beasts, goods, and chattels impounded within the Hundred of Dudston and town of Gloucester, and all manner of process therewith connected, without let or hindrance from the Abbot and Convent.

In order that the meadows and pastures wherein the Mayor and Burgesses have common of pasture shall not be depastured and defouled with the beasts and cattle of strangers, nor be overcharged, contrary to this agreement, with the beasts or cattle of the said Mayor and Burgesses, or the said Abbot and Convent, or the said tenants of Maismore, it is agreed that as often as the Abbot and Convent and the Mayor and Burgesses shall perceive any such overcharge or wrongful using of the said common, that they, or either of them, shall drive all beasts and cattle found depasturing in the said meadows and pastures, and shall impound all cattle belonging to strangers and all belonging to the Abbot and Convent, or the Mayor and Burgesses, or the tenants of Maismore above the number allowed by this agreement; to be detained in form following: one drift of the said cattle to be impounded in the Pinfold of the Abbot and Convent and the other drift to be impounded in the pinfold of the Mayor and Burgesses, all fines and ransoms arising from such drifts to be equally divided between the parties.

It is agreed that the freehold and fee simple of the meadows and pastures called 'Archedeken Mede,' 'Meneham,' 'Pulmedowe,' 'Comyn Ham,' 'Oxelesowe' otherwise called 'Nonham,' and 'Portham' otherwise called 'Prestham' is in the Abbot in right of his said monastery.

It is agreed that the Abbot and his successors shall have and enjoy all the liberties of a Burgess of the town of Gloucester as well within the liberties as without; and that when the Mayor of the said town has bought and is served of such victual and cakes as shall be necessary for his household, then the said Abbot and Convent may buy all manner of victuals and cakes necessary for the household of the Abbot for the time being and the Convent of the said monastery in the market of the said town; and that they may buy from time to time such wheat and other corn in the said market as shall be necessary for the Convent without let or hindrance from the Mayor and Burgesses. 1186.
